

TO CONGRESS

Illegitimacy Topic Of Report Soon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A government report on illegitimacy and its effect on federal aid to dependent children is about to be submitted to Congress.

Kathryn D. Goodwin, director of the Social Security Administration's Bureau of Public Assistance, said the report is being cleared by administration higher-ups.

The Senate Appropriations Committee, concerned with public money spent for children born out of wedlock, requested the report.

"We're glad they asked for it that way," Mrs. Goodwin told a UPI reporter, "rather than asking why aid to dependent children causes illicit relations."

Such aid has been under fire recently as the cause of illegitimacy. Some members of state legislatures, resentful of the money plunked out to support offspring of unwed mothers, have been advocating drastic punitive measures such as sterilization, imprisonment, and denial of public aid.

Such stringent measures, however, have been rebuffed recently in Maryland and Virginia. The Maryland House killed a Senate bill imposing jail terms and fines on women who bear more than two illegitimate children.

In Virginia, the General Assembly rejected a bill calling for compulsory sterilization of unwed mothers of two or more children.

Hastening to point out she was being "facetious," Miss Goodwin said there should be one slight "modification" in the bills. "It should include the man," she said.

Health and Welfare Secretary Arthur S. Flemming and others involved in dispensing such federal aid hold that sins of the parents should not be inflicted on children. The only solution, they say, is the long pull of raising standards of education, improving

2 Announce For School Board Posts

The Monroe City School Board race yesterday took on new proportions as the twelfth person qualified and two new candidates announced their intention to run for one of the five positions on the board.

J. H. Scogin Jr., Monroe car dealer, qualified early yesterday to become the twelfth candidate to qualify according to Harry Strong, chairman of the Democratic committee.

At the same time, two local businessmen announced for the race to up the total to 14 — over twice as many as the last race in 1956, when the entire board ran and was re-elected without opposition.

ANNOUNCED

Ben F. Marshall, Monroe banker, and Gordon Cummings, insurance businessman, announced their candidacy yesterday.

Marshall, vice president of the Ouachita National Bank, where he has been employed since 1951, is a lifelong resident of Monroe, a graduate of Neville High and Louisiana State University.

He is chairman of the Juvenile Court Advisory Council of Ouachita Parish, an elder in the Covenant Presbyterian Church, past president of the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce, is presently serving on the Monroe Recreation Board, and is treasurer-elect of the YMCA.

STATEMENT

His statement follows: "I understand there are financial problems involved, but I believe we should concentrate our efforts toward re-opening kindergartens in our schools. This preschool preparation enables the child to adjust more quickly to classroom work. In the present situation, many parents are financially unable to send their children to private kindergarten and thus find their children are unable to accept school routine as quickly."

"While I am for all economy in the operation of the schools, we must realize that a well-rounded education for all our children is the paramount issue."

"I would support the adoption of an accelerated program for the children whom our modern testing programs show to be gifted. Likewise, I would support the introduction of remedial reading classes throughout the system to enable the so-called slower child to attain his full potential."

"I intend to vote my convictions on every issue that may come before the board."

Gordon Cummings, owner of a local insurance agency, issued the following statement of his candidacy: "My reason for offering my name as a candidate for the Monroe City School Board is motivated by a sincere desire to offer myself for public service to a community which has so long and faithfully served me. As a native and lifelong resident of Monroe, I feel a responsibility of citizenship to offer my time, my efforts, and such maturity of judgment as I may possess to a just solution of the problems confronting southern education in this critical period."

"I received my own primary education in the public schools of Monroe and have voted for every bond issue or other program for the improvement and growth of our schools that has ever been submitted to the electorate. I will cooperate with the school board in every way for the development of the schools of the City of Monroe for the best education of every child in our community."

Quake Is Fatal To One Person In Macedonia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — An earthquake of medium strength Saturday killed a woman and injured several persons in the southern Yugoslav republic of Macedonia.

The center of the quake was at the little town of Tetovo, 32 miles west of Skopje, capital of Macedonia. At Tetovo, 12 persons were taken to a hospital for treatment of injuries suffered from broken glass and flying tiles.

In the village of Dobi Dol, district of Tetovo, a woman was killed in the collapse of her house. This was the only casualty reported.

A textile factory's big hall at Tetovo was seriously damaged. Several old houses were destroyed and inhabitants had to be evacuated from a number of other houses which were damaged.

The quake hit Tetovo three times during the afternoon. The tremor was felt also in neighboring districts, where only small damage chiefly to chimneys, was reported.

Red Newspapers Play Down U.S. Pioneer Success

MOSCOW (UPI) — The feat of the U. S. Pioneer V sun satellite was relegated to the back page of most Russian newspapers Saturday.

Headlines stressed that Russia was far ahead of the United States in the weight of its solar-orbiting Sputniks.

Almost all the newspapers ran a 250-word New York dispatch of the Soviet news agency Tass quoting United Press International on details of the orbiting of the new sun rocket.

Both the Communist Party paper Pravda and the government newspaper Izvestia based their headlines on a calculation that Russia's first Sputnik sun satellite outweighed the earlier launched and still orbiting U. S. Pioneer IV by 240 to one.

"The Soviet Union leads 240 to one," Pravda and Izvestia noted. A Soviet scientist, meanwhile, said that man could create a Saturn — like ring around the earth, bringing "everlasting summer" to large areas of the northern hemisphere.

Valentin Cherenko, writing in the magazine "Inventor," suggested the placing in orbit of a number of rockets loaded with fine powder. The rockets, he said, would release the powder so that most of it would travel along an elliptical path.

This, Cherenko, wrote, would form an unbroken belt like the ring of Saturn, scattering a vast amount of solar energy, some of which would reach the earth.

"If the orbiting particles are white," Cherenko wrote, "the ring will continually illuminate our planet."

"If made up of particles reflecting certain wavelengths, it could provide a means for worldwide radio and television," he added.

Cherenko said he believed that such ring, directing some of the "seas of radiant energy sweeping past our planet" to earth could constantly illuminate the areas between 70 and 80 degrees north latitude.

THEY EVEN 'TALK' — EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — MISTIC, an integral computer at Michigan State University, often works alone at night and sings to its masters over the telephone to tell them everything is going well.

The electric brain squalls signals that sound like a bagpipe into a telephone answering device to tell the people who know its signals how the project at hand is coming along.

PERSONALITY CLASH

DeGaulle-Khrush Meet Is Unusual

(Editor's Note: Here two AP correspondents size up the two personalities to be matched Tuesday in the meeting of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and French President Charles de Gaulle. Both writers have worked in Moscow and Paris, observing Khrushchev and De Gaulle at first hand.)

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY
PARIS (AP)—The meeting here Tuesday of Soviet Premier Khrushchev and French President De Gaulle will be one of the most interesting personality encounters of the decade.

About the only thing the two share in common is that each heads his government with a firm, authoritative hand. Otherwise they might almost be from different planets.

Khrushchev, the Soviet Union's ebullient traveling salesman, clowning with hats, patting workers' panaches, lashing out with swift cholera when crossed, is a man of outgoing emotion.

France's De Gaulle, who has gone along with the hot trick only to the extent of donning a protective helmet down in a mine, is as austere as a monk's cell. His humor is rarely seen in public, and it is likely to leave someone squirming from his bite.

Khrushchev likes to blurt out pleasantries, whack a man on the back and lead the laughing at his own jokes.

Northeast Represented At Conference

Northeast State is being represented at a missions conference which today closes a three-day event at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth.

Fourteen students, including Lonnie Penton, Baptist Student Union director here, are attending the session, which is emphasizing "The Divine Obsession" throughout the programs.

One of the featured speakers at the conference is Dr. Baker James Cauthern, secretary for the Foreign Missions Board of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Others addressing the group include Dr. Courts Redford, secretary of the Home Missions Board, Southern Baptist Convention; William Lawson, Baptist Student Union director at Houston; and Dr. Kenneth Chaffin, professor of the New Testament at Southwestern Seminary.

Fifty additional home and foreign missionaries will lead conferences devoted to various fields of service, Penton said.

The group from Northeast participating in the conference are Penton, Sue Briggs, Sandra Burford, Frank Collins, Shirley Crowe, Mike Duchesne, Barrett Fisher, Mollie Guinn, John LaPrairie, Pat Tackel, Kay Terrell, Elizabeth Van Meter, Bonnie Wales, and Peggy Williams.

and the thought of his letting go with a belly laugh is preposterous. Khrushchev, a one-time coal miner, loves to boast of his humble beginnings.

De Gaulle refers to himself in the third person and lets his present position speak for itself.

Khrushchev has no trouble being heard. De Gaulle speaks softly.

Their small talk should make an adventure in listening.

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP) — The Paris meeting of two of the most unusual men of modern times, Khrushchev and De Gaulle, could provide one of the diplomatic dramas of the decade.

Both have irascible tempers. The Frenchman expresses his in a stony hauteur at any questioning of his high objectives or of the place in the world of his beloved France.

Both are able and sharp in the give and take of conference. One has a canny peasant-miner intellect honed in the tough school in which Communist leaders reach the top. The other has a classically trained, determined Frenchman's mind.

A part of Khrushchev's stock in trade is his boasts about missiles and rockets on the moon. The Frenchman, too, has scored a triumph at home by bringing armed Frenchmen out of the barricades in Algiers and in exploding France's own atom bomb.

Unlike President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, De Gaulle and Khrushchev dominate their countries without being influenced greatly by the Democratic process.

Neither scruples at daring moves. Both are stubbornly sure of being right.

In one respect, Khrushchev has an advantage. He unquestionably is top man in the Communist camp.

He will do his utmost to wean De Gaulle away from support of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer on Berlin.

It is unlikely anything developing in the Khrushchev-De Gaulle talks will upset plans for the summit conference. But it could happen that a bitter collision would make further East-West talks useless.

Ruston Student At Tech New AWS President

RUSTON (Special) —Hilda Taylor of Ruston has been elected president of the Associated Women Students at Louisiana Tech by the coeds of the college.

Mary Alice Thomas of Oak Grove was chosen vice president and Bess Adams, Jena, recording secretary.

Roselyn Thames of Mangham is the new corresponding secretary, and Clowe Wright of Shreveport was elected treasurer.

Earlier two girls had been selected by an interviewing board to run in the final election of the five positions. The board was made up of the following:

Mrs. Lucile Folk, assistant professor of English at Tech; Miss Willie Fletcher, professor of home economics; Lorimer Storey, professor of political science; Susie Knause, Shreveport; Carolyn Boyce, Monroe; and Iris Strother, AWS president, Coushatta.

Lincoln Parish Resident Shot

A Ruston Negro was shot in the lower abdomen and right arm about 10 p.m. last night and officials later charged a Negro hot tamale dealer in the fracas.

In "fair" condition in Ruston General hospital last night was Jose Anding, about 30. Hospital attendants said he was critically injured, but was under emergency treatment.

The Sheriff department last night said they had charged a Frank Emerson, also of Ruston with the shooting.

Exact details of the shooting were not available last night, and sheriff deputies continued investigation into the case. The two Negroes allegedly were in an argument when the shooting occurred. Wounds were inflicted by a blast from a shotgun.

ARRESTS

Monroe city police late last night arrested two persons charging them with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating beverages.

Wayne D. Prince, 40 year old Chatham man was charged with DWI and reckless driving and his bond was set at $437.50.

Similar charges were filed against Johnny Poole, 19, whose address was listed as P. O. Box 885 in West Monroe. His bond was also $437.50.

George R. Coats, 13, of Route 1 West Monroe faced a bond of $210 for reckless driving. The same charge was lodged against Glenn Dowdy, 18, Route 3, West Monroe. The amount of his bond was not known.

Starlet Seen At Correct Conventions

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sandra Giles, a brunette with more curves than Pike's Peak, has fashioned a lucrative career for herself as queen of Hollywood's starlets.

She has made it her business to be seen constantly by attending more openings and conventions than anyone else in town and by dating such celebrities as Frank Sinatra.

"But now," said the 23-year-old actress, "I am ready for more serious things. I am going to school. I am studying Stanislawsky. I just finished reading 'Exodus'."

Miss Giles did fine before she decided to go to school. Her films included "Ask Any Girl" and "The Matchmaker," and she appeared on such TV shows as Red Skelton's and "The People's Choice."

"In my younger days, I never wanted to be an actress," said Miss Giles. "I was shy when I came here from San Antonio, Tex. and going out was just my way of making friends. But it pays to be seen in Hollywood if the right people see you. The money is bigger here."

"A secretary—which I was—has to work a whole week to make $75. But a starting actress here can't make less than $80 a day."

scale. Most starlets get about $200 a day because they've been around longer."

Miss Giles has done so well that she has a romantically-set home in the Hollywood hills — complete with fireplace, terrace and den — where she lives with her grandmother, 8-year-old daughter and a young French actress.

Her biggest problem, however, is that people still keep telling her she looks like Jayne Mansfield even though she's no longer a blonde.

"I don't want any more dumb blonde parts," said Miss Giles. "And I dread being told I look like Jayne. I met her six times, and each time she said, 'How do you do?' After six times, you'd think she'd say more."

Waring Concert Earns Success

By JOHN CALE
A band of "Pennsylvanians" invaded Monroe's entertainment world Friday night and carried off quantities of their favorite booty — applause.

The Fred Waring show, whose "Pennsylvanians" came from Tennessee, Kansas, Maryland and other points, was the third major attraction for the North-east State concert series this season. Neville auditorium needed extra seating space to accommodate the crowd and reaction to the performance was most favorable to any attraction given here through the membership association.

Early in the game, Waring discovered the technique of variety through feature soloists followed by group orchestral and choral numbers. The format has made good entertainment for 34 years, according to his own admission.

The style is easily imitated and many a college stunt night has taken a cue from the "Pennsylvanians." Instead of registering alarm, Waring simply accepts the compliment. One of his lines, "We were in this business before Lawrence Welk could count to two."

TWO FORCES

Waring, who has pocketed adequate applause and success from show business and other facets of the musical world, puts two forces of his personality to work. On stage, he assumes an easy-going, master of ceremonies role which gives the illusion he is making up the show as it rolls along. Offstage, his credo follows the "one per cent inspiration, 99 per cent perspiration" formula. The writer had a chance to observe one of these moments during intermission Friday night. Waring's instructions to one of the performers were simple, clear and firm, but also carried a feeling of confidence that the person could do the job. No wonder then that several in the group have been with him for more than a generation.

In contrast, other members of the team were as young and pretty as Miss Tennessee of 1959 and the current Miss Maryland. There was also a young baritone whose solo work in "Mack the Knife," "Granada," and "Bess, You Is My Woman, Now," (yes, he sang them all) was the best individual vocalizing of the evening.

For comedy, the group could outstep Spike Jones. There were midget fiddles with a stereo boost and a drummer boy who apparently fought in the Civil War — he had not one, but two of our national banners.

Seriously, Fred Waring arranges the services of hundreds of churches each Sunday, and

BLONDELL ON MOVE

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Joan Blondell, who's done many a movie, is having a lot of fun traveling the country with a stage play.

She's in "The Dark at the Top of the Stairs." "Don't knock it," she says. "This is the way to see the country. I've got it easy anyway. They've partitioned off my part of the bus, though the partition is always down. I've got my own bed from home, an easy chair, a desk. I'm ever raising plants and flowers."

"Of course, it's nothing new to me. I feel like I've been all my life on the road."

"They tell you the road is dead, but this is nonsense. If you've got a good play, they love you. Everywhere we've gone they've loved us, because they've loved the play."

the group performed several of these.

Costuming, lighting and stereo sound engineering added their part to the evening's success. Waring calls his product "corn," and we won't dispute the term as he defined it. But the audience found it to be highly cultivated, well-filled-out, even-rowed and generally kind-to-the-ears.

SIX-PASSENGER CAR OR STATION SEDAN ... CORVAIR IS BOTH!

A wonderfully useful folding seat makes every Corvair two cars in one. Just one quick flip and you increase the luggage space to 28.9 cubic feet. Just as simply, you're back to 6-passenger capacity. It's standard equipment... and extraordinarily practical.

Corvair does car-pool duty with the biggest and best of them. Going to work or school or out for the evening, you've got a genuine six seater. (Practically flat floor makes Corvair even more comfortable than many of the so-called big cars.) As for carting around piles of stuff instead of people, just look at Corvair's station-sedan load space with the rear seat folded. And when that's full you can start on the trunk.

Corvair, you see, is no ordinary compact car. No others are so versatile. Certainly no others are so ingeniously engineered (like having independent suspension at all four wheels, or an air-cooled rear engine that never needs water or antifreeze).

You just can't compare anything else coming out these days with a Corvair. The whole feel of a Corvair is different. It's so light-handed and agile and serenely stable on corners. So incredibly quick out of snow or soft mud.

Drive a Corvair soon—see if handling this one isn't a downright stimulating experience!

By JOE GREEN

Cincinnati Enquirer Reporter CINCINNATI (AP) — When the doctor told me I had cancer of the vocal cords I was more shocked than surprised. Now I realize I had suspected it all along.

The doctor looked at a pathologist's report of a biopsy made three days before at St. Elizabeth Hospital in Covington, Ky. "It showed 'positive' this time; I'm sorry," he said. "We have been worried about it from the very first."

That was last July 26. Five months before, my vocal cords had been "stripped" for a first biopsy. The report then was "negative."

But my luck hadn't held. "We've talked over this possibility before," the doctor went on. "Two things can be done. One is surgery; the other is X-ray treatments."

"Surgery seems to us to be the sure way. We excise the tumor by removing the entire larynx and the vocal cords."

He didn't mention the "do nothing about it" alternative—long suffering and death after a year or so. It took no great amount of courage to choose surgery.

It had started a few weeks before Christmas 1958. I developed a hoarseness which no amount of medication would clear up and at times I couldn't speak above a whisper.

When the hoarseness persisted, the first biopsy was made. Even after the negative finding, the throat condition, complicated by a nose infection, did not clear up entirely.

Four weeks in Florida did wonders. I went back to work in May. My elation was short lived. Constant use of my voice in telephone conversations, in interviews and in day-to-day associations battered the vocal cords. On July 18 they just conked out.

"You will have to give up something. Cases like this always call for sacrifice."

The doctor was telling me I would have to surrender my speech.

"Through speech therapy you will learn to talk again—almost as good as you do now," the doctor said. "Maybe your voice will be a little deeper, and you'll never sing in the opera, but you'll talk."

"I want to warn you, however, it will be no easy job. It probably will be the most frustrating and aggravating task you ever faced and it will take a long time to master it."

I received a briefing. "The larynx will be removed and the air that once passed through your throat from the lungs will be sealed off by surgery so it will pass in and out of an opening at the neck, right there. (The doctor placed a finger to a spot just above my breastbone.)

"This entrance will supply the body with oxygen; the air you breathe will have no value in production of speech."

"But, how will I blow my nose?" I wanted to know.

With no pressure from the lungs available, a sufferer from nose infections, hay fever or even a cold would face complications.

The doctor had no quick answer. "I hadn't thought of it," he grinned. "It's a good question, though. I guess you just wipe your nose."

He set the operation for Aug. 6—nine days away.

Late the afternoon of Aug. 5, the surgeon sat on a side of my hospital bed and talked calmly of the operation.

"There was a time when a total laryngectomy was unheard of, and many people died from cancer of the vocal cords," he explained to me and my wife. "It's done all the time now."

"More than 6,000 persons a year have the same operation in the United States. You don't need to go to New York or any other big city to have it done—surgeons do it successfully in this area every day."

"You should be up and out of here in 10 days or two weeks." Then he left. My wife went home.

I sat there a long time. It wasn't fear I felt. I just hated it. There was no alternative. I was resigned to surgery, having consoled myself that the tumor had been found in time.

Early next morning a nurse inserted a long tube into my left nostril and pushed it down into my stomach. It was an uncomfortable but not painful experience. I would be fed through the tube for "a few days," she said. As it turned out I ate my formula through that tube for 23 days.

Then came other nurses with hypodermics and pills and I wandered into that "never never" land where I dreamed languid, drowsy and unworried—even flippant.

Five hours later I woke up in the recovery room. I had no voice. I couldn't even groan.

Although thousands of serious operations are performed with routine success in the world's hospitals every day, there are cases when the unexpected happens—sometimes the unexplainable.

My case was one of the exceptions.

Everything had been going nicely for me on Aug. 12. A close friend who had been sitting with me for several hours had told me goodnight shortly before arrival of the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. special nurse.

Constant attention was demanded to keep my lungs clear of mucus, forced out by coughing or removed by an electric suction machine operated by the nurses.

A sensitivity complicated my case and caused me to cough constantly. Usually relief came only with a sedative.

It was when the nurse went for a sleep-inducing sedative that the unexpected happened. My coughing brought on a hemorrhage, and each cough increased the escape of blood.

What happened after that is to me a nightmare. Night nurses, supervisors and others teamed up to check the flow of life blood. Soon the surgeon came.

Then came a desperate battle to save my life.

At dawn, when the fog had cleared from my mind, I discovered I still was undergoing a blood transfusion and being fed oxygen through a mask.

The surgeon found that my hemorrhaging at that point in my recovery was rare indeed. He found only two other such cases on record.

During the weeks of recuperation, the curious and interested beset me with numerous questions: "How can you eat?" "Can you taste?" "How come you are smoking again?"

Normally, both food and air follow a common passage before they hit a fork in the road—then they take separate ways. This passage is called the pharynx and begins at the base of the tongue. At its lower end the food turns into one of the forks—the esophagus—and the air turns into the other—the larynx.

When the larynx is removed by surgery, the windpipe is severed and bent forward to the neck where it is sutured to the opening made just above the breastbone. Through this opening the laryngectomee must breathe. It leads directly into the windpipe. When a laryngectomee sneezes or coughs, he holds his handkerchief to this opening—not to the mouth and nose. When he gets accustomed to it, that is.

After the surgeon removes the larynx he ties off the space it occupied, setting up a wall between the windpipe and the esophagus. When the wall is healed, the patient can eat whatever he chooses—and taste it, too.

As for smoking—a habit banned in my case before the biopsy detected cancer—it can do no harm now, the doctors say. The smoke does not enter the throat or lungs.

That's why I resumed pipe smoking.

Post-laryngectomy speech has an advantage of sorts—one cannot use it in anger.

"Try not to lose your temper; no matter how good your voice may become, you won't be able to get out a sound," the booklet warns.

The booklet, "You Can Speak Again" by Charles R. Nelson, a speech therapist who underwent the same operation, is used as a text at the Cincinnati Speech and Hearing Center.

FEATURES

PLANTATION TO UNIVERSITY Transformation

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Forty years ago the 144-acre Louisiana State University campus, often described as one of the South's most beautiful, was a privately owned sweet potato and sugar cane plantation.

Obtaining it is a story which figure a farmers' conference, a graduate who couldn't collar a mule, a $500 check, a mortgage and the city's first "dry" barbecue.

The first step toward Louisiana's "Greater University" was taken in January, 1914. The Farmers' Demonstration Conference, meeting at LSU, when it was located on the present Capitol grounds, passed a resolution urging improved agricultural facilities "to meet more properly the increased demands of the farmers of the state."

NEED

President Thomas Duckett Boyd had long described "the urgent need for a large agricultural building to replace the scattered and dilapidated shacks," the "dangerous" agronomy building, and the need for a college farm for practical training.

Preoccupation with winning World War I pushed the University's needs into the background for a time.

Four years later an LSU alumnus, discussing practical education at a convention, charged that there was at least one LSU agricultural graduate who did not know "how to put a collar on a mule." This remark determined President Boyd to secure additional farmland.

There was none near the campus, which was circumscribed by the expanding city, the river and the University Lake.

South of Baton Rouge, however, was a sprawling plantation, owned by Dr. J. M. Williams of Natchez, Miss., which had long attracted the president. It extended about two miles along the eastern bank of the river and had a vast stretch of alluvial soil. About a mile back rose a plateau of completely different soil type, shaded with magnolias, oaks and walnuts.

IDEAL

It was an ideal location — adequate land with diversified soil types to train future farmers. The owner offered to sell for $82,000, but the University didn't have $82,000.

Acting on intuition — or faith — President Boyd wrote a personal check of $500 for a 60-day option, while Representative Horace Wilkinson of West Baton Rouge Parish introduced an appropriations bill into the legislature "for the purchase of land for a demonstration farm."

To create interest, the University held a barbecue on the Indian mounds at the plantation on May 22, 1915.

Speeches were made concerning the need for the property. The LSU band and glee club performed. Barbecue, buttermilk, sweet milk and coffee were served by uniformed cadets and coeds.

(The newspapers noted that "Significance may have been attached to the fact it was the first dry barbecue in the history of Baton Rouge." These were pre-prohibition days.)

When Governor Ruffin G. Pleasant promised to find the money, passage of the bill was virtually assured. But the 60-day option was fast expiring.

To save the tract for the University, a personal mortgage and borrowed the purchase price. These men were Thomas W. Atkinson, Robert A. Hart, D. M. Raymond, J. Allen Dougherty, S. J. Gianelloni, W. R. Dodson, O. B. Steele, J. H. Rubenstein, and Benjamin B. Taylor.

On May 28 the bill passed the house and three days later the Senate. The property was transferred to LSU on August 13.

Two events in 1919 gave impetus to the development of the plantation. During the Farmers' Short Course that summer a movement was begun to conduct an educational campaign throughout the state for the development of a "Greater Agricultural College."

That fall John M. Parker became a candidate for governor on a platform which included development of the "Greater Agricultural College" and levying of a two per cent severance tax on natural resources for its support.

TEAM

When he was elected, an inspection team was sent to leading colleges of the Middle West. Their recommendations — that the state ought to have an agricultural college second to none; that it should not be separated from the university; and that it should be financed by a one mill state-wide tax — determined that the "Greater Agricultural College" should become a "Greater University."

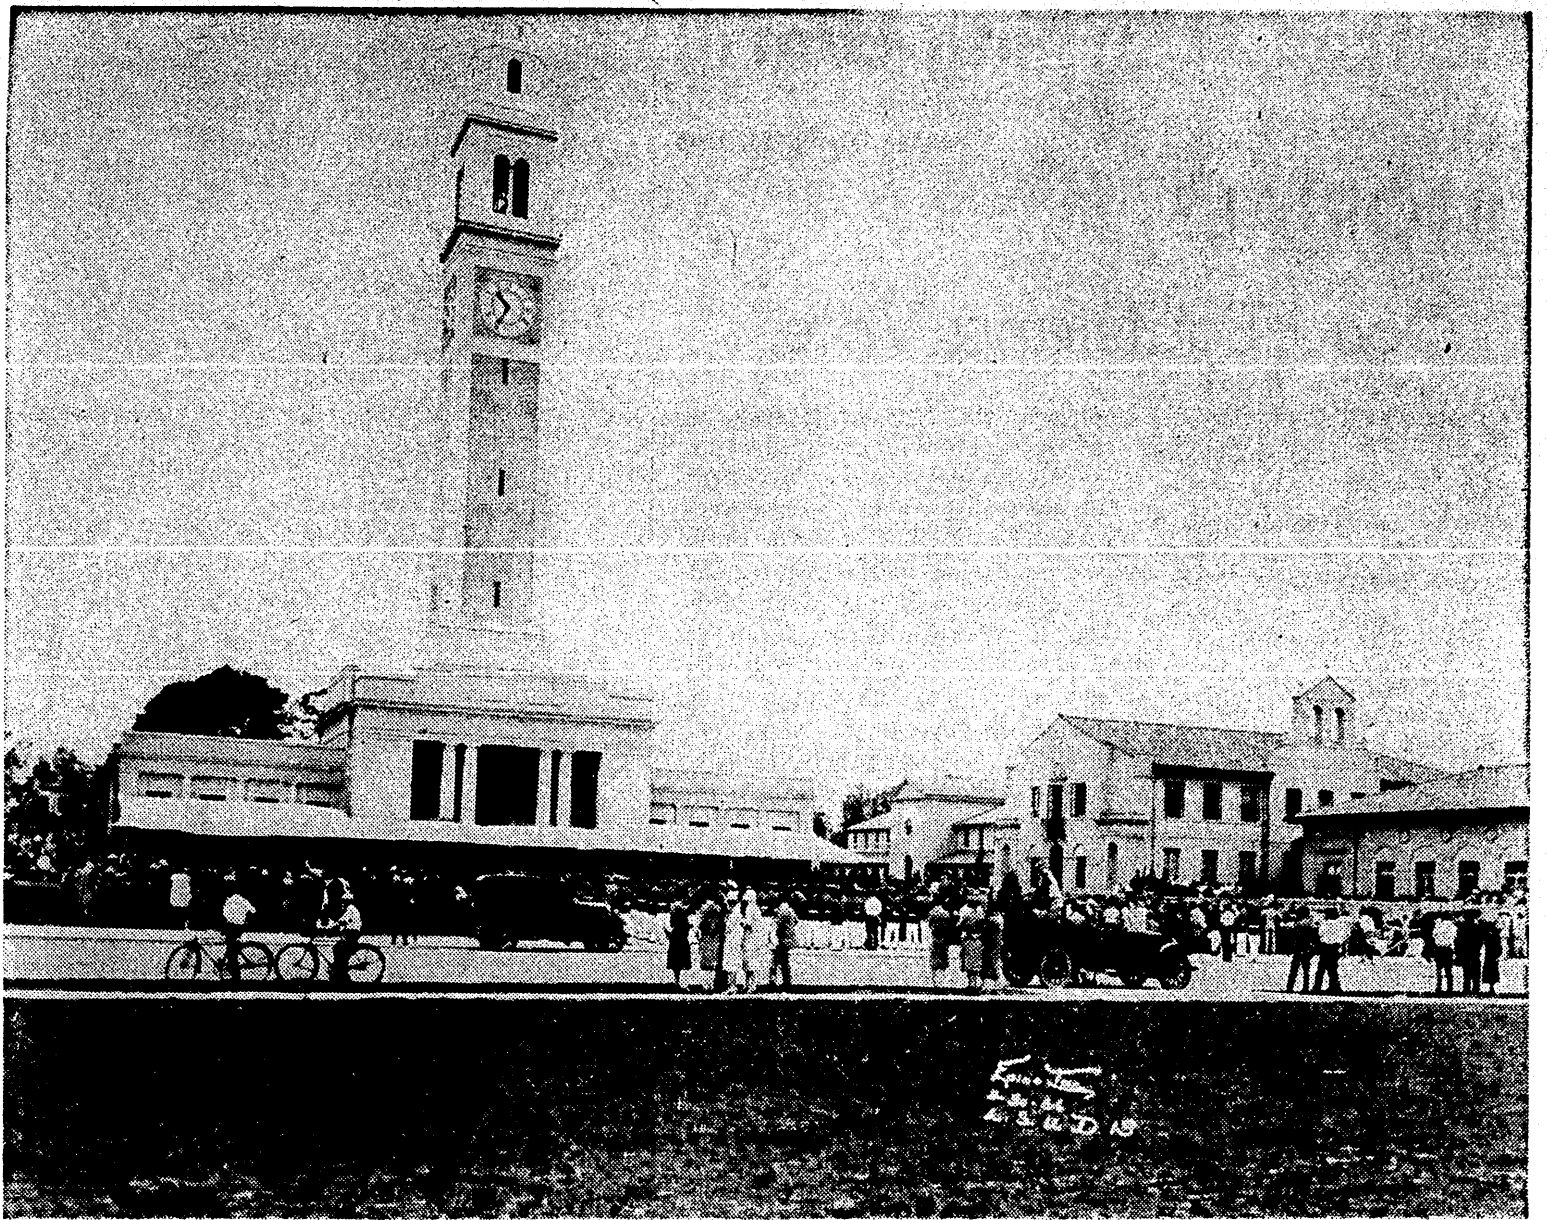

On Thursday, March 29, 1922, the first spadeful of dirt was turned by Governor John M. Parker and construction started on the dairy barn.

Architect for his master plan was Theodore C. Link of St. Louis, who selected the graceful Italian Renaissance architectural style because of its suitability to Louisiana's climate and cultural heritage.

Included in the original building program were the Memorial Tower, Thomas D. Boyd, David Boyd, Foster, Peabody, Prescott, Stubbs, Audubon, Atkinson Halls, the Hill Memorial Building, Dodson Auditorium, Coates Chemical Laboratories, engineering laboratories and shops, the President's and commandant's residence, sugar mill, powerhouse, warehouse, three barns, the poultry farm, the stadium, the Pentagon barracks, and the Greek Theater.

Classes were first held at the new site in 1925 and the campus was dedicated at a three-day ceremony beginning on the anniversary of Louisiana's admission to the Union, April 30, 1926 and attended by 3500 visitors.

What had begun as a frustrating attempt to get a demonstration farm ended in not only a Greater Agricultural College, but also a Greater University.

LSU'S PRESENT CAMPUS, on which construction was begun in 1922, was dedicated at a three-day ceremony beginning April 30, 1926. Once a privately owned sweet potato and sugar cane plantation, the campus was built following a "Greater University" movement which began in 1914.

IMPOVERISHED SETTING

School In The Hills

By JOE CREASON
MANCHESTER, Ky. (AP) — This is a rubber-tired, air-conditioned age when sometimes a person may conclude that most of the elements associated closest with everyday life—education included—are as modern as tomorrow.

However, in the remote, pinched valleys of parts of mountainous eastern Kentucky, some schools do not have running water, indoor well-equipped playgrounds, lunchrooms, central heating and so many of the latter-day conveniences generally held to be part and parcel of education in this sophisticated day.

Such a school is Little Bullskin, which mirrors the generally impoverished condition of the area it serves.

NAME

Little Bullskin, named for the creek beside which it is perched, is a one-room, one-teacher school located in the hill country north-east of this county seat. The land in that part of Clay County is steep, the soil is thin and stony.

The road past Little Bullskin is dirt, and deep ruts have been chewed into it, making it all but impassable certain seasons of the year.

The frame school building was erected more than 30 years ago, and today it has an enrollment of 25 children in the first through sixth grades. All the children walk, some of them nearly three miles, to school.

Large cracks have developed around the one door, the windows and in the warped floor. The desks which bear the deep-carved initials of former generations, are arranged like spokes in a wheel, with the big, pot-bellied heating stove in the center of the room as the hub.

Little Bullskin not only does not have indoor water; it doesn't even have a well or cistern or spring. All water must be brought from the nearest house, about an eighth of a mile away.

The only flat ground on school property is a plot that slopes down to the creek. For years this has been used as a playground. The school's one modern convenience is electricity.

Although free lunch commodities from the federal government's surplus food list are badly needed, Little Bullskin isn't eligible to receive them because the county cannot provide the separate lunchroom building and the paid cook required.

Aside from the educational cake frosting which time and circumstances have denied them, the students of Little Bullskin are no different from 6-to-12-year-olds anywhere. They are just as bright-eyed and enthusiastic, as anxious for recess and, other factors being equal, as quick to learn as boys and girls who attend the most modern elementary school.

It has two things that would be a credit to any school—a dedicated teacher and far-away friends.

The teacher is Mrs. Cord D. Wilson, a graduate of Union College who grew up in Clay County.

The far-away friends are members of the Louisville Pilot Club, a service organization of professional women, which more or less adopted Little Bullskin School and its pupils two years ago.

LIVES NEAR

Mrs. Wilson, who lives within walking distance, was born to be a schoolteacher. She has the patience of a prophet, she knows the background of the children and goes out of her way to keep them from losing—even in the face of present adversity—the fierce pride that is the mark of mountain people.

When she receives free pencils and paper, items in exceedingly short supply at Little Bullskin, she makes the children do something extra to get them—learn a Bible verse, turn in a particularly good spelling assignment.

"I want them to work for what they get," she explains. "I don't want them ever to think they can get anything without working for it."

Little Bullskin now has a hot lunch program, thanks to the Pilot Club.

At regular intervals, Pilot Club members mail big batches of food items with which Mrs. Wilson is able to set a hot, if modest, noon meal before the children.

The food commodities are just part of the help the Louisville women have given the school since they learned of it through Save the Child Federation, a national organization.

They have equipped the playground with a basketball goal and ball, horseshoes and a football. They have provided reference books, encyclopedias and fiction, toilet tissue, soap and paper towels, teaching aids such as maps and globes, and a new stove.

THE JOYS OF A BIG pancake feed were unmarred for little David Ferris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ferris of Lawton, Okla., when he accidentally knocked over a glass of milk. He wasn't even scolded, and the friendly hosts at the downtown Kiwanis-sponsored event replaced the empty glass with a full one. (AP Wirephoto)

Course Of Headaches

ACCRA, Ghana (UPI) — The new nation of Ghana is discovering that a neutralist course in world politics can produce its quota of headaches.

Anxious to promote trade ties with the Communist bloc the African state invited East Germany to stage an industrial exhibition in Accra.

Equally anxious to maintain friendly relations with the West, it invited a government delegation from the West German state of Hesse to make a seven-day tour of Ghana.

It just so happened that the delegations from opposing sides of Germany hit town practically simultaneously.

To complicate matters, 14 East German trade unionists, technicians and journalists also turned up as guests of Ghana's trade union congress.

The government was faced with a delicate problem of protocol. When the East Germans, headed by Deputy Minister of Foreign Trade Carl Eckloff, arrived last Wednesday, the highest ranking Ghanaian present was the chief of protocol, E. W. Sam.

Less than 48 hours later, however, one of the key men in Premier Kwame Nkrumah's cabinet, Finance Minister K. A. Gbedemah, was at the airport welcoming Georg Zinn, president of Hesse, and his six-man delegation.

Naturally the East German trade fair is taking the publicity limelight but newspapers are doing their best to redress the balance.

The Ghana Times, which supports Nkrumah, devoted to its front page story on the opening of the East German exhibition—and directly underneath placed a four-column picture of Premier Nkrumah entertaining the West Germans at a cocktail party.

This situation highly intrigued the West Germans, who also had their own problems.

The delegation was extremely interested in seeing what type of goods East Germany offered Ghana, but obviously was unable to visit the trade fair owing to official status.

So two non-official members of the party were chosen to make an incognito tour of the exhibits. Meanwhile, the trade union delegation caused an unexpected headache. Normally the fashionable Ambassador Hotel where its members were staying flies the national flag of any visiting deputation.

At the last minute the hotel discovered, to its horror, that it had no East German flag.

The management decided to do what it thought was the next best thing—it flew the West German flag instead.

Return Of Butcher

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
NEW YORK (AP) — Remember old Schultz, your friendly neighborhood butcher in the long while apron?

Schultz and thousands of neighborhood butchers like him passed from the American scene just before World War II, as the big supermarket wave spread across the country.

He's gone all right. But not for good.

In the "supermarket of the 70s", as envisioned by a top industrial design firm, old Schultz will be back at the same old stand, wielding his meat cleaver, telling you "what's good today," maybe even throwing in those scraps for the dog.

It took a battery of sociologists, psychologists, economists, public opinion pollsters, market analysts and other specialists to bring the old corner butcher back out of the past and plunk him down squarely in tomorrow's supermarket.

In a yearlong study commissioned by the Supermarket Institute, which represents 70 per cent of the nation's grocery chains, the Raymond Loewy Corp. took a close look at 150 stores in 15 states before blueprinting the store of the future.

The researchers found what most housewives have known all along: that the modern supermarket, despite its one-stop shopping conveniences, has not inspired the kind of customer loyalty that existed in the old neighborhood store. Ringing a bell and waiting at a tiny window for the butcher to appear is no substitute for watching old Schultz work while playing him with questions about which is the best cut and how to go about, cooking it.

In the course of the survey, psychologist Dr. Herbert Krugman gave housewives a blank piece of paper and asked them to draw their idea of the supermarket of the future. Nine out of 10 gave the most space to the meat department.

Good Louisiana Vote

For those who believe that democracy means government of the people by the people for the people, the second state primary election in January, was encouraging. Louisiana voters set at least a 20-year record in the percentage of registered voters who cast ballots in that election.

Figures showing this to be true were supplied by the Public Affairs Research Council of Louisiana. This non-partisan research organization reported that 80.7 per cent of registered Democrats voted in the second primary and that 79.8 per cent of all registered voters cast ballots.

Before each election it is customary for candidates for office, newspapers and various organizations to call for a high percentage vote by the citizenship. Regardless of who their favorite candidates are, the registered voters are told that casting their ballots is of the utmost importance.

There are two groups which dissent from this commonly accepted viewpoint. One is the group which favors balloting only by the intelligentsia, contending those of lesser education do not have sense enough to vote, and the other is composed of those who think that refusing to vote is an effective way of expressing disapproval of all candidates. Neither of these groups represents logical American democratic thinking.

Those who favor voting only by the highly educated are drifting away from government by the people for the people. They want to set up an intellectual aristocracy, which inevitably would drift into an oligarchic form of government, which means government by a few. Any attempt to restrict voting by educational standards, other than the ability to cast a ballot without assistance, is a step in that direction.

Some advocates of high educational standards for voting realize what it means. They want to replace democracy, or government by the people, with government by an intellectual aristocracy. Others do not realize where such a course would lead us but honestly think we might get better government by allowing only the highly educated to vote. History has not proved this to be true, for it ends democracy and substitutes other forms of government which deprive the people of their freedom.

The second group, which merely expresses disapproval of all candidates by refusing to vote, is less dangerous than the first but it accomplishes little, if any, good.

On the theory that no two things in this world, including candidates, are exactly alike we must accept the idea that one candidate is either worse or better than the other. In this case, voting for the lesser of two evils must be better than not voting.

At any rate, a high percentage of the Louisiana citizenry is still democratic enough to believe that voting is the most effective way to continue our system of government by the people. As stated before, the percentage in the second state primary was the best in at least 20 years. That speaks well for the democratic trend in Louisiana.

The percentage of votes cast by the different Louisiana parishes in the second primary, in which Jimmie H. Davis defeated LeSeseps S. Morrison for governor by obtaining 54.1 per cent of the votes, is of interest. The percentage ranged from 92.5 in East Feliciana to 70.1 in Caddo. Ouachita was just about half way down the line in parish by parish percentage but was slightly above the state percentage as a whole. Ouachita's percentage was 81.8 against the state's 80.7 of registered Democratic voters.

Figures compiled by the Public Affairs Research Council should stimulate those parishes with low percentages to work for greater democracy by getting greater voter participation.

Sauce For The Gander

Cities lying within the districts of congressmen who are crying the loudest for civil rights legislation do not seem to share the eagerness possessed by their representatives for integration. They appear to shun it with about the same degree of unanimity as do southern cities.

Representative John Bell Williams is a Democratic member of congress from Mississippi, the state which enjoys the distinction of being the most anti-integration of the entire United States.

Testing the willingness of cities to embrace the tenets of their integrationist congressmen, Representative Williams queried 11 cities in districts of congressmen supporting civil rights measures.

He asked Bozeman, Mont., and 10 other cities about their willingness to accept 150 Negro families as residents and to integrate their children into white schools. Williams got no reply from nine cities, including Bozeman.

The Bozeman city commissioners considered the query and issued this statement:

"The city administration understands the problems of the Negro. However, handling 150 families of any race would be impossible because of inadequate housing facilities and employment.

"The city administration does not intend to allow Bozeman to be used as a pawn in the present civil rights fight."

By their own words, the Bozeman bosses understand the Negro problem but they don't want it. Apparently, they want the south to handle the problem but want congress to tell it how. The south is more willing to handle the problem than are other areas but prefers to use its own judgment.

Morrison Development

Two phases of the announcement that New Orleans Mayor LeSeseps Morrison's forces in the Louisiana house of representatives will back for speaker any candidate favored by incoming Governor Jimmie Davis are unsavory.

In the first place, there should be no Morrison forces in the legislature, since he is not a member of that body and has no more right to attempt to set up a bloc than does any other citizen of the state: We won't want New Orleans or its mayor to try to run the state.

In the second place, any attempt to set up a bloc vote either for or against the person who might be supported by Governor - Nominee Davis would be a political move not in keeping with the democratic spirit which should prevail in the legislature.

House Speaker Robert Angelle is actively seeking the post again. He has stated that the governor-nominee has told him he would not intervene in the race.

Governor-Nominee Davis has let it be known on numerous occasions that he has no plans for trying to assume a dictatorship or to take control of the legislature. He has said he wants to fill the function of governor and wants the legislators to perform their own functions. This is an admirable position.

It is thus even more unbecoming for the New Orleans mayor to attempt to set up any sort of control or bloc in the legislature.

Praise From The Devil

'Revolution,' Castro's Official Paper, Lauds Herbert Matthews, As Great North American

The official paper of Castro, "Revolution," on January 25, 1960, praised Herbert Matthews, Latin American expert of "The New York Times," as "a great North American." I rise to Herbert Matthews' defense. He did not, after all, tell Fidel Castro to behave like a beast!

"What is impressive about Matthews' recent act in our defense is the special circumstance under which it occurred. He certainly did not face the biased opinion of a group of foreigners, unable perhaps to understand us and who, in the long run, have no reason to love us other than for the satisfaction of their immediate needs. He confronted with the undeniable truth a deserter who first saw the light of the sun on these Cuban shores and went abroad to turn against us by so many inches of space in the 'Miami Herald' and to brazenly discredit us on the television screen, betraying his country in a shameful alliance with vindictive criminals and unscrupulous businessmen."

Further, "Revolution" said: "While Matthews has had a warm place in our hearts for some time and while on more than one occasion we have feared that those who monopolize everything in his country, from newspapers to steel, from buying people's dignity to the right to dispose, every now and then, of millions of lives with which to wage wars to uphold their sovereignty, would embitter him against us and we would lose him, it is with this last gesture of his that our gratitude has grown to great proportions."

The language of this article is mindful of "Pravda" and "Izvestia" back in the earliest days of the Bolshevik Revolution. It is mindful of the praise for John Reed and Big Bill Hayward. Since those days, the Russian Communists have forgotten the word, Bolshevik, and they do not heap crumbs of praise upon those aliens who see in them perfection which they know they do not possess. Soon we shall read a "Revolution" article praising Jack Paar as a great philosopher because he "senses" the goodness of the Cuban soul.

The Cuban newspaper says: "To such factions in the United States is due the ill will which his North Americans at every point in the world where one takes their dollars without giving one's heart in exchange. "Far be it from us to rise up against them. It is with such deceived people that we shake hands as with all peoples, regardless of how much those who distort reality try to make enemies of us."

"It is, moreover, such people that we greet every day in the form of thousands of white and black, Catholic and Presbyterian tourists who . . . and like Herbert Matthews, do more for the solidarity of all men than all the millions from all mutual-aid programs and from all inter-American banks."

What the Castries are doing obviously is to irritate the American people and the Congress to such a pitch that we shall, in anger, blow them into the Caribbean. When the time comes, we shall cut off the sugar quota and the sugar subsidy, for obviously it makes no sense to assist such a country. If Castro finds his country enslaved by our generosity, he has the option of not accepting either the enslavement or the generosity.

As for the extraordinary praise for Herbert Matthews of "The New York Times," this is unfortunate for Matthews because it raises a question which Senator Fulbright ought immediately to investigate. Why was Herbert Matthews called in by the State Department to brief Earl E.T. Smith on Cuba when Smith was appointed to be our ambassador to that country? As things have turned out, was Matthews' judgment of the Castro revolution correct from the standpoint of the United States? Does not this official article give the impression that Matthews' attitude was and is partisan? Read this from the "Revolution" article:

"Heroic was his climb of the mountains of Oriente, where he risked danger of ambush by Batista's troops, in order to proclaim to the world in truthful testimony and with his accurate camera that the hero from the (yacht) 'Gramma' had not died, peering among people enveloped in a blockade of hatred and discredit. He was heroic three days ago when he had to stir us up against some of our people."

RIGHT HAND TURNS
Monroe, La.

To The Editor:

Why in the heck is it that so many of our local people drive up to an intersection and sit there waiting for a green light before starting, when they are going to turn right???

We have had a city ordinance for over two years allowing us to turn right on all red lights (except certain one way streets) after first stopping and seeing that it is safe to proceed.

Furthermore, there have been several news stories as well as police notices calling the ordinance to our attention and requesting us to make use of it for the purpose of speeding up the flow of traffic.

Here's hoping that our motoring public will make more use of this very convenient arrangement.

FAIRBANKS SCHOOL
Fairbanks, La.

To The Editor:

In view of the recent closing of the Fairbanks Grammar School, I have this to say, which may be of public interest.

First, I'd like to say that in January, 1959, the Fairbanks P.T.A. had as a guest Mr. C. G. Wall, president of the Ouachita Parish School Board. As a panel questioner he was asked of the possibility of closing it. He said there was no reason to worry as long as the school attendance was about what it was at that time and provided the parents wanted the school.

What better proof is needed that the school is wanted than the letter written by Mr. C. S. Drumm, ward 1 school board member, asking that the school be kept open? This letter was signed by both parents of every child attending the school.

It was stated that the reason for closing the school was an economic measure. This seems hard to believe, since a local gas company furnishes free natural gas and free water. Until very recently it also furnished free electricity. The Fairbanks P.T.A., on the other hand, has provided a good piano, fans, shrubbery and numerous other things for the school and school yard. When considering the above facts, it is hard, indeed, to believe that the "cost per pupil" is so very much larger than in other very small schools.

Maybe Mr. J. H. Trousdale, Jr. was right when he mentioned the fact that the school board had talked of closing this small school to supplement the Sterling School when some of the present grades at Sterling will be moved into the new high school. Mr. Wall, however, denied that this was the reason the school was being closed.

Would you, the public, prefer your six and seven year old children to ride a bus 16 or 20 miles in freezing weather with a vacant school within a mile or two of home or do you think the school board should consider the small children more and do everything possible to keep the school open?

A FAIRBANKS PARENT.

RHONDA'S BIRTHDAY
Calhoun, La.

To The Editor:

I enjoy very much the feature stories about the beautiful and interesting things in our State, also the letters from citizens that have an interest in the improvement of our community. I also appreciate the fact that our neighbors have truly proved "good samaritans" to anyone in need. What I am writing you about is probably a little different from most of your letters but I hope you will see fit to mention it.

Often we are too busy with the cares of daily living to stop and thank God for our health and strength, but after reading this I'm sure we can realize that we are BLESSED more than our share. The little girl that has made me realize this so much is Rhonda Sims, who will celebrate or I should say pass, her fifteenth birthday Sunday, March 13. For teens birthdays are very important occasions but this will be the second one Rhonda has known nothing about.

Rhonda was a ray of sunshine in the lives of those she came in contact with. She attended church regularly and blessed people with playing the piano and singing. In school she was talented and intelligent, well liked by teachers as well as her classmates, although she was very handicapped. When only about 18 months old she had what doctors thought an impossible case of Pilo. She wasn't able to wear shoes as most of us but often stumbled and fell in her heavy braces, but her courage and determination seemed to radiate to others. I believe her mother had just purchased her first real pair of shoes but she never got to wear them because on October 17, 1958 fate seemed to come her way again. There was an accident and Rhonda's head was crushed with glass as a mule hit the car window. Again, as through her many operations for Pilo, the doctor's said there was no hope. However her courage and her parent's faith in God wasn't shattered. After many weeks in St. Francis then on to New Orleans for Head Specialist to operate she was sent home unable to move or speak. She has to be fed thru a tube in the stomach, a special formula, as she could not swallow. At times it has seemed that hope was gone. Once her blood pressure dropped so low the second trip to New Orleans was cancelled. Then children around had whooping cough and Rhonda got that. She had not before been able to cough or sneeze, but by keeping her head lowered she was able to get rid of the fluid and before the many weeks were passed she was able to cough. Since her last birthday she has shown encouraging improvement.

Her color has returned to normal, her hair has grown back out, she can move her hands, arms and feet slightly and turn her head a bit. When her mother or dad talks to her she bats her eyes and sometimes grunts. A few times she has delighted them with a chuckle or smile. When something displeases her she lets them know by gritting her teeth. Even in this state Rhonda seems to radiate courage because she has certainly put up a brilliant fight. Nurses and visitors still look at her and shake their head but we are looking forward and trusting God for the day she will again speak.

Anyone can understand that Rhonda's family is under a great physical and financial burden. Friends and neighbors have been very kind to help in many ways. To mention one Mr. O'Neal of Choudrant has supplied them with butane without any charges. Only with help like this and prayers of many Christians could they have gone on. Mrs. Sims has stayed by the bedside night and day turning Rhonda and massaging her helpless body every two hours. She never rests a full night because feeding and turning has to be done then. We have visited her when she herself was so sick she could hardly stand yet she said it was only a pleasure to wait on Rhonda. Through this winter she has had to go at all hours of the night and warm water because she didn't have the convenience of a bath or hot water heater. Without a sacrifice on our part many of us could pitch in. Just a few small donations would mean so much. Last summer Rhonda did not get the benefit of the warm sun but with an outdoor chaise she could be moved out and enjoy it. I am sure she would certainly say thank you if she could only speak.

Yours truly,

Mrs. Lawrence Valley

PUBLICITY COMMENTED

Monroe, La.

To The Editor:

The excellent publicity in announcing the Day in Court, a joint project of General Federation of Women's Clubs and the National Council of Juvenile Judges, held in Monroe March 2 is to be commended.

The printed word is as much the "staff of life" as the physical efforts of those concerned in a community project and its promotion.

To illustrate what I mean, Day in Court received three short articles (two of these articles appeared in "Jes' Ramblin'" column of briefs and one news article) which were published in the space of three weeks supported by three calendar notations on the club page. This publicity not only headline streamer kind of sensational news. This was community information that announced clubwomen were being offered by Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs an educational opportunity.

To further illustrate how important printed news stories of community interests can be, the morning scheduled for Day in Court was climatically one of the worst of the year. The ice and rain did not deter 27 clubs and organizations from sending representatives or other fifth congressional district parish organizations who sent their representatives. This interest to know more about juvenile courts and to become better acquainted with the facilities and personnel available was not by curiosity seekers, but by women who will now go back to their organizations and report. In looking over those organizations represented now by word of mouth with these representatives tell better than 800 other women what they learned. Day in Court received no mention in the News-Star-World papers the importance of this educational program would have been affected. The only regret is that this joint project sponsored by the National Council of Juvenile Judges and General Federation of Women's Clubs was not reported at the time of the program due in all probability to the inclement day.

I hope I have been able to relate adequately why local interests seek newspaper support. The importance of the printed word is recognized and appreciated by not only those who seek newspaper support but also by those many others who are interested. A newspaper that is sensitive to community needs and community interests is a newspaper that serves its readers.

Leader Says Gap Between Broadway, Concert Wide

NEW YORK (AP) — "The gap between the music of the Broadway theater and the long-hair concert hall," said Franz Allers, "is much bigger than it should be."

It's a subject close to Allers' heart, and who could be better informed? He has worked both sides of the fence. For "My Fair Lady's" full four years he has been conductor of that fantastically successful musical, and yet his entire background is long-hair.

Czech-born Allers may be, as he said, "a happy guy," and indeed he acts it when he talks, but he is also a dedicated one. And he worries about several gaps, not only between popular and classical but also, for instance, between the entire contemporary music and contemporary music all across the board.

He attended a New York City Ballet performance recently, and recalled what fresh new music was played for those dancers and that audience, and how naturally it was accepted. "Maybe the ballet audience is a younger one," he conceded — he used to conduct Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo. "And that younger audience is ready to be entertained artistically rather than just entertained, period."

"Every now and then you realize there is a receptive modern audience out there somewhere. Consider Aaron Copland, Arthur Honegger and Virgil Thomson, among other contemporaries, who have written for the movies. The movies were successes, and not in spite of the modern compositions, either."

"And it isn't only the Broadway audience that does not get contemporary music. Our representative operatic stage, the Metropolitan, is just as far behind. Alban Berg's 'Wozzeck' was more than a quarter century old before Met audiences heard it. Stravinsky's 'Rake's Progress' didn't sell after two or three performances. You can't blame management for this. The distance between what the public was brought up on and what the modernist composers want to give it this minute is too great."

"It's the same in modern art. Modernism is not questioned at all in functional design, but put on an exhibition of modern art and the audience is only a small fraction of the countless people who never recoil from the same design principles applied to a vacuum cleaner or a stove."

"It's a matter of money. The main, primary gap is due to the economics of the theater, to the incredibly rising costs. All entertainment is geared to the long run, to the big audience."

Allers paused suddenly — was he being too controversial, he wondered in alarm. At least it wouldn't be controversial, he said, to report how much he enjoyed conducting "My Fair Lady" and in general the other works of the team of Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe: "Brigadoon" and "Paint Your Wagon." He may be going to Russia with the present company's tour. He anticipates with the greatest pleasure conducting the new Lerner-Loewe musical in the works, from T. H. White's "The Once and Future King."

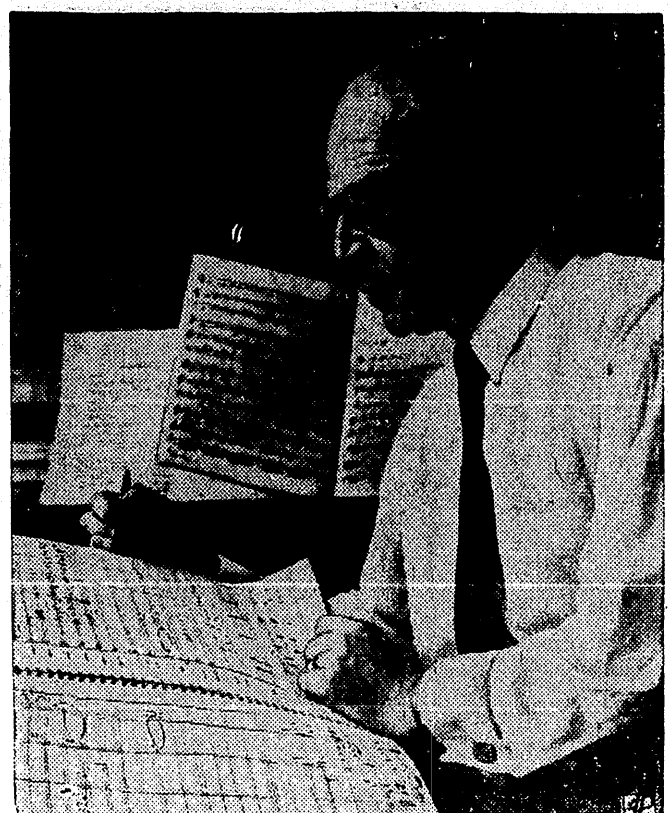

"Yes, I would like to have my own symphony," he acknowledged. "But I can live happily with my life as it is. I conduct eight times a week regularly. I do TV, and opera, and symphony. I have had three conducting tours in Germany in the last four years. I get away here to other assignments with American orchestras. Thus I make myself useful, which is what I really want."

Is it tiring to conduct the same thing so much so long? "There is no hackneyed piece of music," he replied. "There is only a hackneyed performance. Consider a 'celist: with his small repertoire he must have played any one of several pieces more times than I've conducted this musical. Does he sound tired? Neither does the 'Fair Lady' company."

I agreed — the choruses were lively, the orchestra alert, and everybody on his toes.

"I can't tell you how proud I am of my gang," said Allers. "Some of the first chairs are occupied by men from leading symphony orchestras. We rehearse every week. We experiment with new effects, but carefully, for the danger is that we become mannered. We are busy fitting a new man, Michael Allinson, into the role of Henry Higgins, the male lead, and fitting the company to him."

"Of course, there is one problem that a conductor doesn't have on a concert platform. Here my 30 musicians are strung out in a thin line all across the front of the theater. The men over on the right would like to hear what the men way over on the left are playing, but they can't. So I have to give them a very clear beat. They respond, too. They play against each other, with the same intimacy as the musicians in a chamber orchestra."

KNOWS BOTH SIDES: Franz Allers, shown here working in his studio, says there's too great a gap between the music of Broadway and the concert stage.

OPERA TEMPERAMENT

Tenor Rushes Out, Cuffs Patron Who Applauds Soprano

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—An enraged singer rushed from the opera stage in Naples the other day to strike a blow for equality of men — well, at least of tenors.

In cuffing a patron who had been applauding only the soprano with shouts of "brava solo!" Franco Corelli re-established the right of tenors to temperance.

He has quitted, for while perhaps, fears that young music lovers are growing up in a Callas age—a time in which the Greek-American diva is setting the pace for caprice and leaving male singers to simmer in their own self-pity.

Perhaps that old maxim, "Conceit is God's gift to tenors," has real meaning today. But some knowledgeable people believe that opera temperament—in any register—is declining.

With Corelli signed by New York's Metropolitan Opera Co. for next season, the danger yet may be averted.

If only Maria Callas were to return, trailing crowds of progress servers, irate impresarios, leading rivals and abject admirers a whole new era of opera temperament might be unleashed on the American continent.

Everybody knows that most opera singers are kind, sensible, orderly people, with no more than their fair share of harmless idiosyncrasies. Only a few hypersensitive prima donnas of both sexes have made bitter quarrels and jealous feuds standard equipment for the opera house.

"The entire legend is not very well watered by the modern age," says Erich Leinsdorf, conductor and consultant to the Met on matters of artistic taste. "With the whole businesslike atmosphere that prevails everywhere today, there's less temperament in opera."

Yet, he concedes, opera still has its terrible-tempered stars who can throw a tantrum. "Most of them are nasty children of 40, and they aren't funny at all," he says.

The struggle still goes on between singer and conductor to control the orchestra's tempo. The soprano sometimes adroitly maneuvers the tenor so that his back is to the audience for his big aria.

But for really great exercises in temperament you have to go back a little way, to when opera stars were tremendous personages.

Today the Met's manager, Rudolf Bing, takes care of each grievance as an individual case. One of his famous predecessors, Giulio Gatti-Casazza, had a blanket policy: He would hear the singer out, then walk away and leave him sputtering.

Once during a rehearsal of "Donizetti's" opera about a lady goatherd, Gatti was forced to listen at length to the soprano, then the tenor and then the Baritone. Standing by quietly through the harangue was a goat used in the scene. As Gatti walked off, with the performers still protesting, he was heard to say to the goat: "You are the intelligent one of this stage."

Conductors, dedicated to making an artistic entity out of the many parts of an opera, frequently clash with singers who want the production centered on them.

Arturo Toscanini, the fiery Italian maestro, would brook no opposition. Once he told the lovely Geraldine Farrar precisely what she should and should not do in a scene. She reacted to him that after all she was a star. Toscanini looked upward and pronounced: "I know only the stars in heaven."

The capriciousness of prima donnas has been known to encompass even their favorite composers. About a century ago Sophie Cruvelli of the Paris Opera set something of a record.

A few days before the premiere of Giuseppe Verdi's "Il Trovatore," Sophie disappeared. Police couldn't find her. Verdi announced he was ready to withdraw the opera. For weeks public sentiment raged against her. Suddenly she reappeared. She had been on a trial honeymoon with a baron whom she married afterward. As she put it airily, could she help it if the persons who were supposed to have notified the management forgot?

One of the classic rivalries of yesteryear existed between Etelka Gerster, a famous Hungarian singer, and Adelina Patti, called "La Divina Adelina" by her admirers and "that little devil" by Verdi.

Everything that happened to Patti she ascribed to the malevolence of her rival. When a slight earthquake interrupted her singing in San Francisco, Patti crossed herself and murmured "Gerster."

Once when Patti was singing "Home, Sweet Home" in a concert, the elderly but spry governor of Missouri was so carried away he leaped to the stage and kissed her. When it was duly reported to Gerster, the Hungarian sniffed: "Why speak about it? There's nothing wrong in a man kissing a woman old enough to be his mother."

Soprano vs. soprano has a kind of girlish guilelessness however, compared with the enmity that can flourish between soprano and tenor. When Maria Jeriza thought Beniamino Gigli was stealing curtain calls from her at the Met several decades ago, she kicked his shins as the gold curtain fell. He slapped her. Sent back out for a solo bow, she held her hand against her cheek and sobbed to the audience: "Gigli, he has not been nice to me."

But even in other eras some singers refused to be bothered by professional jealousies, or onstage mishaps. Leo Slezak was to make his entrance as Lohengrin when his swan-drawn conveyance started too soon and crossed the stage without him. Another tenor might have raged fortissimo and stalked off, but Slezak calmly turned to a stagehand and asked: "When does the next swan leave?"

There was little fiction added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library during the past week, but there is a most interesting collection of non-fiction titles. Janice Holt Giles, who has written most interestingly of frontier and pioneer settlers of our country, has a new title which will appeal especially to young men. It is called "Johnny Osage" and is a most exciting book. A new and exciting mystery story is "Shivering Mountain" by Somers. An interesting addition to our Louisiana collection which came from an anonymous donor in Baton Rouge is "Sugar Petiole" by Mildred L. McVea. It is a fascinating account of life in the past century in our state. Another lovely book added to our collection this week was "Hawaii" by James A. Michener. We already had several copies of the book, but we were happy to have another, for the demand is great.

In the non-fiction field there is something of interest for every reader. "The Federal Reserve System" by Herbert V. Prochnow will be of interest to students in this field. An interesting publication for the information of police jurors of Louisiana was recently released by the P.A.R. It is a compilation of the laws under which police jurors operate. Our police jury presented a copy to the library and we were happy to have it.

Another title which was a gift to the library was intended especially for young people. It is "Magruder's American Government". A friend purchased two copies for our collection. With all of the present discussion about controlled population, a most timely book is "Babies by Choice or by Chance" by Alan P. Guttmacher. With heart disease the nation's number one killer, many readers will be interested in "Your Heart" by H. M. Marvin. It is an interesting and valuable book. Cookbooks are extremely popular with the library patrons. A lovely new one is "Helen Corbitt's Cookbook," which contains a fascinating collection of recipes for good cooking. People who sew will certainly want to Cookbooks are extremely popular with the library patrons. A lovely new one is "Helen Corbitt's Cookbook," which contains a fascinating collection of recipes for good cooking. People who sew will certainly want to see "How to Design Your Own Dress Patterns" by Adele F. Margolis. A very scholarly work in the field of accounting is "Accounting and Financing Features of Selected Qualified Deferred Compensation Plans" by George W. Fair, which was written as a doctors dissertation at L. S. U. This was a gift to the library from the author, who is a cousin of the librarian.

Two lovely new books in the field of decoration are "Victorian Pottery and Porcelain" and "Small Decorative Antiques" both written by Hurd. Many ladies will want to see them. The art collection of the library is growing all the time, largely through memorial gifts. These books are so expensive that we could not purchase all we need from the regular book budget. Two lovely additions are "George Caleb Bingham, River Portraits" by John F. McDermott and "Painting the Waterfront" by Henry W. Gasser. Daniel C. Blum has compiled a very lovely book called "A Pictorial History of Television." It should interest those in the industry, as well as those who view it.

Of outstanding interest to local people is "A Handbook of Renaissance Meteorology" written by S. K. Hieninger, Jr., better known to his friends in Monroe as Tim. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Hieninger, long-time residents of this city. Tim was educated in the city schools, graduated at Neville, attended Tulane, studied at Oxford and Johns Hopkins and is now a member of the faculty of Duke University. His book is a scholarly study of the weather mentioned in Renaissance literature. It is a beautiful book and we are all extremely proud of Tim.

Three new biographies will appeal to a variety of readers. "Wild Bill Hickok" is the title of a book by Richard O'Connor and will appeal to all who like the old West. "Last Witnesses" for Robert Louis Stevenson is a very fine study of this author by Elsie Noble Caldwell, while Stewart Alsop has written a study of "Nixon and Rockefeller," which contrasts these two outstanding public figures.

ALONG BROADWAY

Plays In Summer Plays In Winter

NEW YORK (UPI)—One director who has his career right where he wants it is Sidney Lumet.

He directs a motion picture in the summer months. Come fall, and he's tied up into the winter staging a Broadway play. Late winter and spring—two or three top television assignments. Summer, another movie, and so on.

The dark, intense young man who has staged one of the most-discussed plays of the current Broadway season, "Caligula," achieved that balance of assignments for 1959-60, and he's working now on lining up a similar schedule for 1960-61.

"The big problem in working out such a program is the play," Lumet said. "It isn't that offers to direct plays are hard to come by. I don't know how to put this without sounding stuffy, so I might as well be blunt. I'm not interested in directing the formula-type play no matter how good its chances of success may appear to be."

"Albert Camus' 'Caligula' is just the sort of play of ideas that I want most to do. I could scarcely wait to get to work on this one. You know, I was supposed to have done it a year ago for the Phoenix Theater's repertory schedule, but it was called off, and I've seldom been so disappointed."

It should be pointed out here that Camus, Nobel Prize winner who was killed in an auto accident in his native France a couple of months ago, personally designated Lumet as the man he wanted to direct. "Caligula" for the New York stage solely on the basis of recommendations from those whose judgment he trusted.

Lumet's "Design for Living" began last summer when he directed the motion picture of Tennessee Williams' play, "Orpheus Descending." The film is called "The Fugitive Kind," starring Marlon Brando.

Now that "Caligula" is anchored at the 54th Street Theater, the director has embarked on his television phase. Coming up this month is a drama special, "The Hiding Place," based on a new English novel of that title and starring Trevor Howard and James Mason.

"After that I'll plunge into a two-part television dramatization of the Sacco - Vanzetti case written by Reginald Rose," Lumet said. "The fact that the play will be done in as realistic a fashion as possible—almost documentary—doesn't clash at all with my ideas about the stage."

"The Sacco - Vanzetti case is packed with ideas, and the facts are so fantastic that you wouldn't dare present them in any but the most realistic way."

Lumet's program for the coming season is likely to start out with the directing of the motion picture version of the current Broadway hit, "A Raisin in the Sun," during the summer. The play to follow that still is uncertain. The television work is no problem; he is always in demand for that medium in which he gained his reputation as a director.

Book Brings Meade Out Of Shadows

MEADE OF GETTYSBURG. By Freeman Cleaves. University of Oklahoma Press, $5.

Quite a few people, we imagine, would stumble over the question: Who commanded the Army of the Potomac at Appomattox? The automatic answer is U.S. Grant and it's the wrong one. And it typifies the frustrations which dogged the military career of George Gordon Meade.

Yes, the same Meade who commanded at Gettysburg. He was not replaced, as were all who had preceded him, but continued to command the main Union striking force until war's end — and he commanded with distinction. But he operated in the shadow of Grant who, as commander of all the armies, established his headquarters with the Army of the Potomac. The impression from many histories is that Meade was little more than a messenger boy in a general's uniform, scampering hither and yon to deliver the orders which Grant evolved.

Cleaves convincingly demonstrates that Meade was anything but a figurehead. Grant's but the tactics were Meade's. Some of them were brilliant. Meade was not a daring leader, but he was a sound one and he needed no spur to action, nor any superior guidance on what to do in an emergency. That he didn't get the credit he deserved was due in the main to the connivings of Washington politicians and a couple of unfortunate run-ins with reporters which antagonized a powerful section of the press. It is significant that Grant was a staunch supporter of Meade and went to bat for him in Washington on occasion.

Another villain of the piece is Phil Sheridan. This reviewer cannot recall another book which deals with him so harshly — he emerges as a self-seeking glory hunter, who is not above disregarding orders, or even disobeying them, if it suits his purpose.

Cleaves has written a sound and illuminating biography, particularly on Meade's post-Gettysburg service. If we do not get close to Meade as a personality, it is due more to Meade's own taciturnity than any fault of the Cleaves' scholarship. The book is not an apology but a straightforward, factual presentation that will achieve much in promoting Meade from the vale of obscurity to which he has been unjustly consigned.

But — and this is admittedly a personal point of the reviewer — why, of why, couldn't we have more and better maps?

"SAXES, INC." Featuring 13 saxophone stars. Warner Bros. WS 1336 (stereo), W 1336 (LP). Some of the very best saxophonists in jazz help make this a top-notch album. The solos by men like Coleman Hawkins, Herb Geller, Al Cohn and Seldon Powell are uniformly good as befitted men of this caliber. The sound of the saxes has the sound of a big band minus brass, this is very intriguing, if not original.

"RICH VS. ROACH." Buddy Rich and Max Roach. Mercury SR 60133 (stereo), MG 20448 (LP). Two of the very best drummers around in a collection of numbers in which they trade solos and breaks, each with his own band on its own channel. The results is top-notch modern jazz to which the added element of stereo, allowing one to separate the solos easily and hear the differences in style clearly, makes fascinating listening.

"THE KENTON TOUCH — PORTRAITS IN STRINGS." Stan Kenton and orchestra with twenty strings and arrangements by Pete Rugolo. Capitol ST 1276 (stereo), T 1276 (LP). Selections include "Theme for Sunday," "The End of the World," "A Rose For David" and seven others. Most of the ten themes in this "stereo mood concert" have been recorded previously by Kenton but never so great. The stereo effect is very well rounded and full.

"BEAUTY AND THE BEAT! — PEGGY LEE AND GEORGE SHEARING." Peggy Lee (vocals) and the George Shearing Quintet. Capitol ST 1219 (stereo), T 1219 (LP). Capitol recorded this Peggy Lee — George Shearing concert at the second annual disc jockey's convention in Miami last May. It's their first time together on record. For this concert Peggy chose her repertoire well, songs which are surprisingly not often performed by her contemporaries. Shearing is more animated in his accompaniment of Peggy than in the three mild instrumental numbers by his own quintet.

CLASSICAL

VILLA-LOBOS: "The Forest of the Amazon." Symphony of the Air, Chorus, and Bidu Sayao (soprano), Heitor Villa-Lobos conducting. United Artists UAS 8007 (stereo), UA 7007 (LP). Villa-Lobos died on November 17 and this may have been his last large-scale score. It is taken from the music he wrote for the film "Green Mansions". Based on W. H. Hudson's romantic novel. The album is attractive throughout. The performance is authoritative, and the recording is very well engineered.

1. THEME FROM A SUMMER PLACE, Percy Faith.
2. HANDY MEN, Jimmy Jones.
3. TEEN ANGEL, Mark Dinning.
4. HE'LL HAVE TO GO, Jim Reeves.
5. RUNNING BEAR, Johnny Preston.
6. WHAT IN THE WORLD'S COME OVER YOU, Jack Scott.
7. BEYOND THE SEA, Bobby Darin.
8. WILD ONE, Bobby Rydell.
9. BABY, Dinah Washington & Brook Benton.
10. LET IT BE ME, Everly Brothers.

COLLEGE IN DEMAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Three Broadway producers are reported contending for a bizarre play written by 22-year-old Arthur L. Kopit, who graduated from Harvard last June.

Titled "Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Monna's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feelin' So Sad," it is about a possessive mother who keeps her son locked up in hotel rooms. As a student production, it received lavish comment from Boston critics.

Roger L. Stevens has first refusal on the work; next in line is Theodore Mann, and then Kermit Bloomgarden.

The Light Fingered Employee; Big Toll

THE THIEF IN THE WHITE COLLAR. By Norman Jaspas with Hillel Black. Lippincott, $4.95.

In the last decade, say the authors, the white collar thief has become America's most resourceful and successful crook.

Each working day, employees steal about four million dollars in cash and property from their employers.

This adds up to an annual figure that's considerably more than double the amount burglars and robbers pick up in their professional rounds.

Yet only one in 10 of the white collar thieves is brought into court.

Why do most employers shy away from legal action? And why do employees in positions of trust — generally middle or upperclass, and often with a thoroughly ethical upbringing — dabble their fingers in the till? Does this mean our society is getting soft morally?

In this engrossing book Norman Jaspas, a leading management consultant, and Hillel Black, a writer, have combined their knowledge and experience to present a definitive picture of a kind of crime nobody talks much about. Maybe it's a subject not often aired because it involves people near door, not professional criminals the average person never meets.

But in "The Thief in the White Collar," the whole story of America's billion dollar a year embezzling business is told with figures, facts and case histories.

Some of the people chronicled here you've read about in the newspapers — the banker who juggled accounts to help townspeople, the glamorous office manager for a Georgia doctor's clinic who took more than $138,000 in three years, the spinster who helped herself and friends to nearly three million from a building and loan association.

But many cases involve everyday type workers you've never heard of, who start with a little theft here, and a little ledger fixing there, and soon they are trapped beyond extraction.

The book is fascinating reading for anyone — and for employers, Jaspas has gone into detail on detecting and handling white collar theft. It's bound to put a crimp in future petty cash fund rifling.

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

With "Dark at the Top of the Stairs," the Fred Waring chorus crowding the local top billings for two successive weeks, there is more to come during the pre-spring entertainment flurry.

The Northeast State college production of "The King and I" is set for Thursday and Friday of this week, and as was pointed out in a previous column, the subsequent week is loaded with three events between Monroe and Ruston.

The American version of the Oberammergau Passion Play is scheduled at Neville auditorium for a three-day run beginning March 22, the National Ballet of Canada is slated for a Louisiana Tech appearance on March 23 and John Browning, American pianist, will perform at Neville auditorium Friday, March 25.

CONTRASTS

Two recent events — a Playhouse 90 version of a William Faulkner story and a William Inge play — bring into sharp focus the need for proper plot development in modern writing. In short, the Inge play, "Dark at the Top of the Stairs," fell short in the development section while the televised play "Tomorrow," showed that overdevelopment is almost impossible.

Reaction to the live play here showed sharply divided camps with little or no middle ground. Many thought the play quite entertaining while others did not like it. All agreed the production was technically way above the ordinary for a traveling show. And this fact will probably assure a demand for more professional theatre among future attractions on the Northeast State concert series.

But trimmings excluded, the literary and dramatic impact of the William Inge lines fell far short of the Faulkner adaptation. What is this about development? It is the artistic working out of a theme, plot or character once introduced.

BEETHOVEN KNEW

In the field of wordless music, Beethoven rates high in the development department. Some of the tunes he introduced at the beginning of lengthy symphonies and sonatas would never make his. But he was able to take the tones and time patterns of these tunes and manipulate them by skillful development so that they finally grew into something artistic.

William Inge introduced a wealth of good material throughout his "Dark at the Top of the Stairs." But new ideas were still coming in as late as Act III and none of the themes — possibly recollections from the writer's own youth — were sufficiently built upon.

The ideas presented in Faulkner's "short story" play were few and close to the soil. But the working out of these was so skillfully done until lead actor Richard Boone seemed far away from his usual role of "Have Gun, Will Travel."

Development? In western shoot-em-ups, this would amount to the cowpoke riding his horse so fast and furious over such rough and hot country until the final scene would have him being ridden by a withered, Mexican burro.

Passion Play Set For 3-Day Performance

Termed the "biggest undertaking of the group this year," the Twin City Symphony Association today announced the opening of the American version of the Oberammergau Passion Play, according to John A. Rudisell, general chairman.

The play, well known in its German version for 325 years, will open at Neville auditorium March 22. Performances will continue through March 24.

According to Dr. Ben Oliphant, president of the Twin City Symphony Association, school officials of both city and parish systems feel that the play is of such importance that they are exciting interested students from classes to attend a 1:00 p.m. matinee.

The steering committee for the presentation of the play here met last week and keen interest in the event among church, cultural, civic and educational officials was reported. Members of the committee serving with Rudisell are Ernest Strauss, The Rev. George Martinez, Dr. Harry Lemert, Mrs. Tony Veazy and Mrs. Helen Agnew.

FATHER, SON ON STAGE
NEW YORK (AP) — Richard Whort and his son, David, will play key roles as father and son in a new comedy, "One For the Dope."

"With a real father and son on the stage, the meaning of every scene should be enhanced," says Harry J. Essex, co-author with Lesser Samuels.

The comedy is scheduled for presentation in mid-April.

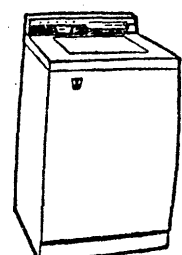

THE LIFE OF CHRIST affords the text of the American version of the Oberammergau Passion Play slated to open at Neville auditorium March 22 for a three-day engagement.

PERFECT BLENDSHIP of friendship are Toby Tyler, portrayed by Kevin Corcoran, and his best pal, a mischievous chimpanzee named Mr. Stubbs, in the scene from Walt Disney's new film, "Toby Tyler." The picture opens Thursday, March 24.

Pictures and released by Paramount Pictures, which will open Sunday at the Jim Theatre.

To this day Scotland Yard has not closed its file on the case, and to this day the identity of the man who brutally killed and mutilated at least half a dozen women in the gloomy gaslit streets of nineteenth-century London remains a mystery. Many have been the theories suggested to fit the all too solid and horrifying facts.

On the basis of these facts "Jack The Ripper" brings to life on the screen the terrible months during which the world's largest metropolis cowered under the menace of the unseen killer. Heading the cast are Lee Patterson, Eddie Byrne, Betty McDowall and Ewen Solon. The film was produced, directed and photographed by Robert Baker and Monty Berman from a screen play written by Jimmy Sangster. The original story, which offers a possible — and startling — solution of the mystery, was the work of Peter Hammond and Colin Craig.

The slayings by Jack the Ripper were also known as the Whitechapel murders, as all of them occurred in that district of East London. Whoever the criminal may have been — maniac or cold-blooded murderer — his victims were always women of what the newspapers of the time called "the unfortunate class." His primary weapon was the knife, to which he added a knowledge of anatomy and the use of the surgeon's scalpel.

The London police were utterly baffled — as they still are. The British people, whose pride in Scotland Yard is high, accused their protectors of incompetence, and Jack the Ripper himself wrote jeering letters to them.

Rehearsals for "Guys and Dolls" are swinging along — every week night and on Saturday and Sunday afternoons. We are once more "in the round". Additions to the cast this week are Keith Scoggins, Dick Vallery, Billy Charles Windsor, Jake Vaughan and Ed Anders. It would give you a lift to see those personable young men working hard to follow our choreographer, Pat Wadley, as she teaches the dances. Though Pat is just up from the flu, she's high stepping with her usual verve.

Ivan could still use a few more guys and dolls; and Val Ringo, our experienced and efficient stage manager, is calling for a large crew — to manage lights, props, and scenery. Give Ivan a ring, please, if you can help that important corps.

Remember those charming sewing machines that were created for Pajama Game? We hear that they will be surpassed by the sensational set pieces and scenery which have been designed by Katherine and Ray Magruder, Dick Grider, Jim Knuckles and John Hogan. At present they plan to have seventeen changes. It takes a heap o' shiftin' to make an arena a stage. Strong men please apply.

We have talked so much about the chorus we've failed to mention the principals in the cast. They are Betty Bandy as Sara Brown, John Pierpont as Sky Masterson, and Garland Moore as Nathan Detroit. Taking the chief comedy roles are Dell Moore as Miss Adelaide and W. J. Hadad as Nicely-Nicely Johnson.

For this huge cast we certainly cannot afford to rent New York costumes so Violet Holland's committee is already at work. Mary with Dobbie Reynolds and Dick Powell.

Wednesday and Thursday: "Blue Angel" with Curt Jurgens and Mai Britt; also "Appointment in Honduras" with Glenn Ford and Ann Sheridan.

Friday and Saturday: "Raw Wind in Eden" with Esther Williams and Jeff Chandler; also "A Perfect Furlough" with Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh.

"ON THE BEACH" stars Ava Gardner and Gregory Peck and opens today at the Paramount Theatre.

Gill and Judy Evans are in that group as well as several ladies from Bastrop whose names are as yet unknown to us. There will be an important meeting of the costume committee this coming Friday (March 18) chez Mary Gill at 12:30 to discuss with Ivan what will be needed.

All of us are looking forward to the college production of The King and I on March 17, 18 and 19, in which Little Theatre's Palmer Jarrell and Gerrie Kenney will sing the leading roles. We know you'll all be there.

No sooner had we told you about Louis Guerriero's being in Come Share My House than the situation changed. On March 21st Louis will go to Chicago to join Paulette Goddard in Laura. Louis will have the role that Clifton Webb made famous in the motion picture Laura.

And do let us tell you the news about another ex-Little Theatreite — Slade Brown. Slade has been in New York for some time bearing the title of associate-to-the-producer of a play called Bye Bye Birdie which will open in Philadelphia on March 15 for a trial run of four weeks, going from there to the Anta Theater in New York. Chita Rivera and Dick Van Dyke will have the star parts. We'll be pop-eyed watching for the press notices. Here's to a successful run!

COMING to the Paramount Theatre on March 20 is "The Gene Krupa Story" starring Susan Kohnner and Sal Mineo. Sun. Mar. 13 CH. Pg.

THE STORY OF PAT NIXON

Qualities Of The Woman Who Might Be 1st Lady

Note — Pat Nixon admits she's not very good at ship christenings. But that's about the only flaw in her qualities as a perfect partner for her husband's fast climb up the political ladder. Here's a close look at the poised, tireless woman who says she doesn't think about what it might be like to be America's First Lady.

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1960 presidential campaign will probably be the climax of 14 years of fishbowl living for Patricia Nixon.

Most of her married life has been spent with an eye to what the voters may think and do. She and her husband, always

Couple Backs Out Of Plan On Adoption

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — An English housewife and the childless American couple who planned to adopt her baby agreed Friday to abandon the widely publicized adoption plans.

The agreement was reached in a telephone conversation between Yvonne Moore of Luton, England and Mrs. Wilbur Prescott of North Charleston, S.C.

The conversation occurred after Mrs. Moore's U.S. visa was withdrawn, just before she was to depart by air for the United States to give birth to the child and turn it over to the South Carolina couple.

The State Department said it had asked the U.S. Embassy in London to hold up the visa for a review "because of sensational press reports on this case."

"I suppose God did not intend for us to have it," said Mrs. Prescott Friday night, "but we would have loved it so."

The South Carolina woman blamed "publicity and only publicity for the whole thing. There is no other explanation because nobody could possibly find anything wrong with our lives."

The cancellation of the visa was first disclosed in England, when Mrs. Moore said, "The local police told me this afternoon to get in touch with the U.S. consul. I did so and was told that my visa has been withdrawn temporarily on special instructions from Washington. They didn't tell me why."

Mrs. Moore had planned to leave Friday night by plane for New York, thence to South Carolina. Her husband had quit his job as a bus driver to accompany her.

"I couldn't care less what happens now," Mrs. Moore said, "I never worry about things and I am not going to start in now."

But her mother-in-law, Ellen Moore, who had opposed the adoption plan, exclaimed, "Thank God. My prayers have been answered. Now maybe I will get the baby after all."

In Charleston, Mrs. Prescott told a reporter, "We have had a rough day, and would like to rest and not talk about it any longer. I feel sure that God will take care of us and whatever is right will happen."

running for office as a team, now are out for the prize fishbowl of all—the White House.

But Mrs. Nixon, asked about the possibility she might one day live in the presidential mansion, declares: "I just don't see myself there."

"It would be a most presumptuous thing to picture what one would do," she says. "It's a long way from that. I never think ahead, then I won't be disappointed. I'm sort of superstitious."

The campaign trial has led the Richard Nixons around the world. They've learned to tailor their lives to a political goal.

When auburn-haired Pat picked out some neckties for her vice president husband on a recent West Coast visit, Nixon vetoed them as "too shiny for television."

And Pat admits she never buys a dress any more "just because I like it." Her clothes have to fit into "the life I live."

"I think: Will it pack? Is it conservative enough? Can I wear it a long time?"

She even keeps a list of what she's worn on campaign trips "so I won't come back two years later in the same outfit."

Pat can dress for formal affairs in five minutes, shake a thousand hands, say just the right thing and walk for miles on slender high heels without showing fatigue.

Nixon himself once advised a Republican women's conference to look at a prospective candidate's wife because she might be "the insurance to achieve victory."

Pat Nixon has seen her husband through successful campaigns since he first ran for Congress in 1946.

If she ever writes a book, she says, it will be entitled "I also Ran."

Red Military Restricted In Germany

HEIDELBERG, Germany (AP) — The United States and Britain joined France Friday in restricting the movement of Soviet military liaison officers in West Germany.

Members of the Soviet missions to the U.S. and British armies were confined to their base cities in retaliation for what the Western Allies called Soviet failure to provide acceptable passes for the Allied missions to the Soviet army in Communist East Germany.

France started the ball rolling in its former occupation zone Feb. 25, imposing a 10-mile limit on travels of Soviet military men based at Baden-Baden.

Now the restrictions are broadened to cover the Soviet military mission at Frankfurt, in the former U.S. occupation zone, and the mission at Bad Salzuflen to the British army of the Rhine.

Western military commanders, aware of a diplomatic issue that could complicate coming East-West summit talks, object to the wording of new passes issued by Soviet officials this winter for the 62 members of the U.S., British and French military missions based at Potsdam, in East Germany.

Old Soviet passes authorized the Western mission members to travel in "the Soviet zone of Germany." The new passes changed this to "the German Democratic Republic."

The Western Allies, who do not recognize East Germany's Red government, objected to this as a Soviet move to build up East German prestige. The U.S., British and French liaison officers voluntarily confined themselves to Potsdam, refusing to use the new passes.

Western military commanders declared in letters Feb. 19 to Marshal S. Zakharov, commander of the Soviet army in East Germany, the passes are unacceptable "in their present form."

With a response from Zakharov still awaited, Gen. C. D. Eddleman, commander of the U.S. Army in Europe, notified the Soviet mission in Frankfurt Friday that "it will be restricted to the vicinity of Frankfurt until further notice."

The only exceptions will be permission for mission members to go by direct routes between Frankfurt and Heidelberg, the U.S. Army's European headquarters, and between Frankfurt and Herleshausen, the closest point for entering East Germany.

The British had planned simultaneous action but delayed it slightly upon hearing that a message from Zakharov was on route to the British commander, Gen. S. James Cassels. They found, however, the Soviet marshal's note "did not constitute a reply," a British spokesman said. The British restriction order followed.

Formerly the missions of both East and West had been free to roam East and West Germany with the exception of military bases marked off limits by the various army commands.

The U. S. Embassy in Bonn assailed "the arbitrary Soviet action in adding unacceptable language" to the passes.

"This action is clearly and wholly inconsistent with the assertions of Soviet Premier Khrushchev as recently as March 5 that the Soviet Union was doing everything necessary to create a favorable atmosphere for the forthcoming summit talks and therefore no one state should complicate the situation by any of its actions," the embassy said.

server characterized the Nixons, he's 47 and she's 46, as "one of the great husband and wife teams in American political history. They supplement each other. Nixon handles the big talk. Pat takes care of the small talk."

Now, the team of Pat and Dick faces its biggest test.

In July — a month after their 20th wedding anniversary — they'll know whether Nixon has the GOP presidential nomination.

Pat Nixon rarely talks politics in public, admits she may do some at home. Back in 1956, she explained her philosophy as the wife of a man climbing the political ladder:

"I have learned to live from day to day; do the best I can every single day and not worry about political outcomes."

Perhaps her biggest regret about a life dedicated to politics has been the time taken from her children, Patricia (Tricia) 13, and Julie, 11. There have been tearful farewells when the Nixons set out for far-off lands.

Thanksgiving Day 1958 the Nixons dined with friends, while the vice president and his wife ate turkey in London with the Queen of England.

Mrs. Nixon makes every effort to keep the girls out of the public spotlight.

When they transferred from public schools last year to go to Sidwell Friends, a private Quaker school, she explained: "With our being away so much, it was important for the two of them to be together."

Pat Nixon has gained a reputation as average housewife, mother and helpmate to her husband. She has become the nation's ideal housewife, earned togetherness awards, and made the best-dressed list.

Nixon has publicly praised her wife's qualities, noting she is a wonderful shopper and knows how to pinch pennies.

She has made herself a smiling, noncontroversial figure, fitting amiably into palaces abroad and political receptions at home.

Her press interviews, given mostly during campaigns or trips, are on subjects such as home, children and clothes.

"I don't answer political questions," she explains repeatedly. When the Nixons visited England in 1958, she was asked if she ever felt frightened at her reputation for being the perfect politician's wife.

"Oh, no, I just travel along from day to day doing the best I can," she said.

"And such a wonderful, chromium-plated best, too," a writer for the London Spectator commented. "One gray hair, one hint of fear, one golden tea cup overturned on the Persian carpet and one could have loved her."

Mrs. Nixon, who says she loves campaigning and meeting people, is described in a new book as having lost her taste for politics in the 1952 campaign when a fuss was raised over an alleged California expense fund for Nixon.

If that is so, she has never shown her distaste publicly. And she and her husband have come far from those days when Nixon disclosed she didn't have a mink coat and proudly declared "She does have a respectable Republican cloth coat."

From the very first, it appears the Nixons have charted their team roles. Pat, a Democrat before her marriage in 1940, switched over to the Republican side. She pooled funds to help buy her engagement and wedding rings and finance their honeymoon.

The Nixons had a year and a half of normal family life while Dick worked as a hometown lawyer in Whittier, Calif.

But by 1942, Nixon was in the Navy, where he served as an officer while Pat worked on the homefront as a file clerk, secretary and bank teller.

Four years later, Nixon, hardly out of service, was urged by California friends to run for Congress. It took the $4,000 he and Pat had managed to save. But he won, with Pat serving as his partner in politics.

In Nixon's first campaign of 1946, Pat says they discovered people wanted to see what the candidate's wife was like. She parlayed her college business training and teaching commercial subjects in high school to act as clerk, stenographer, and social greeter for her campaigning husband. Dick does the speechmaking, Pat does the listening.

"To me, Dick is a fascinating speaker. I never get bored by his speeches and I've heard a lot of them," she said after Dick had been campaigning for 10 years and had delivered some 3,000 speeches.

Once during the 1956 campaign Pat showed she could pinch hit and delivered a two-minute speech in Oklahoma when Dick was down with a sore throat.

But she's left the public speaking to him, even though she ad-

SAYS AYCOCK

Davis Administration Has Eye On State Sportsmen

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

LAFAYETTE La. Lt. Gov.-elect C. C. (Taddy) Aycock says the Jimmie H. Davis administration has its eye on the Louisiana sportsman.

This was in effect what Aycock told the 21st annual convention of the Louisiana Wildlife Federation here Saturday night, promising the Federation support from the Davis administration.

"You can rest assured that the Davis administration will support your program," he stated. To prove his point, Aycock outlined wildlife legislation proposed by the Federation which he said the Davis administration would endorse.

Two bills, including the $1 universal fishing license and the boat registration act, were killed by the legislature under Gov. Earl K. Long.

The Federation proposes that all fishermen over 16 years of age be required to purchase a $1 license and that the legislature pass a law to comply with the federal boat act carrying a $5 fee for all boats to be registered.

Aycock said, "In the event your revenue increasing proposals become a reality, our administration assures you that the revenues dedicated at the present time to the conservation fund and the Wildlife and Fisheries Commission will not in any way be changed or reduced."

He added, "In other words, the additional revenues from the sources just mentioned will be in addition to the revenues normally received by the commission."

At present, the Wildlife department operates on a $4-million annual budget.

Aycock's address highlighted Saturday activities for about 300 sportsmen from all sections of Louisiana. The convention opened Friday afternoon and will adjourn Sunday morning.

New officers will be elected prior to the Sunday morning adjournment followed by a keynote speech from E. R. McDonald Sr., chairman of the Wildlife and Fisheries Commission.

In action Saturday afternoon, the federation whipped through about 30 resolutions to be sent to the commission for consideration.

Hunting seasons, always a controversial matter to sportsmen, were referred to the game biologists by the federation. In short, the federation recommended that the biologists set the seasons.

The federation also went on record requesting the commission to put the game wardens back in uniform. Agents were taken out of uniform under the Long administration.

In addition, a 20-day archery season on deer immediately prior to regular deer seasons was recommended, as well as a deer tagging system carrying a $1 fee for tags.

On education matters, a resolution was passed requesting the Louisiana Department of Education to inaugurate a course in all phases of wildlife and fisheries conservation.

Too, the education committee requested that the LSU Agricultural Extension Service employ a wildlife specialist to work with county agents.

On the hunting seasons, Aycock said the Davis administration would support the recommendations of the biologists. He also called for stronger laws to curb fish shocking violations.

"We could really put some teeth into the law by providing for the mandatory confiscation of an offenders' boat, motor and equipment, in addition to a monetary fine and jail sentence," Aycock explained.

Aycock's appearance came as a climax to speculation that changes in the wildlife department will come under the administration.

Rumors circulated around the convention that Director Rudolph Easterly is on his way out.

During Long's present four-year term, three directors have served.

McDonald, a staunch Davis supporter from Tensas Parish, arrived at the convention Saturday afternoon and immediately budled with wildlife leaders.

It is certain that a new director is under consideration.

Meanwhile, northeast Louisiana delegates met early Saturday to discuss the "fair" program, a project sponsored by the Federation in conjunction with industry.

The program, which was launched several months ago to encourage the establishment of recreation areas on industry-owned property, now is being headed by Erle Barham, an Oak Ridge planter.

Convention delegates from Ouachita Parish and the surrounding area attended the early morning meeting. Land to be used in the program is owned by Olin Matheson Chemical Corp. extending from West Monroe to Winfield.

Barham said after the meeting that the program would "get off the ground" within the next several weeks.

Southwest Texas, three times a quarter-finalist, beat down Westminister's challenges early and had a four-point lead, 33-29, at the half.

Bonnie Wilkening was Southwest Texas' leading scorer with 17 points. Charles Sharp, 6-6 hook-shot artist, who was named most valuable player in the tournament, scored 15 for the Bobcats.

Howard Lockhart also got 15. Don McCaig, hero of Westminister's victory over Tennessee State, scored 12 points for the Titans.

The one-time slinger of the Detroit Tigers said the minors shouldn't continue the "fiction" that the majors are ruining the minors because the majors in reality are supporting professional baseball.

"We (the majors) are paying 80 to 90 per cent of the bills," he said, "but we take the abuse and they take the bows."

Greenberg maintained that the independent minor league owner is negligible and almost nobody wants to operate independently.

The national baseball weekly said Greenberg's proposal was spurred by the formation of the Continental League, which will take over territories in the International League and American Assn. in 1961, forcing realignment of the two minor leagues.

The White Sox executive called for the immediate expansion for the majors to nine teams in each league, with the return of major league baseball to New York. He suggested that baseball appoint committees "not to study, but with full power to act."

He said baseball must be progressive in its thinking to remain the leading sport.

The University of Houston golf team has won the last four NCAA titles.

REASON FOR CONTINUING

Musial Hopes To Close Out Career On High Note

By JOE REICHLER

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Fierce pride, loyalty and a desire to close his career on a high note are the forces keeping Stan Musial in baseball.

The great St. Louis Cardinal star, approaching 40 and admittedly past his baseball prime, gave these reasons Saturday for continuing a career which he doesn't need.

"There are three main reasons I am still playing ball," said the mild-mannered and popular player who has established more records than any other performer in the National League. Then he enumerated them:

"First of all, I think I can still help the club.

"Secondly, I still get as much of a thrill in putting on a Cardinal uniform as I did the first day I reported to the club.

"In the third place, it's a matter of pride. I know I haven't gone as far back as my work last year might indicate. Frankly, I don't want to bow out on such a bad note."

Musial is director of three banks, owns a bowling alley, a restaurant and a great deal of real estate. He has a boy in Notre Dame and a girl ready to enter college. He is regarded as a certainty to be voted into the Baseball Hall of Fame.

Musial, in an interview with The Associated Press, was asked if he could account for last year's superb season when he batted .253.

"I batted myself and I paid the price," he said. "I was not in shape. I departed from the usual practice of getting into condition. I trained leisurely. The idea was to conserve my strength. I thought I'd wait for the last two weeks of spring training to buckle down to real hard work. I found out it wasn't that easy. When you're young, you don't need more than two weeks. When you're old..."

How did it affect your hitting? Musial was asked.

"My timing was away off. I developed bad habits. I was overstriding. I wasn't meeting the ball right and I thought perhaps my reflexes were slowing down. I thought I'd overcome that by starting my swing early. That only made it worse. To top it off, I developed a hitch in my swing. I saw myself in the movies shown by the club during the winter and I could hardly believe it was me."

Why do you think you're not washed up?

"Because I can still hit the fast ball. The first tell-tale sign that you're really slipping is when they get the fast ball by you. They weren't doing that last year. The pitchers were getting me out with junk. They're pretty smart fellows. They saw the way I was striking too soon, and that my hands were way out in front. So they began slowing up on me and I was done. I just couldn't untrack myself."

What are you doing about it? "I'm concentrating on it. I've been more relaxed, more like myself. I know I'm not lunging the way I did last year. Of course, it's too early. I've got to wait until I get my timing and we face outside competition. Then I'll know more about myself."

What about your health and do you feel your age? "Ask any player how he feels and he'll tell you he feels younger."

than he has in the last five years. I can't say that. But I know I feel better than I did last year. I returned tired from the Japanese tour in 1958 and rested all winter. This past winter I was determined to stay in shape. I worked out in the gymnasium and reported to camp stronger. I weigh the same, but I'm more solid than I was a year ago."

If you find that all your theories are wrong and you have trouble making a comeback, will you hang up your spikes during the season? "No, I'll never quit during the middle of a season, no matter what. That would be walking out on the team. I'd wait until the end of the season."

Is this your last year? "It could be. I'll be past 40 next spring. Each spring it becomes tougher to get in shape. But I can't say for sure. It depends on a lot of things... how I feel, what kind of a year I have, what the front office thinks..."

What do you mean when you say "what the front office thinks"? "Well, let's say I don't ever want to be a burden to the club."

SAYS FRANK LANE

Yanks' Dip Good For Junior Loop

By ED WILKS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—The Cardinals had just finished a workout at St. Louis' spring camp and Manager Solly Hemus, his coaches and a couple of writers were washing down crackers and cheese in the clubhouse.

The screen door opened and in came Frank Lane, Cleveland's general manager tanned, peering from behind sun glasses and wearing a red sweater-jacket with the sleeves pushed up.

"We were just talking about your visit to the Yankees the other day, Frank," said Bing Devine, the Cards' GM.

"The third place Yankees," said Lane, reaching into a box of apples.

"And let me tell you," he added, "that finishing third was a good thing for them and the league. I was telling George Weiss (Yankee general manager) that he always was too reserved. But now they've finished third and he's popped off about the Continental League, popped off about New York City officials and even popped off about Mantle."

"It's a good thing. He was always too quiet. Too reserved. You know this game of baseball didn't become the national pastime because everybody in it was quiet. "And the Yankees finishing third helped the league, and them, too. Why if they had won again last year, the American League might be facing its worst year in attendance. And the Yankees might, too. I think you can win too much."

Lane gnawed at the apple, looked to Hemus and said, "That Bob Keegan looked pretty good pitching out there today. I think it's the best I've ever seen him in the spring. Always had a chronic sore arm in the spring."

The listeners agreed about Keegan's appearance. He's the same big right-hander who pitched a no-hitter against Washington for the White Sox three years ago, went down to the minors a year later and then won 18 at Rochester last season. Now he's working as a free agent.

"He claims he didn't have any arm trouble, like the White Sox said," said Howie Pollet, the Cards' pitching coach. "But we knew he always had trouble in the spring, so we had him working with any iron ball to help build up his arm. And it looks like it's worked."

Keegan came up to the majors with the White Sox in 1953, when Lane was general manager of the Chicago club.

"I had my choice of him or Bobo Holloman or both," said Lane. "And I took Keegan. I knew he had a slow time getting in shape and I finally had to put him on the disabled list to give him more time."

"Bill Veack bought Holloman for the Browns and he pitched the no-hitter against the A's. And Mr. Veack commented that I had a chance to take either Keegan or Holloman from Syracuse and now Keegan was on the disabled list while he had a no-hit pitcher."

"All I answered was 'wait until we see where Holloman is July 1.'"

"Holloman didn't finish the season in the majors, did he?" asked Hemus.

"Never pitched another complete game," Lane reported.

"Never pitched another complete game," Lane repeated.

Emerson Defeats Barry Mackay

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Australia's Roy Emerson trounced U.S. Davis Cup player Barry Mackay of Dayton, Ohio, 6-3, 6-3 Saturday and reached the final of the Caribbean Tennis tournament against Sweden's Ulf Schmidt.

The match was played under the controversial two-bounce rule, introduced in pro tennis, and Mackay was outplayed in his opposition to the rule. It robbed his powerful service of its effectiveness and Emerson was able to return nearly everything Mackay hit at him on the asphalt court.

Mackay was seeded second in the tournament and Emerson fourth.

Ann Haydon, 21-year-old English girl, defeated Darlene Hard, second-ranking U.S. woman player, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4 in another semifinal upset. Miss Haydon will meet Maria Ester Bueno of Brazil in the final Sunday.

Delta To Meet

A meeting for Delta League team officials will be held tomorrow night at seven o'clock at the P&K Cafe, president Don Ziegler said last week.

Groups interested in fielding additional teams in the league may attend the meeting, Ziegler said.

THOMAS, THORNE, REDDEN

Northeast Elects Grid Tri-Captains

Northeast Louisiana State College's football Indians have elected three seniors as tri-captains for the coming season.

Fullback Edwin Thomas, tackle Delmas Thorne and halfback Levy Redden were named by their fellow squad members, Athletic Director and Head Football Coach Jack Rowan announced.

Thomas is a 6'1" 185-pounder who was an all-American Junior College selection in 1957. He scored the only touchdown when he plunged over from the one-yard line in Northeast's spring intrasquad game.

Thorne is a 5'11" 200-pounder who won the Jim Malone Award as best blocker last season. He was also named on the sports writers' second team all-Gulf States Conference and on the second team of the coaches' all-GSC.

Redden is a 6' 175-pounder from Farmerville. He was named most improved player in awards presented at the annual football banquet. He gained a net of 205 yards in 49 attempts for an average of 4.2 yards a carry. Redden scored one touchdown rushing.

The Farmerville youth also caught 10 passes for 106 yards and one touchdown and intercepted two others for 50 yards and one six-pointer.

Coach Rowan, in reviewing the Indians' intrasquad contest, said his charges "showed a lot of spirit and a lot of heart." He predicted the Indians would "do all right" against any opposition they face.

SHREVEPORT RELAYS

Louisiana Tech College Champ

SHREVEPORT, La. (Special)—

Houston and Byrd repeated as champions and Louisiana Tech took the college division title in the second annual Shreveport Relays here Saturday.

Houston scored 75½ points to take the university crown while Byrd easily topped the high school championship again with 81½ points. Louisiana Tech scored 75½ points for the college title as three other Gulf States Conference schools, Southeastern, McNeese and Northwestern ran 2-3-4 and Stephen F. Austin was fifth.

Twenty-five new records were set and three tied in the competition. Barrie Almond of Houston, a middle distance runner, was named the meet's outstanding university competitor. Northwestern weightman Bert Heckel was selected the top college performer and hurdler George Thompson of Byrd took honors in the high school division.

Almond, a short Australian, won the 880 in 1:53.3, and he and teammate Pat Clohessy finished in a tie in the mile competition at 4:23.9.

Ralph Brodie of Arkansas set a new record of 14.8 in the high hurdles while Texas A&M's Henry Bonorden broke the shot mark with a 51-11½ heave.

Houston's Bobby Weise threw the discus 161½, for a new mark and Fred Thomas and Charles Merka, both of A&M, tied in the high jump at 6-2 for a new record.

Tech's college triumph was assisted by Pat Garrett's winning 9.8 century, Dayton Baker's 50 flat quarter mile and a 1:57.5 half mile victory by Max Lewis.

The Bulldogs also added points in winning the mile and distance medley relays. Southwestern's Bob Ilarquist got off a tremendous 215-11½ javelin throw for a new record.

Neville's Joe Cage failed to compete in the high school javelin but Lafayette's Edward Red set a prep mark of 201-9 in the event.

Tallulah and Ruston tied for fifth in the 880 relay. Ruston was second to Byrd in the mile relay.

Mickey Cox of Neville was third in the shot with 45-3½ and second in the discus with a 127-1¼ throw.

Don Hammons of Ruston and Davis of Ruston tied for fourth in the pole vault at 10-6.

Johnny Perritt of Ruston was fifth in the broad jump with 19-10.

Edwin Davis of Ruston set a new standard in the 440 with 1:06.6 clocking while Tommy Laird of Tallulah took the 880 in 2:05 and the mile in 4:38 for a new record. Ellis of Ruston was fourth in the mile.

ATHLETICS-DOGGERS

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The Kansas City Athletics made Bob Elliott's first major league managerial appearance a winning one by defeating the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers 2-4 in an exhibition Saturday.

Rookie outfielder Leo Posada drove in three runs with a single and a double as a late-inning replacement to highlight the Athletics' 13-hit attack against three of the Dodgers' best pitchers—Don Drysdale, Johnny Podres and Roger Craig.

Veteran outfielder Bob Cerv collected a single and double in two times up and Harry Chiti went 2-for-2, both singles.

Chuck Essigman singled home two runs and Wally Moon singled home one for the Dodgers, who were limited to six hits by Ray Herbert, Ken Johnson, Marty Kutyna and Dick Hall.

YANKEES-CARDINALS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Darrell Spencer led the St. Louis Cardinals to a 3-1 victory over the New York Yankees as the exhibition baseball season began Saturday.

The shortstop, who was obtained from San Francisco during the winter, slammed three singles and drove in two runs.

Vinegar Bend Mizell was the winning pitcher and allowed only one single in four innings. The Yankees were held to 8 hits by Mizell, starter Larry Jackson and Ron Kline.

The New York run came in the first inning on successive singles by Gil McDougald, Bill Skovron and Yogi Berra. The latter played third base and made one of the three Yankee errors.

Whitely Ford was tapped for an unearned run in the third after Berra's throwing error. But Ford gave up two hits, as did Ford, but wasn't scored upon. Art Ditmar, the Yankees' best pitcher in 1959, was shelled for seven hits and four runs in the seventh and eighth innings.

TIGERS-SENATORS

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—The Detroit Tigers, taking advantage of some wildness on the part of Washington's rookie pitchers, defeated the Senators 3-6 Saturday in the Grapefruit League opener for both.

Ralph Lument and Don Lee gave Detroit eight walks and a hit batsman in the first four innings and the Tigers made them the key to eight bases-empty home runs for Detroit and Raye Thronberry hit a three-run blast for the Senators. Thronberry's blast capped a five-run uprising in the second inning against Jim Bunning, the Detroit starter.

Al Kaine had a bases-empty home run for Detroit and Raye Thronberry hit a three-run blast for the Senators. Thronberry's blast capped a five-run uprising in the second inning against Jim Bunning, the Detroit starter.

Hank Aguirre and Pete Burnside, a pair of left-handed relievers, handcuffed the Senators with one hit the rest of the way. Washington 030 000 000—6 5 2

GIANTS-INDIANS

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Cleveland blasted six home runs but they were insufficient to keep the San Francisco Giants from winning the opening contest of baseball's Cactus League Saturday, 11-3.

Cleveland's Rocky Colavito got three of the homers, but one didn't count. Giant Manager Bill Rigney blew the whistle on him for batting out of turn and the circuit clout was nullified.

Rocky previously had batted out of turn twice, but Rigney bided his time until the big blow in the sixth off rookie Julio Navarro. Other Indian homers were by Vic Power, Gene Leek and Johnny Temple.

The Giants outthit Cleveland 16-13 including a couple of homers, by Felipe Alou and Eddie Bressoud.

PHILLIES-BRAVES

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—Rookie Ken Walters slammed a ninth-inning double to bring in Alvin Dark with the winning run for the Philadelphia Phillies in a 2-1 victory Saturday over the Milwaukee Braves in a Grapefruit League opener.

Dark, making his first appearances with the Phils after being traded by the Chicago Cubs, got on base to open the bottom of the ninth when Ron Piche, hit him with a pitched ball. Dark moved up on a sacrifice by Bobby Del Greco.

The victory went to John Buzhardt who came to the Phils in the deal for Dark. He gave up the Braves' run in the seventh. It came on Mel Roach's single, an error by Del Greco and a single by Charley Lau with two out. Robin Roberts for the Phils and Juan Pizarro for Milwaukee pitched scoreless ball through the first three innings. In the fourth the Phils scored off Pizarro on the first of Frank Herrera's two hits and singles by Bob Malkmus and Jim Woods.

Don Cardwell shut out the Braves in the middle three frames.

ORIOLES-PIRATES

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles made the most of five hits Saturday as they opened the exhibition baseball season with a 5-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Pirates lost the services of Gino Cimoli for an indefinite period. The outfielder, acquired in a winter deal with St. Louis, injured his right hand when he crashed into the right field wall making a spectacular catch of Brooks Robinson's drive in the first inning. A preliminary examination showed no serious fracture but an X ray was ordered.

The Orioles picked up three unearned runs in the first when Rookie Al Nagle came through with a clutch single. Albie Pearson's double in the fifth was good for two more runs.

Joe Christopher led the Pirates' 10-hit attack with a double and three singles. Dick Stuart also hit a double and a single.

In the game between the "B" squads of the two teams, the Pirates won 2-1 with Tom Burgess' two-run homer providing both runs. Dave Nicholson, Baltimore's $115,000 bonus hope, homered for the Orioles.

WHITE SOX-REDS

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—The Chicago White Sox, who won 33 of 50 one-run games last year, opened their exhibition season Saturday with another one-run victory, beating the Cincinnati Reds 4-3 in 15 innings before 3,372.

Joe Hicks, rookie outfielder up from Indianapolis, broke up the struggle with a bases-loaded single off Raul Sanchez with nobody out in the bottom of the 15th. Earl Torgeson got the only Chicago extra base hit of the game—a triple which opened the 15th. Sanchez then gave intentional passes to Gene Freese and Al Smith, creating a force situation at every base and brining up Hicks.

RED SOX-CUBS

MESA, Ariz. (AP)—The Boston Red Sox opened defense of their Cactus League baseball championship Saturday by defeating the Chicago Cubs 3-4 behind the hitting of Jerry Mallett and Pumpsie Green.

Ernie Banks, the Cubs' great shortstop, hammered two hits including a two-run homer in the five innings he played.

Rookie outfielder Mallett and league sophomore Green, an infielder, drove in two runs apiece for the winners. Mallett hit a bases empty homer in the sixth inning.

Boston starter Tom Borland pitched the first three innings, allowing two runs and five hits in gaining the decision. Cub starter Glen Hobbie, a 16-game winner a year ago, was touched for three runs and four hits in three frames and was charged with the loss.

BY 4 STROKES

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Fay Crocker, a South American who played a bubbly personality, stretched her women's titleholders lead to four strokes Saturday over a frigid, windswept golf course.

"I've got on so many clothes," she said after posting her second straight 75 for a midway total of 150.

Snow forced postponement of play Friday. A bright sun cleared the Augusta Country Club course, then the temperature rose to the mid 40s. But a biting 12-15 mile an hour wind made it seem much colder.

Another 18 holes is scheduled Sunday with the final round Monday.

Kathy Cornelius of Lakeland, Fla., matched Miss Crocker's 75 and jumped into second place at 154.

Next came the Smith girls—no relations, Wilfrid, of St. Clair, Mich. fired a 76 for 155 and Marilyn of French Lick, Ind., a 77 for 156.

Amateur Anne Quast of Marysville, Wash., who started the round in second place took an 81 and dropped into a tie for fifth at 157.

Others at 157 were Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., with a 78; Marlene Bauer Hagge of Crystal River, Fla., with an 80; and Wanda Sanchez of Baton Rouge, La., with a 78.

Miss Crocker, who won the Women's pen in 1955, started out with a double-bogey 6 but quickly settled down.

She got two birdies with putts of 9 and 12 feet.

Par for the hilly, 6,300-yard course is 36-36-72.

Mrs. Cornelius scored four birdies, one with a 35-foot putt and the others with precision approach shots.

Defending champion Louise Suggs of Atlanta took her second straight 80.

Fatty Berg, seven-time titleholders winner from St. Andrews, Ill., rallied with a 76 after an opening 83.

NEW YORK (AP)—Pesky Providence turned third-seeded St. Louis into a jumbling giant Saturday night for a 64-53 victory and joined afternoon winner Utah State in the semifinals of the 23rd National Invitation Basketball Tournament.

Utah State treated a national television audience to a 73-72 overtime thriller over Villanova on 5-foot-10 Max Perry's two free throws with seven seconds left.

In first-round games, on the four game day-night program, St. Bonaventure got 32 points from brothers Tom and Sam Shih and routed Holy Cross 94-81 for its 17th straight triumph and big, strong Dayton crushed sour-shooting Temple 72-51 behind Gary Roggenbuck and Frank Case.

The two doubleheader sessions drew 31,415 to Madison Square Garden, 14,337 in the afternoon and 17,078 at night.

Providence, once again the gallery's choice with its ballhawking, driving style will play second-seeded Utah State in one of next Thursday night's semifinals. The other semi berth will be decided Tuesday when top-seeded Bradley plays Dayton and defending champion St. John's, (N.Y.) plays St. Bonaventure.

The St. Louis Billikens, who handed Providence one of its four regular season losses, 65-61 at St. Louis were knocked out of the NIT in their first game for the second straight year by the flashy Friars from Rhode Island.

St. Louis, with a 19-7 record against some of the nation's top teams including two games apiece with Bradley and the nation's No. 1 team Cincinnati in the rugged Missouri Valley Conference, just couldn't cope with the Providence speed and ball-handling.

Grambling beat Connecticut, 92-66, and wallpapered Villa Madonna (Ky.), 113-97, before bowing to Southwest Texas Thursday night, 76-68.

Grambling Nine Takes Twin Bill

ALCORN, Miss. (Special)—Grambling opened its baseball campaign here Saturday by sweeping a doubleheader from the Alcorn A and M Braves.

The Tigers won the first game, 8-6, and took the nightcap, 6-4, behind the two-hit pitching of Clyde Parquet. Parquet struck out 13 batters in 7 innings as major league scouts from the Los Angeles Dodgers and Pittsburgh Pirates looked on.

Lefty Leroy Robinson won the first game for Grambling but needed help from Hillery Bossier and Joseph New.

Lakers Edge Pistons On Free Throw

DETROIT (AP)—A basket by Jim Krebs and a free throw by Elgin Baylor with seven seconds remaining enabled the Minnesota Lakers to nip the Detroit Pistons 113-112 in the opening game of the National Basketball Assn. Western Division playoffs Saturday.

While Krebs shot from 20 feet, Baylor was fouled on the same play and then cashed the deciding point—the 40th of the game—in the nationally televised contest.

The Lakers, who finished five games behind Detroit in the regular season, staged a series of late rallies to gain the upper hand in the best-of-three playoff to decide which team meets the St. Louis Hawks for Western honors next week.

Detroit held a 10-point lead early in the final quarter and after letting it evaporate to only two points, the Pistons retaliated to go ahead 110-104 on two baskets and two free throws by Bailey Howell with less than two minutes remaining.

But the Lakers were not to be denied. Rudy LaRusso and Baylor struck for three quick baskets to knot the score at 110-100 with 35 seconds to go.

Seventeen seconds later, Detroit's Walter Dukes hooked in one from 15 feet. After taking a time out, the Lakers set up Krebs for his equalizer and received the extra dividend when Baylor was pushed as the ball sailed through the hoop.

Baylor almost single-handedly shot the Lakers to a 57-51 half-time advantage as he bagged 19 points in the second quarter. Two of the baskets came in the final minutes when the Lakers jumped from a 50-49 deficit to their six-point gap at the intermission.

Bob Leonard with 19 and LaRusso with 18 followed Baylor in the Minneapolis scoring, while Howell had 29, Dukes 26 and Gene Shue 21 for Detroit.

The same teams meet again in Minneapolis Saturday afternoon. If a third game is necessary it will be played here Tuesday night.

Campbell Grabs Pensacola Lead With Third Round 66

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—Chunky Joe Campbell of New York City fired a 6-under-par 68 over a windswept course Saturday to take the third-round lead in the $15,000 Pensacola Open.

The 32-34 round gave the 24-year-old former Purdue golf star a 54-hole total of 204, 12 under par. Campbell's round put him two strokes ahead of the halfway leader, Masters champion Arnold Palmer of Ligonier, Pa. Palmer shot a 36-37-73 for a total of 206.

It marked the first Saturday in the last three that he found himself without a four-stroke lead in a PGA meet.

Deadlocked a stroke behind Palmer were Ken Venturi, Palo Alto, Calif., 68-70-69; 20; Allen

Geiberger, Studio City, Calif., 64-70-73-207 and big George Bayer, Glenageles, Ill., 68-68-71-207.

Freddie Haas, New Orleans, and Julius Boros, Mid Pines, N.C., were together at 208.

Doug Sanders, Miami Beach, Fla., came up with a 35-32-67 for a third-round total of 209.

The 5-9, 180-pound Campbell got off to a flying start with birdies on the first three holes, including a 15-foot putt on No. 1. On the par 3 second hole, he almost sank a 4-wood shot, the ball stopping 5 inches from the cup.

The blond shotmaker, in his second year on the pro tour, picked up four additional birdies. His only bogey came on the long 12th where his second shot, with a No. 3 wood, stuck in a chain link fence about 5 feet off the ground. He went to the other side of the fence and knocked it back on the course with a 7-iron.

Campbell missed three greens in his round.

Campbell is seeking his first win on the circuit. His best showing thus far is a tie for fifth at Tucson, Ariz. Frank Stranahan of Crystal River, Fla., split a thumb and was forced to withdraw after shooting 37-40-37 today for a 220 total.

The final round will be played Sunday over the 6,500-yard Pensacola Country Club course.

Queen Named At College Military Ball

Highlighting the formalities at last night's Military Ball at North State college was the naming of Miss Linda Lavender to reign as queen for the evening.

The popular West Monroe freshman was presented a bouquet of roses by Cadet Col. Bill Brodie, commander of the Northeast ROTC Battle Group. The queen was not announced until after votes were counted during a tense intermission at the dance, which was attended by a large number of ROTC cadets, students in active reserve, veterans, their dates, and special guests.

Serving as court were three other nominees for the beauty crown: Sandra Edwards, Kathy Talton, and Carol Shipp.

Queen Linda is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lavender, 105 South First street. A freshman major in speech education, she is also coed sponsor of the military band. She was a member of the Homecoming Court, and was featured in the beauty section of the Chacahoula college yearbook.

Miss Edwards, a sophomore in business education from Monroe was a member of the Homecoming Court and was runner-up in the Chacahoula Beauty contest for two consecutive years.

Miss Talton, previously named Homecoming Queen and Miss Chacahoula, is a sophomore from Monroe majoring in elementary education.

Miss Shipp, a freshman from Bosco, is a major in Health and Physical Education. She is also a runner-up in the Chacahoula beauty contest section.

The military ball, sponsored by the Pershing Rifles and Scabbard and Blade, the two campus military organizations, was a whirlwind of color and corps creations, with the ROTC coed sponsors escorted into the ballroom beneath an arch of crossed sabers. Music was provided by Phares Corder and his Constellations, popular campus dance orchestra.

Absentee Ballots For Election On Way Here

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Absentee ballots for the April 19 general election are being delivered to clerks of court in Louisiana's 64 parishes, Secretary of State Wade O. Martin Jr. said Saturday.

The law allows such ballots to be delivered to service personnel 30 days before the election. The Democratic and Republican gubernatorial candidates, he said, will have their names carried on the party symbols.

"In past general elections," Martin said, "the ballot carried at the top of the list of Democratic candidates a picture of the rooster, symbolizing the Democratic Party, and the elephant, symbolizing the Republican Party," he said, "was carried at the top of the Republican list."

For the 1960 general election, the Democratic symbol will be overprinted with the name of the Democratic candidate for governor, Davis, while the name Grevenborg will be overprinted on the Republican symbol.

Martin said under election laws the party state central committee has authority to designate the symbol to be used. His instructions from the Democratic and Republican central committee authorities, he said, ordered this change on the ballot format.

He said the state's rights party did not direct a change and would be presented on the ballot by its Statue of Liberty symbol.

Preparation of the general election sample ballots is in process, Martin said. They will be ready for delivery within a few days.

Police Probe Slaying Of Monroe Man

Monroe city police yesterday were still investigating the butcher knife slaying of John C. Jones, 36-year-old Monroe Negro, who was stabbed in his home at 908 Pine street, late Friday night.

Investigators have brought tentative murder charges against Edna Mae Greenfield, 39-year-old Negro woman who resided at the same address as Jones.

Police said when they arrived at the scene of the incident, they found the Greenfield woman in the same room with the injured man. She had her arms around Jones, and a butcher knife, which was believed to be the lethal weapon, lay nearby, according to police.

TO HOSPITAL
Jones was rushed by ambulance to the Conway Memorial Hospital. Attendants said he was dead upon arrival. Hospital officials said he had been stabbed in the heart.

A phone call from Gussie Clark, Negro woman who lives at 905 Pine Street, came to the police station at 10:47 p.m. Friday, said police.

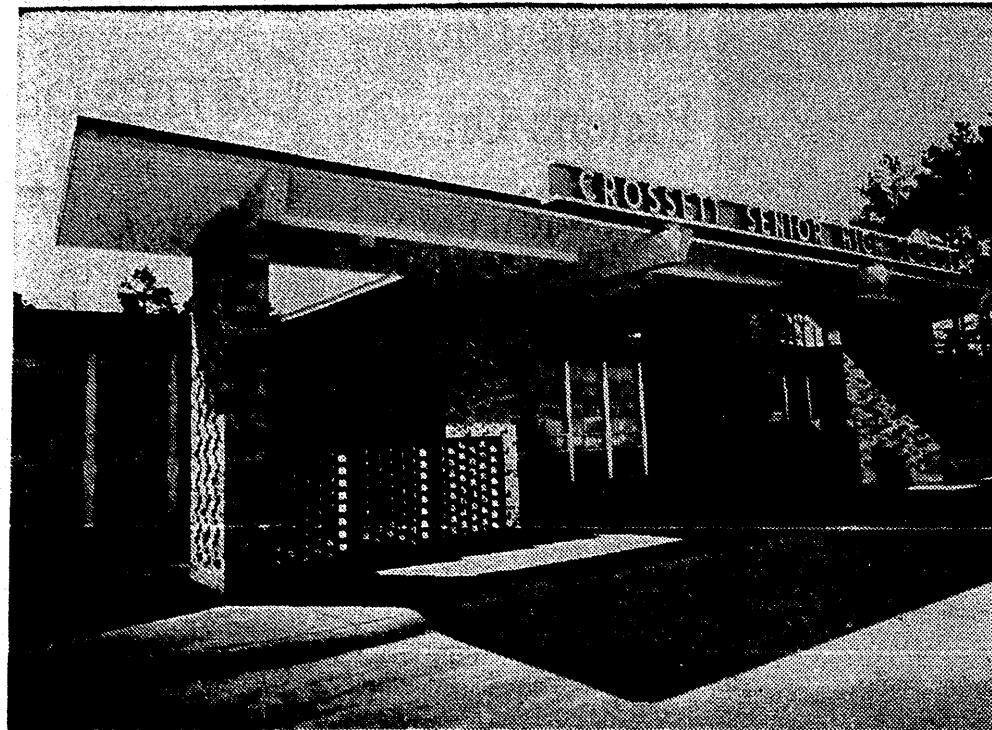

Investigators were sent to the scene immediately, and found the woman holding the dying man in her arms.

The Greenfield woman was transferred to the Ouachita parish jail yesterday morning, awaiting formal charges from the district attorney.

Monroe police said investigation of the case was being continued, but late yesterday, still were unable to come up with a motive for the slaying.

They said the woman had denied the stabbing, but gave no reason for her presence at the scene.

The Clark woman, who phoned the police, gave no indication of having heard or seen anything unusual preceding the slaying, according to police.

BOTH SIDES OF STREET
SCOTTSDUFF, Neb. (AP) — They are working both sides of the political street in the Terry Carpenter family.

State Sen. Terry Carpenter is a candidate for the Republican nomination as governor in the May 10 Nebraska primary election.

Other than his brother he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. P. Walker, and Mrs. Guy Bourgeois.

Both of New Orleans, and two eventually to Richard Nixon.

His wife is a candidate for delegate to the Democratic national convention.

Carpenter once served as a Democratic congressman but later became a Republican. It was Carpenter who, as a delegate to the GOP national conventions in 1956, caused a flurry of excitement by nominating a mythical "Joe Smith" for the vice presidential nomination which went eventually to Richard Nixon.

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — "M-Day" approaches at Crossett High School as students and faculty put their backs to the moving of furnishings and supplies into their new school.

The $659,000 building will be open for classes Monday, March 21st, after almost seven months of repeated postponements caused by labor shortages and weather conditions. For two weeks faculty members and students have formed assembly lines during their off hours moving supplies from the old building to the new, and unloading great vans of furnishings for classrooms at widely separated points in the 54,000 square foot building.

Last weekend students helped their science teachers move busloads and trucks of supplies from the shabby, two - roomed frame building which has housed their expanding science program for the past three years. They carried aquariums, the human skeleton, books and cartons of materials used in lab experiments for physics and chemistry. Superintendent of schools, M. H. Russell, and a shifting group of his faculty have walked miles up corridors with desks, chairs, shelves, and cartons labelled simply, "Special Education" or "Languages Lab."

As each room's furnishings have been checked in as complete, Russell has locked the door of that room, and he and his crew have moved on to the next.

MATERIALS

Each teacher has held back materials for current teaching until the final move. Next weekend will really be "M-Day" and the two buildings will look like an ant heap as students and teachers begin to move the last of the furnishings into place for the dedication ceremonies Sunday, and the Monday opening of the new building. Student and faculty help are making the complicated move possible with only two to three hired men.

Completion of this modern senior high school building brings the total cost of schools and associated structures in Crossett during the past 10 years to $2,462,000. Almost half that amount, $1,100,000, has been donated to the school district, which serves 3,000 pupils, by The Crossett Company.

William F. Norman, President of the Crossett School Board since 1943, and General Manager of The Crossett Company, said in discussing the Company support of the Crossett schools, "The Crossett Company has not only supported the reappraisal program for the purpose of putting all property assessments on a sound basis for school taxes, but it has donated over $1 million for physical improvements and additions to Crossett school facilities."

This has enabled the district to reduce its tax rate to 29 mills and still have adequate operating funds for the continued enrichment of the overall school program. Without the donations the millage would have been too high to carry the necessary bond requirements to support the existing curriculum and enriched program or to build the physical plants supporting that program.

MORE SPACE

The new building will provide space and facilities not only for better work in existing fields, but for additions to the present curriculum. Lack of space has crowded trades and industry subjects out of the curriculum for the past ten years. A completely equipped manual arts area will provide for these studies, and for future teaching of art. One room is equipped with art desks and storage space, with connections for a ceramic kiln. This will be turned to art when the need develops.

A language laboratory is designed with 20 booths for individual reception and taping of foreign languages, as the school moves toward improved pronunciation to give students a really "working" grasp of their language. A speech correction room is also equipped with tape recording equipment for study of speech defects.

Science laboratories are provided with the very finest lab stations, experimental facilities, and storage space available. Home economics equipment is modern and adequate for a growing enrollment, and Russell stated that for the first time in years all the students who wish to will be able to take Home Economics.

Insufficient space and equipment in the past have forced the school to limit the girls on the number of years they might study in that department.

The one - storied building, designed by the architectural firm of Trapp and Clippard of Little Rock, is built in the form of a double U extending from a central court, with four zones arranged so that related studies are grouped together. The "noisy" subjects such as band, choral, and trade and industry, are down one wing with acoustical tile installed for sound control. The sciences and mathematics are down another wing, with social studies also related.

Covered walks hug the inner court of the building, so that students, may pass from one area to another outside, thus reducing hall crowding, and giving a moment of fresh air as they move from one area to another.

The present high school building, designed to serve a maximum of 800 students, has operated this year with 975 children, spilling into the book store, supply rooms, teachers' lunch room, and lounge.

When the 430 senior high school students move out, a greatly enriched program will be made available in both schools. So it is with great joy that both students and teachers are lending a hand this week in Moving Day at the dual reception and taping of foreign languages, as the school moves toward improved pronunciation to give students a really "working" grasp of their language. A speech correction room is also equipped with tape recording equipment for study of speech defects.

Three Injured In Car Wrecks Around Monroe

Three persons received minor injuries in two Monroe automobile accidents yesterday.

A Negro man was reported in satisfactory condition at a local hospital last night, after he received treatment for injuries sustained when his auto steering gear apparently broke and the vehicle went out of control and crashed into a light pole on Jackson Street, police said.

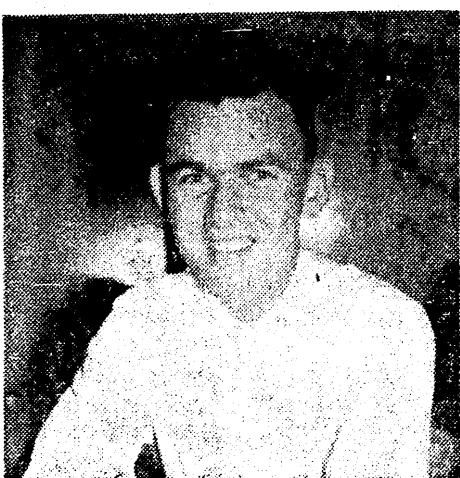

Bennie F. Granger, 47-year-old Negro man of 1003 1/2 Texas Avenue, received undetermined injuries in the mishap. He was alone in the car at the time. The accident occurred south of the Jackson - Paragoud Street intersection.

A head-on collision at the intersection of North 2nd and Breard Streets resulted in minor injuries to drivers of the two cars involved.

Ozee L. Bridges, 41, 1513 McGuire Avenue, Monroe told police he was going north on north second when a car meeting her attempted to make a left turn in front of her vehicle.

Driver of the second identified as Ellis Brent Hales, 20, 506 South 4th Street, Monroe. Both were taken to private physicians. Their conditions were not believed to be serious, according to police reports.

Miss Delancy, Mr. Ross Wed In Pioneer

Miss Betty Jo Delancy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe E. Delancy of Oak Grove, became the bride of George Ray Ross of Ruston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Ray Ross of Forest, Saturday in the Pioneer Methodist parsonage. The Rev. William G. Stegall officiated at the double-ring ceremony before a small group of relatives and friends.

Adding interest to the ceremony is the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Ross, parents of the groom, were married in the same parsonage in 1939 by the Rev. Ledbetter, then pastor of the Pioneer church.

The bride is a senior at Oak Grove high school. The groom, a graduate of Forest high school, is presently attending Louisiana Tech. He is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Blackwell of Forest.

Present for the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Joe E. Delancy, Mrs. W. R. Ross, Mrs. Harley Beebe of Monroe, Mrs. Donald Delancy and daughter, Gwen of Columbia, and Miss Kathy Bain of Ruston.

The young couple will live in Ruston.

March Meet Of Kiroti PTA Held Thursday

The March meeting of the Kiroti P. T. A. was held in the school cafeteria on Thursday.

Mrs. Warner's third grade pupils opened the meeting by performing German folk songs and dances which they have learned during the school year.

The business session was begun with the reading of the minutes by the secretary, Mrs. H. Lonsberry. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. R. Magouik.

Mrs. W. Simon, chairman of the nominating committee, submitted the following names as nominees for officers for the coming year: president, Mrs. W. E. Beard; vice president, Mrs. D. Rainey; secretary, Mrs. B. W. Skipper; treasurer, Mrs. Winston May; parliamentarian, Mrs. Earl Hendricks.

The annual school roundup for new pupils will be held Wednesday, March 23. The roundup will begin with lunch, served to both parents and children at 11:30.

Mrs. Beard and Mrs. Rainey were elected as delegates to the spring conference, March 15, at First Baptist Church in West Monroe.

Mrs. W. McGuire introduced Mrs. Agnes Miller who was guest speaker for the meeting. Her topic was "Culture is for Everyone."

Room count was won by Mrs. Werner's third grade room.

Stage Mothers Are Virulent Tenacious Types

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Women's Editor

One of today's most virulent and tenacious types is the stage mother, says lovely Sandra Church, who admits she owes her current Broadway success to such a one.

Sandra plays the role of Gypsy Rose Lee in the current musical hit, "Gypsy," starring Ethel Merman as the determined and ambitious mother who drove both her daughters to stardom.

"It all sounds so familiar," sighs Sandra. "Of course my mother wasn't quite as violent as Gypsy's, but still she never let me forget that my one goal in life was success on the stage or in the movies."

Sandra made her stage debut at the age of 5, wearing a flag costume and singing "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy" at a neighborhood theater in Hollywood.

Sandra's childhood was filled with ballet and acting lessons and speech practice at home.

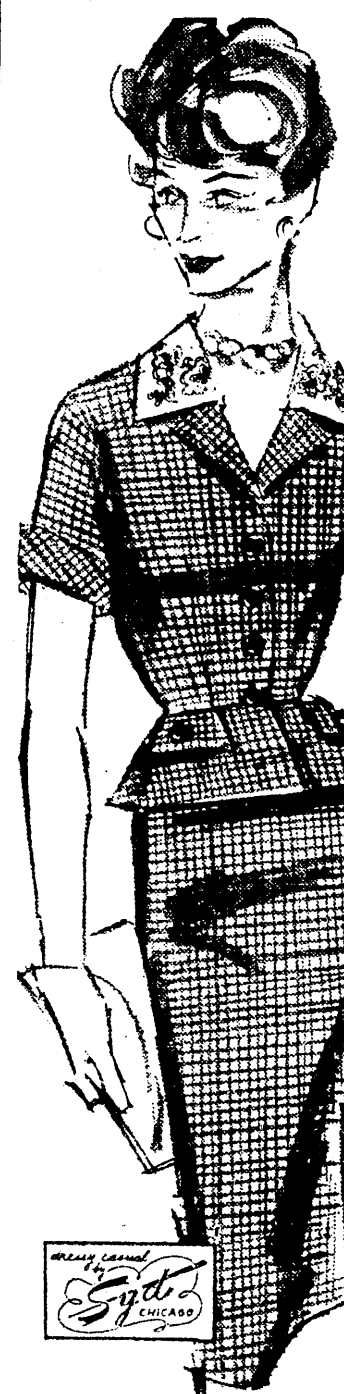

"I had to wear high-laced shoes all the way through grade school, to protect my ankles," says Sandra. "I wore long pigtails all the way through high school, because my mother thought I might be another Margaret O'Brien."

"I never was allowed to go to the beach, for fear I would get freckles. And I always had to wear big sunbonnets, until I finished the eighth grade."

"All my spare time was taken up with lessons and practicing, so I never had a chance to make many friends and go around with the rest of the boys and girls in school."

"I couldn't have dates, because I didn't have time, and I hardly knew how to talk to a boy even when I was 16."

Spring Near But Winter Still Rages Many Stranded In Mountains, More Snow Hits

By UPI

New snows hampered food and fuel airlifts to stranded families in Dixie mountain areas Saturday, a record cold wave gripped the Northeast and a heavy snowstorm built up in the Plains States.

Spring officially was eight days away. It falls on March 20 this year.

But it was deep winter to more than 2,000 persons marooned by snow drifts up to 18 feet deep in the Blue Ridge Mountain country of Northwestern North Carolina and Eastern Tennessee.

Four inches of new snow fell in the mountain area early Saturday, and strong winds and blowing snow throughout the day delayed helicopters flying aid to the isolated families from West Jefferson, N. C.

DIPS

In the northeast, residents shivered in some of the coldest weather of the winter. The mercury dropped to an unofficial 30 below zero at Cassadaga, N. Y. It was minus 22 at Waukegan, N. Y., and 21 below at Arcade, N. Y.

For the third day in a row a low temperature mark was recorded at Rochester, N. Y. It was five below Saturday, three degrees lower than the 1883 record of 2 below.

The mercury plunged to an official 20 below at Pellston, Mich.

Four inches of snow were forecast for the central plains area Saturday night and Sunday, with the heaviest falls expected in South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma.

In the Blue Ridge Mountains, rescue parties told of a few families being stranded in their isolated homes for as much as two weeks with dwindling fuels and only the skimpiest of food supplies.

National Guardsmen, Red Cross personnel and thousands of volunteers were beating through deep snows in rugged mountain areas to aid the stranded.

A makeshift landing strip was set up at West Jefferson, N. C., for helicopters. Three "Weasels" were standing by. Three helicopters did drop fuel and food to marooned families, but takeoffs were delayed by weather.

La. Taxpayers Slated To Save On Retirement

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Secretary H. G. Robinson of the teachers retirement system said Saturday trustees have agreed on changes which will save state taxpayers 2½ million dollars or more a year.

Teachers' retirement already has stacked up assets amounting to 17½ million dollars.

The state faces fiscal gloom in the 1960 Legislature because of cut income.

Any cutback before the 60-day session convenes will make its task that much easier.

State tax money is providing about 18½ million dollars a year toward teacher retirement, at the fixed rate of 12.33 per cent of teachers' salaries.

RATE

This rate is more than double the six per cent teachers themselves contribute. It is a target of frequent political and legislative criticism.

Robinson, secretary of the board of trustees of the Louisiana teacher retirement system, a state agency, said the board has agreed to cut the 12.33 per cent rate starting next fiscal year to 9.96 per cent.

He estimated this would cut the taxpayers' contribution 2½ million dollars a year or more.

The trustees, Robinson said, "on the advice of their actuaries, have agreed to set the state rate of contribution at 9.96 per cent.

In past legislative sessions, lawmakers searching for taxless means of raising more state revenue have cast searching eyes at

$47,000 TAKEN

New Iberia Bank Bandit's Target

NEW IBERIA, La. (AP) — A banker thought it was a carnival prank, but a bandit, armed with a shotgun and wearing a mask, robbed him of $47,000 cash Saturday.

Several men were questioned in connection with the robbery and the kidnapping of the bank manager and his teller. A pair of gloves and a shotgun were found in a car but no money had been recovered.

Leroy Lovas, 45, manager of the drive-in branch of the New Iberia National Bank, and Sidney J. Mayeaux, 55, teller, were taken as hostages, but were released a few minutes later as the bandit apparently made his getaway.

ROBBER

The robber, a slender, short man of about 25, had bedded down on a tarpaulin in some bushes next to the bank building in this cajun - country town. When Mayeaux, carrying a canvas bag with about $47,000, showed up to open the back door of the bank about 8 a.m., the robber pressed the shotgun against his back, and they went into the bank.

Ten minutes later, Lovas knocked at the back door. The bandit partially opened the door and shoved out the shotgun barrel.

Through the crack in the door, Lovas said he glimpsed a "Mardi Gras looking character," and the bank manager grabbed the gun barrel and shook it.

But the man in the headgear covered with clownish polka dots said "come on in or I'll blow your head off."

The bandit wanted Lovas to open the bank vault, but Lovas said he could not do so. It was timed to open at 9 a.m. Besides, added Lovas, there was no money in the vault, and when the bandit spied the bag, he told Lovas to transfer all the paper money—$20, $10, $5 and $1 bills—to an

'Different' Method Of Writing Used

LONDON (AP) — William Saroyan settled down in the front row of a London theater, pushed his gray fedora on the back of his head, and started declaiming to an audience of actors.

At a word from Saroyan, the actors declaimed right back. In this impromptu fashion the 51-year-old American playwright has completed writing the greater part of a two-hour comedy in less than a week.

He started Monday with nothing but an idea and a title, "Sam Who Jumped the Highest of All." The clerk takes to high jumping to bank ahead of his colleagues and in fact gets ahead of the world.

A secretary sits at the author's side through each rehearsal, taking down every word. Sometimes the whole cast drops into idle silence while Saroyan, looking

Florida Hit By Racial Disturbance

Tear Gas Used To Break Up Negroes' March

By UPI

Police used tear gas Saturday to break up a march by Negro students demonstrating against segregation in Tallahassee, Fla., climaxing a day long series of racial disturbances in the Florida capital.

Tear gas was used to disperse a group of Florida A&M (Negro) students marching from the campus toward the city. Police cars blocked the road and tear gas shells were fired into the group by highway patrolmen, sheriff's deputies and city police.

Additional arrests were made. City police had arrested some 30 white and Negro students earlier in the day during a "sitdown" at a downtown dime store.

MARCHES

Following the first arrests, groups of Negro students congregated several times and began marches and demonstrations in the streets.

Prior to the tear gas incident, the marchers were met by a group of white men and angry words were exchanged. The marchers turned back—then regrouped late in the day.

In Jacksonville, Fla., eight Negroes also staged a brief sitdown in a five and 10 cent store, but left when warned by policemen they would be arrested if they remained.

In Newport News, Va., Negro students staged sitdown protests Saturday at segregated lunch counters at five downtown stores

Delegates Meet In Geneva To Debate Arms

GENEVA (AP) — Delegates of the North Atlantic Treaty powers and the Soviet bloc assembled in Geneva Saturday for a 10-nation disarmament conference opening Tuesday. The two blocs brought rival plans to disarm the world that probably will be debated for months.

The Western plan, hammered out in difficult bargaining in Washington and Paris, was given final approval by the NATO Council earlier Saturday in the French capital.

The plan agreed upon by the United States, Britain, France, Canada and Italy, the five Western representatives to the disarmament talks, calls for these three main stages:

STAGES

1. Creation of an international disarmament agency to centralize all records of arms and troops possessed by all nations.

2. Agreement of all nations involved to stop making nuclear weapons. Fissionable material on hand would be converted to atoms-for-peace programs. Unofficially, it was reported that the United States would cut its armed forces to 2,100,000 men if the Soviet agrees to do the same.

3. Agreement to end production of nuclear weapons and ballistic missiles for military use. Eventually, the armies of all nations would be cut to the lowest level needed for security.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin, arriving earlier in the day as the head of the Soviet bloc, announced the rival plan will be based on Premier Nikita

Cubans Seize 2 Americans

HAVANA (UPI) — Two Americans, one of them a candidate for Congress, were seized by Cuban police and held for 10 hours of questioning before their release early Saturday.

John R. Taylor, 28, a candidate for congress in Stillwater, Okla., and Roger Sharp, 25, news director of TV station KOTV in Tulsa, Okla., were arrested Friday while Sharp was taking pictures inside the Agrarian Reform Program building in Havana.

Young Girls Slain While Babysitting

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — A handsome, 29-year-old grandson of a highly respected jurist, asked why he took the lives of two young baby sitters Saturday, told police simply, "It just happened."

Henry Clay Warth is charged with fatally wounding Linda Qualls, 12, and her cousin Penny Qualls, 13, Friday night while they took care of Warth's two children.

"I'd give anything in the world if I knew why," said Warth. Police Chief Herman Frazier said the murder weapon was a .22 rifle, one of the smallest in a firearms collection owned by the accused slayer.

APPREHENDED

When police apprehended Warth six hours later, cruising within the city, several other weapons were found in his car, including rifles and pistols and a .303 machine gun.

All were loaded, Frazier said the machine gun, which weighed nearly 75 pounds, was so complicated that after Warth had been booked and jailed, police had to ask his help to unload it.

Warth also had with him in his car his son, Henry, 4, and Jennifer Lynn, 3. He apparently had grabbed the youngsters and taken off on a wild ride with them after the shooting.

Warth's wife, Margaret, and Mrs. Clarence Qualls, mother of Linda returned from a babyshow in the neighborhood at 11 p.m. and discovered the tragedy.

Penny was dead on arrival at a hospital, and Linda died there an hour later.

Penny had been shot in the head, and a bullet struck Linda in the neck.

Warth in his cell, gave his account.

"I came home," he said, "I'd been out drinking a lot. The girls

LOGAN, W. Va. (AP) — Hopes for a final breakthrough to 18 trapped coal miners rose again Saturday night when the rescue leader said a makeshift ventilation system was "working well."

Bomb Explodes In Havana; 4 Agents Hurt

HAVANA (AP) — A grenade or bomb exploded in the Havana customs office Saturday, wounding four army intelligence agents who were examining it, harbor police reported.

Police said it was not known whether the explosive device came from the cargo of the French freighter La Coubre which blew up in Havana Harbor last week.

The customs office is about a mile from the scene of the dockside explosion that killed more than 60 persons. Two grenades from the ship's cargo were blamed for two small blasts that occurred later in the debris of the ship explosion.

SURVIVORS

Meanwhile, 22 surviving crewmen from the La Coubre missed a plane for San Juan, Puerto Rico, because of "some immigration troubles," a Delta Airlines official said.

A Cuban immigration official said, however, that the crewmen arrived at the airport too late to catch their plane.

The sailors were scheduled to catch a ship at San Juan that would take them back to France. Six of the La Coubre's crew of 37 were killed or are listed as missing in the munitions explosions.

TOP PERFORMANCE INDICATED

Pioneer Is Sending Good Radio Signals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pioneer V sent back strong radio signals Saturday night, indicating a top flight performance as it jabbed steadily through the sea of space.

Scientists predicted the beach-ball-size sphere would be 292,030 miles from the earth by midnight EST, clipping along at 6,219 miles per hour.

As expected, the earth's magnetic attraction was still slowing the sphere's speed. Its velocity was 24,869 miles per hour Friday morning when it kicked free of the rocket that had lofted it from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Information being relayed back from the newest U.S. space probe was being accumulated in tape form to be analyzed later by scientists. It is investigating space conditions between the planet Venus and the earth.

A spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said space experts had not set a definite time for the start of their study on Pioneer V's relay.

In the past such information has accumulated for several days before scientists began to analyze it.

NASA gave these estimates on the space shot's progress: 4 p.m. EST Saturday, 238,730 miles out at 6,366 miles per hour; 8 p.m., 263,980 at 6,290.

Britain's huge radiotelescope at Jodrell Bank picked up Pioneer's steady whistling signal Saturday as the sphere soared across British skies. One scientist described the signal there as "a nice steady tone, slightly garbled but loud and clear."

Panel Quits After 8-Day Deliberation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The long, sensational Finch murder trial — a saga of suburban sex and violent death — ended Saturday with a crashing anticlimax.

The jury after eight days of deliberation was unable to decide whether Dr. R. Bernard Finch and his pretty mistress, Carole Tregoff, coldly plotted and callously murdered his socialite wife.

The judge discharged the panel of five men and seven women and the district attorney said there will be a retrial.

The wealthy surgeon broke down and sobbed when the jury was polled. Red-haired Miss Tregoff, ex-model who became his receptionist and then his sweetheart, also was in tears.

Newsmen could talk to neither, but Dr. Finch's attorney said his only comment was: "I'm terribly disappointed."

CRIED

Miss Tregoff's attorney said she said nothing. "She just cried," he said.

The case was returned to Superior Court for a hearing March 17 at which a new trial date will be set, probably late in April.

Whether the majority of jurors favored conviction on the twin charges each defendant faced—murder and conspiracy to murder—was not disclosed. The judge admonished them to keep silent.

The split was 10-2 on Dr. Finch's murder charge, 8-4 on his conspiracy charge. It was 8-4 on both of Miss Tregoff's charges.

The often-dramatic trial, one of the most intriguing murder cases of modern times, has been a national conversation piece since Barbara Jean Finch's body was found eight months ago sprawled on a neighbor's lawn.

The jury by failing to agree in

Plane Limp 700 Miles To Safe Landing

SHANNON, Ireland (AP) — A fierce jolt shattered the sleepy calm aboard an airliner crammed with American servicemen and their families flying over the Atlantic Saturday.

For 100 feet or so the big DCs flopped through the sky before three of its engines bit into the air once more and resumed their haul. The remaining engine roared uselessly with a cracked cylinder. The pilot flicked it out of action.

Then the plane, operated by American Overseas National Airways, limped on for 700 miles and landed safely at Shannon.

The plane carried 90 passengers and a crew of 12.

ROUTINE

One airport official described the incident as routine.

It was anything but that for the passengers, American Army personnel with wives and children traveling from New York to Frankfurt. But as Sgt. Harry Thomas said later, there was no panic.

"Some of us woke up abruptly after the jolt," said Thomas, of West Point, Miss.

"Then we looked through the window and saw the motionless prop."

"Everyone behaved admirably some of the children even played during the emergency."

Another passenger was Capt. Richard Reidy of Blaine, Wash.

"When the cylinder cracked the plane dropped altitude but nobody panicked," Reidy said. "After the

The last is the best, as they say. Here at the end of the winter season, we are having a flurry of activity in the entertainment department. Each of our concert and or theatrical series are presenting its most outstanding offerings at this time.

The Northeast Louisiana State concerts association offered two of the best within six days of each other. "Dark at the Top of the Stairs" was the play last Saturday night. And on Friday the group presented Fred Waring and his chorus and orchestra. Both performances were in the Neville auditorium, and both open only to season members of the series.

This coming week "The King and I" will be presented by the Fine Arts department of Northeast Louisiana State college. This most popular of musicals will be seen by the public, Friday and Saturday nights in the college auditorium.

Members of the Louisiana Tech Concert association will drive to Ruston next week for the performance by the National Ballet of Canada. This group made such a hit when they were presented there two years ago that they have been booked for a return engagement Wednesday, March 23.

Our own Little Theatre is the scene of spirited nightly rehearsals for "Guys and Dolls." Opening night for this play will be sometime in April. The annual musical is one of the highlights of the Little Theatre season, and usually plays an extended run.

The HOPE V. TARVERS were in Baton Rouge this week for the four day annual session of the Grand Lodge of the 100F and the Rebekah assembly of the state of Louisiana. The meeting was held at the Capitol House. Hope is a past Grand Patriarch of the organization, and Nileen is state musician for the assembly and installing officer of the Rebekah assembly.

DOLORES PRATKA of Houston, Texas, is the guest of her parents, the JULIUS IRVINGS, this week. WERNER PRATKA will join his wife here next weekend.

In the midst of a week's trip to the West are the JAMAR AD- COCKS and the BILLY BOLES of Rayville. They left Wednesday, flying to Phoenix, and yesterday flew on to San Francisco, where they will visit until Wednesday. A "long weekend" — Friday, till Wednesday — was the schedule for a group of friends going to Hot Springs. In the party were the BREWER GODFREYS, JEWEL RIVERS and the G. L. MORGANS.

The National Bridge Tournament in Jackson, Mississippi, is attracting much attention from our duplicate players. Some are there now, others expecting to go during the coming week. Among those over for the Saturday afternoon, Saturday night, and Sunday play are MARION MAYER, ELISE MAPP, and FERRIS YOUNGBLOOD.

The oyster roast, originally scheduled for this coming Saturday night at Bayou DeSiard country club, has been postponed a week, will now be held Saturday, March 26. . . . The Gourmet Buffet last evening attracted a goodly number of club members. The Entertainment committee hosted the party, which featured a menu of special delicacies.

Guests of the SIDNEY GILLS this weekend are his sister, MAUDE S. MCLEARY, and daughter SUSAN, of Shreveport.

SARA RHYMES celebrated a birthday this week, and was entertained at lunch by friends on three successive days in honor of the event. Hostesses were MARTHA GRANT, JUNE GODFREY, and KATHERINE JORDAN.

Arriving this weekend is MRS. HENRY DAVIS of Williamsburg, Kentucky. She will visit the H. H. DAVIS, Jr., family for several weeks.

Last weekend, Friday until Monroe night, the JIMMY MOORES and son JAMES were in New Orleans. While Jimmy was busy with meetings, Betty and James were making the tour of historical spots of interest to the young student.

Young Miss CINDY WILLIAMS celebrated her sixth birthday with a party at home Friday. The group played games, with BECKY BEALLE winning the "Pin the Butterfly" and DEBBY SCHONLAU, the musical rabbit game. The little guests were given scissors to cut down the rings which hung on pink ribbons from a white - painted tree. Other favors were pastel china cups. Tiny figures of white swans held pink candles on the pale pink birthday cake, which was wreathed with camellias. Twenty - six kindergarten children attended the party.

An outdoor at-home party honored ROBERT STEVEN GILL on his eighth birthday Thursday. An Indian theme was carried out in decorations, with an Indian and his canoe on the birthday cake. Ice cream was served with the cake and candy given as favors to the twenty boys and girls who attended.

Eleven-year-old CYNTHIA TERZIA entertained with a "Coke party" Friday afternoon. Her "big" present, a record player, and tiny potted plants were the favors given to the fifteen girls.

Give me a healthy body, Lord, And sense to keep it at its best, Whatever work I find to do I'll do it with a hearty zest. Give me a mind that is not bored That does not whimper, whine or sigh, Don't let me worry overmuch About the fussy thing called "I".

Miss Wilson, Dr. Pickles Plan June Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Wilson, of this city, have announced the engagement of his daughter, Marilyn Kay, to Dr. Tomm H. Pickles, of Honolulu, Hawaii, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Pickles of Salem, Oregon. The wedding is planned for June 3, in the Central Christian church of Pilot Point, Texas. Miss Wilson attended Texas Christian university and received her degree in food and nutrition from North Texas State college. She completed her internship in Dietetics at Charity Hospital, New Orleans, and served as a dietitian at Ochsner Foundation hospital before accepting her present position as dietitian at North Texas State college. She is a member of Kappa Delta sorority.

Dr. Pickles attended Oregon State college, and was graduated from Willamette university. He received his D. M. D. degree from the University of Oregon. He served with the United States Public Health Service in New Orleans and in Alameda, Calif., and is presently with the health service in Honolulu. His fraternities are Sigma Chi and Psi Omega, professional dental fraternities.

That keeps the good and pure in sight, Which seeing sin, is not appalled But finds a way to set it right. Give me a sense of humor, Lord, Give me the grace to see a joke, To get some happiness from life And pass it on to other folk.

It is generally conceded by health authorities that many of the infectious diseases are spread among members of a family through the dishes, drinking glasses and silverware in daily use.

Though the eating utensils may be washed and dried thoroughly, some disease-carrying bacteria will remain when dishes are washed and dried manually. This danger, however, is virtually eliminated when dishes are washed in automatic home dishwashing units.

W. B. Nelson, Jr., Will Claim Bride In Houston

Mr. and Mrs. Bon Ingram Taylor of Houston, Texas, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Linda Lou, to William Bernard Nelson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Bernard Nelson of West Monroe.

Miss Taylor's paternal grandparents are Mrs. John Vinson Taylor and the late Mr. Taylor of Trenton, Tennessee. Her maternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. William Riley Hickman of Trenton, Tennessee.

Mr. Nelson's paternal grandparents are Mrs. Clay Roach of Lillie, Louisiana and the late Mr. Malcolm Nelson of Lillie. His maternal grandparents are Mrs. T. Chester Gist and the late Mr. Gist of Lake Providence. The wedding will take place on April 30, in River Oaks Baptist Church of Houston, Texas.

ALEXANDRIA DIOCESAN

Catholic Women Group To Meet

The Most Reverend Richard O. Gerow, bishop of Natchez-Jackson, Miss., will be featured speaker at the third annual convention of the Alexandria Diocesan Council of Catholic Women here next Saturday.

More than 200 women from 57 north Louisiana communities are expected at the two-day convention, March 19-20, according to Mrs. D. M. Moore of Monroe, Council president.

Highlights of the sessions will be an informal reception honoring the Most Rev. Charles P. Greco, on the 14th anniversary of his consecration as bishop of the Alexandria diocese.

Miss Nora LeTourneau of Washington, D. C., lawyer, field secretary for the National Council of Catholic Women and member of the Illinois Bar Association, will conduct a workshop on organization and development Saturday morning.

Bishop Gerow will speak on "The Value of Federation" at the 1 p.m. luncheon Saturday, in the Frances Hotel.

REGISTRATION

Mrs. Malcolm Smith of Monroe, general chairman, says that registration will be in the Frances, headquarters for the convention, from 5 to 6 p.m. Thursday, starting again at 5 p.m. Friday, and at 8 a.m. Saturday in the lobby.

A special Youth Program is slated for 9:15 a.m. Sunday. The Rev. Donald J. Thomas, Diocesan Youth Director from Alexandria, Miss. Mary Anne Juneau, lay advisor, Junior C.Y.O., Cottonport and Mrs. George LeTouneau of Lake Providence, chairman of the Alexandria Diocesan Committee on Youth will conduct a panel discussion.

Mrs. Moore said that the panel would interest mothers who want a well-rounded youth program in the diocese.

The Right Rev. Msgr. John C. Marsh of St. Matthews church and the Monroe Deanery with Mrs. Connie Petrus of Bastrop as president will co-host the convention.

At 6 p.m. Saturday, Bishop Greco will be celebrant at Mass at St. Joseph's church on Benton Street.

He then will be guest of honor at an informal reception and buffet supper on the Frances roof. Msgr. Marsh will present him with a gift, to commemorate his fourteenth anniversary as Bishop of Alexandria.

Entertainment will be a skit, directed by Mrs. M. W. Blaes. The cast will include Mrs. Rose Bartlett, Mrs. Virginia Popham, Mrs. Janet Golson, Miss Charlene Corro, Mrs. John Guerrero and Miss Edna Doyle.

Balloting for new officers of the Council will take place from 5 to 5 p.m. Saturday in the Frances lobby.

A report of the election will be made Sunday at a 1 p.m. luncheon. Bishop Greco will be guest speaker at the luncheon. Other speakers will include Miss Margaret Pitchford, of Natchez, Miss. National Director of the NCCW (Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas three-state province), Dr. LaMoine C. Bleich of Ruston, and the Council President's message.

CONVENTION

According to Mrs. Moore, the program for the two-day convention will be:

Saturday, 8 a.m. registration; 8:30 a.m., executive board meeting, room 212, Frances hotel; 9:15 a.m., general business meeting, rooms A and B, with civic welcome extended by Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard, Monroe and Mayor J. Allan Norris, West Monroe; workshop on organization and development, Miss Nora LeTourneau.

Luncheon, 1 p.m.; Panel and workshop from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Mrs. Eugenia Cook of Shreveport, diocesan chairman, will serve as moderator for the panel. Mrs. L. M. Brinson, Monroe, will represent parish councils, Mrs. William Yeager, Mounds, will discuss deanery council work, Mrs. Howard Sherman, Shreveport, will detail diocesan activities and Miss Margaret Pitchford of Natchez will review work of the National Council.

Saturday Mass, 6 p.m., St. Joseph's church; 7:30 p.m. informal reception and buffet dinner, Frances roof.

Sunday morning Mass, 8 a.m., St. Matthews church. Bishop Charles P. Greco will be celebrant.

Youth workshop, 9:15 a.m., followed by open discussion. "The Catholic Woman in Parish Work" will be discussed by the Rev. Joseph Scherer of St. Pius church in Shreveport.

Resolutions, credentials and election committee chairman then will report.

Dinner, 1 p.m., on Frances roof.

Delegates from Rayville, Delhi, Bonita, Oak Grove, Lake Providence, Winnsboro, Columbia, Alexandria, St. John, Ruston, Farmerville, Calhoun, St. Joseph, Gonesboro, Hodge, Vidalia, Ferriday, Tallulah, Waterproof, Monroe, West Monroe and other north Louisiana communities will attend the convention.

Mrs. Moore said that all area women may attend, and that membership in a church organization is not necessary.

GUEST

Mrs. J. Serio of Alexandria, sister of Bishop Greco, will be guest at the convention.

Three featured exhibits will include: four little girls dressed as Chinese youngsters, who will be "living replicas" of dolls made by Chinese refugees who escaped from Red China.

They now live on Formosa and in other non-Communist areas in the Far East, and orders will be taken for their dolls, with the money going to aid them.

St. Mary's Training school will display ceramics, rugs and dolls made by mentally retarded youngsters at the school.

Books from the Catholic Bookstore in Alexandria will be displayed, as part of the Council's literature and libraries project.

Council officers include: Mrs. D. M. Moore, Monroe, president; Mrs. Marietta J. Flynn, Alexandria, recording secretary; Mrs. J. N. Damien, Marksville, treasurer; Miss Magdalen Amman, Monroe, corresponding secretary.

Vice-presidents are: Mrs. F. A. Flynn, Alexandria, Alexandria deanery; Mrs. Denise Bennett, Cottonport, Marksville deanery; Mrs. Connie Petrus, of Bastrop, Monroe deanery vice-president; Mrs. Lucille D. Kelly, Natchitoches deanery vice-president; Mrs. C. A. Buss, Shreveport deanery vice-president; and Miss Rose Massony, Waterproof, St. Joseph deanery vice-president.

Committee chairmen are: Mrs. Gordon Cloutier, Shreveport, spiritual development; Mrs. George Lensing, Lake Providence, youth; Mrs. Grover C. Cook, Shreveport, organization and development; Mrs. Murrel E. Price, Seiper, rural life; Mrs. Hyman Cohen Jr., Natchez, confraternity; Mrs. Howard Sherman, Shreveport, literature and libraries; Mrs. L. F. Rolleigh, Calhoun, Catholic charities; Mrs. Jules W. Dominguez, Alexandria, public relations and historian.

Members at large are: Miss Germain Bordelon, Cottonport, Marksville deanery; Mrs. Burl Hollis, Monroe deanery; Mrs. John Caplis, Bossier City, Shreveport deanery; Mrs. Rose Fairbanks, Vidalia, St. Joseph deanery.

Co-chairmen for the convention is Mrs. John LaDart, serving with Chairman Mrs. Malcolm Smith.

Registration committee is headed by Miss Magdalen Amman, with Mrs. Helen B. Wasson, co-chairman.

Mrs. Burl Hollis is ticket committee chairman.

Resolutions committee chairman is Miss Kathryn Douciere. Mrs. Robert Schott and Mrs. Anthony Messina are on the transportation committee.

Mrs. John Bellan is in charge of hotel reservations, while tickets for the luncheons will be sold by Mrs. Rose Haddad, Mrs. James P. Scalia and Mrs. A. F. Canizaro.

Mrs. A. M. Guerriero is in charge of decorations. Mrs. Eunice Scroggs and Mrs. Paul Goldman will arrange the informal reception.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of the wartime president, flew here Saturday from Sarasota where an anonymous telephone caller had threatened to kill her. She said she knew nothing about the threat.

"It wasn't upsetting at all," said the 75-year-old Mrs. Roosevelt. "I pay no attention to things of that kind. I understand it happened yesterday, but I wasn't told about it until this morning."

Mrs. Roosevelt came here to participate in a benefit ball at Miami Beach for Girls Town, a charity organized by Mrs. Horace Dodge of Palm Beach and patterned after the famous Boys Town, Neb.

Mrs. Roosevelt spoke at a Democratic rally near Bradenton Friday night.

MRS. D. M. MOORE is president of the Alexandria Diocesan Council of Catholic Women, which will hold its third annual convention in Monroe next Saturday and Sunday.

the multi-million-dollar teacher retirement assets.

Rev. T. T. Fields of Union Parish tried to divert the annual taxpayer contributions into a teacher pay raise. He failed.

In the 1960 Legislature, Fields said in an interview, he has no plans for the retirement system.

In legislative hearings, Robinson repeatedly has explained the soundness of the retirement system reserves, which are invested in federal, state and municipal bonds.

To constant legislative questions about the need for such a giant reserve, Robinson always emphasized funds being paid out now go to teachers who retired many years ago at much smaller salaries.

In the years just ahead, because of tremendous growth in number of teachers and their mounting salaries, retirement expense will grow larger and larger.

The 175 million in assets brings an annual interest income of about 5 1/2 million which, Robinson said, under state law, is credited to accounts of teachers who are retirement system members but have not retired. There are 20,000 teachers.

About 2,350 teachers are retired and draw benefits. The interest income also is credited to funds being accumulated to pay the state's portion of retirement benefits, Robinson said.

Paul Kiene, Ruston, president of the Northeast Louisiana Hospital Council, said that S. E. Burgoyne, administrator of St. Francis hospital will serve as host for the meeting. "The opened" hospital to be displayed in Ruston April 8 and 9 will be of special interest to those communities which have been given custody of the "packaged" emergency hospitals.

The eight Civil Defense emergency hospitals stored at Ruston, Monroe, Minden, Natchitoches and Tallulah are to be opened and set up only under certain emergency conditions, said Kiene. He explained that the unit to be shown in Ruston next month was assigned Louisiana for training, education and display purposes.

"In view of the fact that many professional, civic and other groups in Ruston have volunteered to organize for operation of our two emergency hospitals, Ruston hospital decided to sponsor bringing the emergency display facility from Lake Charles, said Kiene. "We hope that hospital administrators, members of the medical and allied professions, public officials and the public will be our guests in seeing the 'opened' emergency hospital when it is brought to Ruston."

The hospital to be displayed in Ruston was used in Hurricane Audrey under the direction of its custodian, Joseph Hinsley, administrator of the Lake Charles Memorial hospital, said Kiene.

"Mr. Hinsley is recognized as one of the nation's authorities on the Civil Defense emergency hospital and is the chairman of a Louisiana Hospital association committee which is preparing a manual which recommends ways in which to store, set up and utilize the Civil Defense emergency hospitals."

THE STATESMEN QUARTET, singers of spiritual and gospel songs, will appear in the West Monroe High school Monday night sponsored by the West Monroe Kiwanis Club. The statesmen have traveled over a million miles, taking them into 38 states with their songs of good will.

Stratford birthplace is thick with the smell of success and new paint.

Saroyan saw "The Hostage" and wrote to Miss Littlewood to say he admired it. The reply was an invitation to work at Stratford himself. He expects "Sam" to open at Stratford within four weeks. It will move to the West End, too, if the public likes it. Writing, casting and direction are all in his hands. The write-as-you-go method, he says, is tough on the actors — especially while the final shape still is obscure — but makes sure the finished play is what the author wants.

At the fourth rehearsal one of the cast suddenly cried: "At last I see what this play is all about." "Brother," said Saroyan, "I wish I did."

first big jolt we straightened out and flew smoothly on to Shannon."

Through the windows passengers could see a Shackleton aircraft of the Royal Air Force cruising watchfully alongside. It had flown out in response to the airliner's emergency call.

At Shannon the emergency drill was in force, with fire trucks and rescue teams on the alert. They weren't needed.

Passengers rested a while, and then went off on a tour of Irish beauty spots while mechanics worked on the broken cylinder.

The plane is expected to leave Sunday.

Fashion Tips Given In New Fashion Primer

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK NEW YORK (UPI) — A new primer on fashion faces up to differences in padding and bone structure among American females.

The booklet, "How To Be Well Dressed," contains fashion tips for the tall, the short, the plump and the thin woman.

It even considers the women who are extra-long-waisted with short legs and the ones who are the reverse — extra-short-waisted with long legs.

The primer is part of an extensive and long-range community service program of basic fashion education started by the International Ladies Garment Workers Union.

Authors of the high fashion primer for all American women are Eleanor Lambert and Diane Papert. Miss Lambert, fashion authority, is the woman who originated the "ten best dressed" sweepstakes in the female fashion field.

SPECIFICATIONS OUTLINED
Capsuled, here's what the experts prescribe for women of specific body types:

If you are tall—proportion your height with a longer jacket, tunic or three-quarter length coat, a wide belt or a bold color contrast. In-between prints are for you, not too bold, but never tiny. Don't resign yourself to flat shoes. A moderate heel is more becoming to legs and morale.

If you are short—think "tall" and wear vertical lines with the emphasis high—say a broad white collar or a bright scarf. High hats and heels are good builds. Slim skirts, single color outfits, accessories scaled to your size, short jackets and rather short skirts are good. Best if your belt matches, and keep it narrow.

If you are plump — you'll only bulge out below and above if you squeeze in your waist. Thick tweeds and gaudy prints fatten. If your neck is short, gravitate to the new collarless coats and suits, wear earrings and an upswipe hairdo, but no necklace. Tailored lines, dark colors, unshiny fabrics, conservative dark-ground prints are best for you. Flared skirts will flatter you more than straight ones, but keep hipline narrow and smooth. Avoid round or oval necklines, puff sleeves and sleevelessness.

EMPHASIZE SIMPLICITY
If you are extra-long-waisted with short legs — concentrate the interest of your costume above the bosom. A white collar, a draped neckline, a colored yoke, a bright scarf accomplish this. Wide belts and sashes, deep set-in waistbands all give a "rise" to the waistline and make the legs look longer.

If you are extra-short-waisted with long legs — the slimmer skirt or the full skirt without petticoats looks more elegant and more balanced. Use every device to give yourself a lengthened torso: the fitted bodice that moulds past the waist to the hipbone, the low set-in belt, the skirt that drapes to one side.

Regardless of your build, the experts urge you to remember that simplicity is a key consideration when striving for the "best-dressed" look.

"The fussy costume is as out-of-date, as indigestible, as the ten-course dinner," authorities Lambert and Papert said.

Charity League Installs New Board, Provisionals

The Junior Charity League of Monroe held its monthly meeting at the Paragon, Saturday, March 5. Mrs. Benton Wakefield, Mrs. Pascal Norris, and Mrs. Herbert Land served as the luncheon committee. Red candles in silver candelabra with camellias entwined in ivy made up the lovely table decorations.

Mrs. Miles Sager, outgoing president, introduced as guests Mrs. Alton Westbrook of Jackson, Mississippi, Mrs. Clyde Brown, Mrs. Fred Westrom, Mrs. DeWitt William, Mrs. Ben Marshall, Mrs. William Durrett, Mrs. A. C. Warner, Mrs. Max Funderburk.

She then turned the meeting over to Mrs. Thad Ryan, incoming president, who introduced the new official board for the year.

They are president, Mrs. Thad Ryan; vice president, Mrs. John Hart; secretary, Mrs. Don Giffen; treasurer, Mrs. Stan Bagwell; assistant treasurer, Mrs. William Parker; admissions chairman, Mrs. Jack Smith; Charity hospital chairman, Mrs. Brooks Dawkins; Charities, Mrs. Hilary Sanders; Community arts, Mrs. John Cale; crippled children's clinic, Mrs. R. G. Hart; education, Mrs. Don Giffen; finance, Mrs. Sol Courtman; nominating, Mrs. Kirt Touchstone; placement, Mrs. Robert Clay; provisionals, Mrs. D. C. Bernhardt; public relations, Mrs. Kent Anderson; social service, Mrs. Tom Hyland; Thrift Shop, Mrs. Jack Madden; member-at-large, Mrs. Roy Ledbetter.

Provisionals for the coming year welcomed by the president were Mrs. William Brown, Mrs. Edgar Chapman, Mrs. Dan Cox, Mrs. Robert Dougherty, Mrs. John Ensminger, Mrs. Jack Fluck, Mrs. Gregor Goetzals, Mrs. Tom Boyd Grayson, Miss Fran Guthrie, Mrs. George Holt, Mrs. R. D. Kellogg, Mrs. T. A. McCrocklin, Mrs. T. W. Meriwether, Mrs. C. A. Petrus, Mrs. Marvin Ramsey, Mrs. Ryan Sartor, Mrs. Ed Seymour, Jr., Mrs. Jack Tarver, Mrs. Herbert Wilson. Returning to the League are Mrs. David Garrett Jr., Mrs. Haynes Harkey, Mrs. George Hibbard, Jr., Mrs. Christian Ulrich, Mrs. Frances Whiteley, and Miss Mary Wilton McHenry.

Outgoing members recognized were Mrs. Benton Wakefield, Mrs. Pascal Norris, Mrs. W. A. Calloway, Mrs. Roy Cole, Jr., Mrs. Bruce Gregg, Mrs. Doyle Hamilton, Mrs. Allen Jones, Mrs. Ben Oliphant, and Mrs. Fred Sartor.

Bug Killers

Bug killers are not to be trifled with. Some such poisons, especially in the organic phosphate group, are easily absorbed by the human skin so that even a few drops can be fatal.

If any pesticide gets on your skin, immediate action is needed. Wash the entire area thoroughly with soap and water. This destroys the chemicals quickly and effectively. It's always wise to wash after using any such compounds, whether or not they spill or splash.

Sweet Tip

Want a recipe for a simple doughnut glaze? Then add one fourth cup of boiling water to one cup of confectioner's sugar. Drain doughnuts on absorbent paper then dip immediately into the warm glaze.

Miss Stephens, Mr. Toon To Wed In June

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Stephens, of Crossett, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Nancy Carolyn, to Donald Layne Toon, son of Mr. J. L. Toon and the late Mrs. Toon of Cove, Arkansas.

Miss Stephens is a senior at the University of Arkansas School of Nursing at Little Rock.

Mr. Toon is a senior at the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville, majoring in pre-medical work. He is president of Alpha Gamma Rho social fraternity, and a member of Alpha Zeta, Alpha Tau Alpha honorary fraternities, and president of the Young Democrats Club.

The wedding is planned for June 11th, in the First Methodist Church of Crossett.

New Carpets

The latest carpets of man-made fibers combine new heights in easy care with new depths in deep pile.

These rugs, deeply sculptured in a frosted, fur-like fabric, have a deceptively lush look because they aren't a bit fragile. Spills and smudges of an emergency nature, as well as general soil, can be wiped away with a sudsy sponge.

Remember This

Kitchen arithmetic: you'll need about ¾ pound macaroons to yield ¼ cup. Don't try to crush fresh macaroons into crumbs! Dry the cookies first.

Was That Really A Submarine In Argentine

EDITOR'S NOTE — Was that really a submarine the Argentine navy was chasing in the Golfo Nuevo last month? There seems to be fairly general agreement now that there was one — and perhaps two — in those waters. Argentine naval officers are irked about the skepticism. In the following dispatch, Roman Jimenez, of the AP's Buenos Aires bureau, who went to the scene during the hunt, gives the latest assessment of the situation, together with the various theories.

By ROMAN JIMENEZ
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Argentine naval officers, foreign naval attaches in Buenos Aires, and at least some U.S. experts say they are certain at least one and probably two foreign submarines were active in Golfo Nuevo last month.

Atom Trace Used To Find More Water

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert S. Kerr (D-Okla.) said Saturday that atomic tracers are being used in an effort to locate and measure new, reliable sources of underground water.

Kerr, chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Water Resources, made the announcement in releasing a report prepared for his group by the Atomic Energy Commission and the U.S. Geological Survey.

The report said research projects to develop the new atomic techniques for discovering water resources are under way in New Jersey, Wisconsin, and New Mexico.

The researchers are using tritium, a radioactive isotope of hydrogen injected into the atmosphere in nuclear bomb tests, to tag rainfall drops so that they may be traced as they find their way into underground water reservoirs.

The report said raindrops have an affinity for absorbing minute and harmless quantities of tritium from nuclear fallout in the atmosphere.

Samples of underground water are being taken from test wells at different places and depths, the report explained. The tritium tags reveal the origin of the water and also give information as to how and where it percolates into the earth and how fast it travels.

The report said chemical dyes have been used in similar studies of underground water but their value has been limited.

These are the places at which the atomic techniques are being tested: the Wharton tract watershed near Burlington, N.J.; Lebanon State Forest in New Jersey; Black Earth Creek near Madison, Wis.; and Lake McMillan, near Carlsbad, N.M.

The report said atomic energy also is being studied as a possible source of low-cost heat for desalinating sea water.

Argentina that greeted official announcements that a submarine had been detected in the little Gulf of Argentina's south Atlantic coast.

A ranking admiral in the Argentine navy said privately that one foreign submarine still was lurking off the coast last week. He had just returned from the Gulf area.

The admiral concurred with President Arturo Frondizi, who told a news conference while President Eisenhower was visiting last Sunday that an alien submarine had been in the Gulf, which Argentina claims as territorial waters.

Frondizi declined to speculate on the nationality. But Argentine naval officers said privately it was a fast, new Soviet submarine. The Soviet Union and all other naval powers denied they had a submarine operating in the Argentine area.

The skepticism arose because the Argentine navy has chased phantom submarines before. And the Argentine navy this time prevented reporters from watching antisubmarine operations.

The U.S. Navy sent down experts to help the Argentine navy in the search. Some of these men who were available to comment privately were convinced this time it was no phantom.

Some domestic critics of the navy said the announcement of a submarine in the Gulf was the result of errors in reading sonar contacts. Some went further and claimed the Argentine navy only wanted to support its case for getting more funds.

Reporters who went to Puerto Madryn, a town on the shore of Golfo Nuevo, talked with officers and crew of the Argentine ships taking part in the operation. They reported the navy men were convinced a submarine—not a whale—was in the Gulf.

"At one time," one captain told reporters, "we clearly detected the sub near our frigate. We let go all seven of our remaining depth charges. But the sub's captain seemed to know that we had no more left, because he slowly crept to our side, as shown by our radar markings. We could do nothing against it then."

Other officers said they had damaged a submarine in the Gulf and it had shown technical prowess by finally escaping into the Atlantic.

One informant quoted an unidentified foreign naval attaché as saying that what the Argentines actually were chasing was a new Soviet weapon, a tiny bait-submarine.

This was the version attributed to the attaché: the bait-submarine, perhaps little more than seven feet long, navigates by remote control. On sonar and radar it appears to be a much larger submarine. The bait-submarine has instruments to gather information about the sea bottom.

A common complaint of the Argentine officers was that their ships and armaments are obsolete and unable to cope with a modern submarine they said could make 21 knots submerged.

The closest thing to a modern fighting ship the Argentines had in the area was an Argentine-built frigate, the Murature, a 1,000-ton vessel theoretically capable of 18 knots.

Faster in theory, but not in practice, was the frigate Heroína. This 1,400-ton ship is the old U.S. Navy's Reading, launched in 1943. She was transferred to Argentina after World War II.

Antisubmarine weapons are similarly obsolete. The navy was incensed—officially—by newspaper reports that their depth charges were effective only near the surface. But navy sources admitted privately this was true.

There are a number of deep places in the Gulf suitable for hiding submarines. The Gulf, however, is only 70 miles long by 40 to 50 miles wide. It connects with the Atlantic through a mouth 11 miles wide. Argentina considers the Gulf to be territorial waters.

Argentine navy men, irked by all the skepticism, also are angry for another reason. The operation cost them more than $900,000, practically wiping out all the money they had for current operations.

In addition, their obsolete frigates and destroyers were heavily punished by the unrelenting work at high, unaccustomed speeds with which the operation was conducted for three weeks. The ships were practically falling apart when the search ended.

If there was a submarine there, what was its mission?

There is no official explanation. But semi-official sources say the submarine might have been surveying the Patagonian coast of southern Argentina.

They gave this theory: In event of war, the sea routes between the Pacific and Atlantic oceans would be a prime strategic objective. The Panama Canal would be a primary enemy target. If the canal were knocked out, the only other practical connection would be through the Strait of Magellan or farther south around Cape Horn.

Brian has a naval base in the nearby Falkland Islands. But the long, uninhabited Argentine coast on the Atlantic offers many havens for enemy ships and submarines.

MRS. BETTY LANZA, widow of singer Mario Lanza was found dead in bed at her home in Beverly Hills, Calif. Police said cause of death of the 37-year-old woman was still undetermined. There was no sign of foul play. (AP Wirephoto)

Group Meets For Planning Bean Festival

JONESVILLE (Special) — The planning committee for the Catahoula Parish Soybean Festival will meet in Harrisonburg in the Agriculture Extension auditorium on Tuesday, March 15, to elect officers for the coming year and to establish permanent rules and regulations for the organization.

Members from the Jonesville Woman's club, Jonesville Junior Guild, Harrisonburg Woman's club and Sicily Island Woman's club are expected to attend.

All members of this committee are urged to be present for this important session.

It was decided recently at a committee meeting that the winner of the Soybean Pageant would be given a $50 cash award plus the $25 entree fee to the Miss Louisiana Pageant if she entered.

The committee voted for these awards to help make the program more attractive and with the hope that more girls would participate in the festival.

The four women's clubs in the parish sponsor the festival each year in conjunction with the annual parish fair.

Meeting

The Monroe Temple No. 1, Pythian Sisters, will hold its regular meeting at 8 p.m. Monday night in Castle Hall 127½ St. John St.

MISS LOCKHART

Actress Has Some Diversified Tastes

NEW YORK (UPI)—June Lockhart, an actress with a yen for antique cars and political journalism—a pairing not so disparate when you consider the amount of wheezing done on both sides—was in our town recently for a spurt of TV miming.

She's a welcome improvement to the glamour situation here, any time she wants to drop in. Her talent is considerable, and she is custodian of one of the winningest personalities—offstage as well as on—that ever yearned to take trusty typewriter in hand and pound out a think piece. Also, she has nice, level blue eyes.

When I interviewed her, she wore a pink negligee and served me Stygian coffee in an emperor-size cup and said good things about reporters in general and particular. She's had some experience with the tribe, having spent a week on an Eisenhower campaign tour as a journalism buff and having hung around the press box at conventions.

This summer she expects to bloom into a bona fide newswoman, covering the Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles for the daily San Gabriel Valley Tribune, of West Covina, Calif.

Miss Lockhart's current regular TV job has thrown her in, this season, with a series of character actors not unlike reporters in their singularity. These include some baby grasshoppers, an alligator, a wallaby, chimpanzees, pigeons, chickens, cows, calves, sheep, horses, mules, mink, an elephant, and a wolverine.

The stars of the show are a collie named Lassie and a lad named Timmy, who are forever getting story-lined into emotional involvement with animals like the above list. Miss Lockhart, as you probably know, plays the part of the mama on the weekly Sunday night "Lassie" show on CBS-TV. This is her second season on it, and she says:

"It's the loveliest assignment I ever had in this business. The show has dignity, it's one of the top-rated programs, and I don't have the responsibility of having a show of my own. It's the most satisfying long-range employment I've ever had. When you freelance, you're out of a job at the end of each performance."

Not that Miss Lockhart has any trouble freelancing on TV. On one week of her stay here, she found herself spread across the home screen for five consecutive nights: Sunday, on "Lassie," Monday, the Paar show; Tuesday, "The Arthur Murray Party," Wednesday, "Wagon Train," and Thursday, "To Tell the Truth."

Jon Provost, who plays Timmy, is almost 10 years old now, and Miss Lockhart says he is extremely bright in picking up dialogue and mischievous enough to be called "a real boy."

Miss Lockhart, born into a theatrical family, made her professional debut at the age of eight in the Metropolitan Opera here, was in the movies at 13, and has acted with distinction in scores of stage, movie, and TV roles. Her older daughter, Anne, 6, has giggled talentedly as an extra on "Lassie" a couple of times.

Back home in Los Angeles, June, Anne, and younger daughter Elizabeth go happily to market in the family pride-and-joy, a 1901 Oldsmobile with big brass lamps, bicycle wheels, a one-cylinder engine, and a sort of pickup-truck rear which is kept potted with flowers.

Miss Lockhart has added a red-ball fringe to the car's top because "she seems to have a female personality."

Catahoula Voters

Renew Tax For School Operation

JONESVILLE (Special) — The resident voting tax payers of Catahoula parish approved the renewal of the 5 - mill school tax at a special parishwide election last week.

A total of 246 voted in favor of extending the tax another five years. There were three votes cast against. The assessed valuation of property voted for was $389,007.00 and $5,220 against.

The tax has been in effect since 1910 and has to be renewed every five years by the authority of the taxpayers. Proceeds from the tax will be used, as in the past, for giving additional aid to the parish school system to maintain the schools on a nine - month term. The estimated income of the tax for 1960 is $34,789.90.

"We of the school system are very grateful to the people of Catahoula giving approval of renewing the tax," A. L. Brooks, parish superintendent of schools said. "The extension of the tax was necessary to continue the schools in operation on a nine - month basis," he added.

Prints Are Big And Bold Deep In Texas

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

They do things in a big way, down in Texas.

Summer fashions currently being shown in this third largest dress market of the United States feature prints that are bold and bright, used in clothes with that gaily casual air typical of Texas.

Dallas designers have a special knack for turning out the kind of fashions that are right for the informal life of Texans, and thus are in high demand in all sections of the country where people like to relax and have fun.

This year, in Texas as elsewhere, sleeves make news. Some of the new summer fashions have the big, dramatic sleeves that give width at the top. Others have no sleeves at all. And both look new and right.

The patio living of the Southwest has produced a whole new crop of colorful casual clothes appropriate for the backyard barbecue. Some are hostess dresses in gay cottons cut on feminine, flattering lines. Others are separates including skinny pants, Jamaica shorts and cover-up skirts teamed with various tops, ranging from pullover shirts to the briefest of crop-tops.

Popular this summer will be a big parade of whites, in both slim and full-skirted dress styles, brightened up with colorful hats and costume jewelry, also designed in Dallas.

And of course, easy-care fabrics are more important than ever for casual summer wear.

Hopes Up Again For Coal Miners

men have survived their long ordeal hinged on whether they succeeded in building an airtight barricade of heavy canvas to keep out coal gases and smoke.

Miners elsewhere have been hemmed in behind these "hell fires" before and successfully barricaded themselves. The 18 imprisoned here fortunately had lunch buckets with them when they started their day shift.

The 18 were cut off Tuesday morning when a small rockslide behind them snapped an electric cable and ignited some timbers. The timbers in turn ignited the coal.

The fire has been contained, officials said, but more slides and the smoke—so poisonous it can kill within minutes—has blocked off all efforts to reach the men.

Relatives and friends of the trapped men, who have stayed around the company store or as near the mine entrance as police would allow, have gathered about newsmen every time one has reached for a telephone. They virtually are subsisting on the bits of information from official reports and the tales of wild rumors and conjecture.

The makeshift ventilating system, on which all hopes now are pinned, was being revamped to permit a more powerful flow of air into the burned section. Crews were blocking off remaining passageways with canvas, timber and cinder blocks to concentrate the flow of air being forced into the mine.

What chance is there that the 18 are still alive?

It depends on whether the wall, or bulkhead, which the 13 obviously built between themselves and the fire, has been sufficient to keep out the poisonous smoke. Wilson said there was little question that the trapped men had erected the barricade, for if it weren't there the smoke would clear normally through the mine's regular ventilation system.

Voting Rights Bill Scheduled

the preservation of voting records, and providing penalties for obstruction of court orders in school desegregation.

The House might even strike out the latter provision, since the Senate killed it by a 49-35 vote Friday.

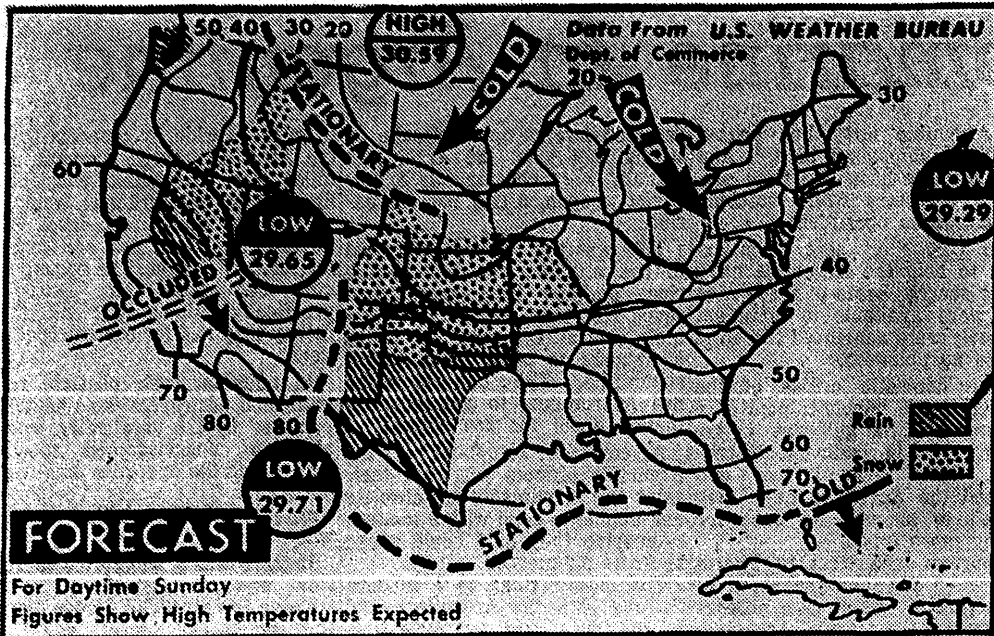

Southern Democrats in the House have passed the word to their Dixie colleagues in the Senate that they no longer fear their bill will be amended with what they regard as more drastic provisions.

If the Senate fails to follow the direction of its leaders, it nevertheless seems almost certain that the bill it approves will be close to the House version. Even though it might have voted down some of the same provisions, the Senate possibly could be persuaded to accept the House proposals in order to avoid a compromise conference and save time.

Delegates Meet In Geneva To Debate Arms

Khrushchev's program for world disarmament.

Khrushchev unfolded his plan last September in a speech before the United Nations General Assembly. It calls for total abolition of national military forces and war staffs over a four-year period.

For the first time in 14 years of fruitless negotiations to reduce the big powers' arms and armed forces, East and West will be represented in equal numbers. On the East side, besides the Soviet Union, are Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, and Romania.

Each side's plan contains numerous provisions repeatedly described as unacceptable by the other.

The prospects were that each side would present its plan during the first week of the conference. Most Western observers said they believe little progress is likely before the Big Four summit in Paris opens May 16.

Although Berlin and German unification are the principal concern of the summit conference, the four chiefs of government are sure to discuss the two rival disarmament plans.

If an approach to a compromise plan can be devised at the summit conference, it may help the Geneva talks toward serious negotiation of a first step to world disarmament.

Panel Quits After 8-Day Deliberation

its nearly 40 hours of deliberation, left unanswered the last remaining mystery in the case: Would the stories of the wealthy Dr. Finch and Miss Tregoff be believed?

Apparently some jurors did, others didn't.

The handsome surgeon claimed his wife's bullet-in-the-back death was accidental. Miss Tregoff said she was but an innocent bystander. The state called it murder, callously plotted and ruthlessly performed.

Dist. Atty. William B. McKesson said: "I would say we are obligated now to retry the case. We are convinced that these persons should be put on trial under the charge as returned by the grand jury—with returned indictments charging murder and conspiracy. The fact this jury has not agreed does not change our opinion."

Dr. Finch's attorney, Grant B. Cooper, said a retrial might take several weeks. The trial that ended Saturday started last Dec. 8.

The state's coprosecutors both were disappointed at the outcome. Would they like to handle the retrial?

"I would," said Fred N. Whichello, mild-mannered deputy district attorney from suburban Pomona.

"I don't know," said harsh-voiced Clifford Crail, one of the district attorney's top cross-examiners.

Whichello added: "I don't know that we would change anything in how we presented the case." McKesson was asked if he thought the state could find another jury which was unaffected by the publicity of the three-month trial.

"I'm confident of finding a jury of 12 unprejudiced persons out of a county this size," he said.

Dr. Finch's attorney, Grant B. Cooper commented: "I'm terribly disappointed."

"Are you staying with it?" a reporter asked.

"I suppose I will, but there's a serious question of economics." A little later he added, "You know I have a hell of an overhead."

Cooper got a $25,000 retainer and $350 per trial day for a total fee of about $45,000. The doctor had to pledge most of his assets to take care of the fee.

Miss Tregoff's fees were not disclosed, but were estimated at about $20,000.

The Finch case was a sizzler from the start.

Central figure was Dr. Finch, 42. Crew-cut, athletic, an ardent tennis player and water-skier, he had a big surgical practice in the upper middle class suburb of West

In Dallas

Northeast State's yearbook editors gained valuable experiences during a two-day stay in Dallas, where they were guests of the publishing company, which is producing the 1960 Chacahoula.

Making the trip were co-editors Brenda Gambrell of Ferriday and Jackie Tharpe of Epps, who were accompanied by Lady Stahl, faculty advisor.

During their visit to the lithograph plant, they followed all steps in the production of a yearbook, from the arrival of copy and photographs to the binding of the publication, including the intricate operations involved in handling four-color pictures, which have been used in several Chacahoulas.

The group also had opportunity to study the large number of yearbooks in the company's libraries which house recent editions of annuals from high schools, colleges.

which promptly closed the eating facilities.

Sixty to 75 Negroes were involved in the demonstrations which have become an almost-daily occurrence at stores in Newport News, Hampton, Norfolk and Portsmouth, Va.

There were no incidents or arrests at the five stores, several of the lunch counters reopened after the Negro students left.

In Tallahassee when white and Negro students sat down at the counter of the F. W. Woolworth Store, one white student bought a cup of coffee to take out, then pushed it to a Negro who walked up.

Later, a larger group of demonstrators converged on the store, and were hustled off to police headquarters. And still later another group was taken in.

Police cars filled with uniformed policemen patrolled the streets, and one reporter, not recognized by authorities, was hauled in for questioning.

Off-duty policemen and firemen were called to duty, and officers with portable radios were stationed throughout Tallahassee to report disturbances.

The new lunch counter demonstrations occurred as authorities in a number of Southern cities adopted "get tough" policies in dealing with the demonstrations.

Young Girls Slain While Babysitting

were sitting on the couch watching television.

"Suddenly, I went over to my gun rack, picked up rifle, walked back to the couch, and shot Penny in the head."

In his statement to officers, Warth said he reloaded the weapon, then fired at Linda. She was struck in the neck.

Capt. Ted Barr quoted Warth as saying that on an impulse, he pulled off Linda's panties and her down. The prisoner could give no reason for his action.

"It just happened," he said. Barr said Warth, with his two children crying and running behind him, carried the heavy machine gun, a pistol, rifle and ammunition to his car in one trip from the house.

He gathered up his son and daughter and went to nearby Ashland, Ky., where he drove around aimlessly until he parked in a residential area.

"After a lot of thinking," he said, "I decided to come back and give myself up."

He was heading into downtown Huntington when four patrolmen in two cars stopped him.

Cautiously, the officers approached the car, and Warth meekly surrendered. The children slept peacefully in the back seat. Neither had a coat on in the 25-degree weather.

Warth is named for his grandfather, the late Judge H. Clay Warth of the Cabell County Common Pleas Court, who served 24 years on the bench and had been re-elected to a third eight-year term at the time of his death in 1952. The judge was known for his stern justice.

By the first of his two wives he had a son, Henry Clay Warth Jr., whose marriage to the mother of the accused slayer was annulled. The son named in the murder warrants, was born after the annulment. Henry Clay Warth Jr., now lives in St. Louis.

The son, who was formally charged Saturday, was described as having had a passion for guns and had an expert knowledge of them since he was a boy.

The younger Warth, charged with the murders, was arrested in Cincinnati for an impulsive act, throwing a chair through a display window. Warth also was put on probation in neighboring Wayne County later for unauthorized use of weapons.

He knew the slain girls only casually. Linda's parents live across the street from the Warths, and Mrs. Qualls and Mrs. Warth work together at a brassiere factory.

Penny was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Qualls.

Police said tests were being made to determine whether Linda had been molested. They said Penny apparently had not been.

other bag. The robber didn't want any coin, and he was in a hurry. Ferdie Hebert, vice president of the bank, said the loot amounted to $47,000.

"He didn't want us to look too closely at him," Lovas said. "Mostly I saw was the end of that shotgun. It was an old, beat-up single-barrel gun."

The bandit ordered Lovas and Mayeaux into the front seat of Mayeaux's car. He got into the back, kept his mask on and kept the shotgun leveled at his hostages. About four miles outside

New Iberia the man ordered Mayeaux to pull into a driveway, told him to leave the engine running, and for both of them to get out of the car.

Leaving them behind, the bandit drove Mayeaux's car back to New Iberia and parked it a few blocks from the bank, where apparently he had parked a getaway vehicle, believed to have been a station wagon.

Miss Faulk, Mr. Laws Wed In Shreveport Ceremony

Miss Mary Marcia Faulk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivey Ayler Faulk of Monroe, became the bride of Richard Tarvin Laws in a ceremony held Saturday, March 5, in Saint Mark's Episcopal church in Shreveport.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Laws of West Monroe are the parents of the bridegroom.

The Rev. J. Lawrence Plumley,

Ambitious Man Should Marry Smart Girl

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

What kind of girl should an ambitious young business man marry?

"A smart one," says Cameron Hawley, novelist and world traveler, whose books usually are set in a background of big business. "Beauty is secondary. Today's young executives consider the intellectual wife a status symbol."

The era of the beautiful but dumb wife, who used to be the ideal of the nation's tycoons, is a thing of the past, says Hawley, author of "Executive Suite," "Cash McCall" and the just-published "The Lincoln Lords."

"There is a changing concept of the executive wife," he explains. "In research for my latest book I talked to corporation executives, business men and college boys all over the country, as well as to the wives of many of them. I got a new picture of the kind of woman today's young men are seeking."

"I remember spending several days at a midwestern university, where I got acquainted with a number of the students. These boys were dead serious about analyzing the kind of girl who would help them get ahead in business."

"One boy came to me and said, 'I'm crazy about a girl here. She's the only one I've ever loved. But I'm set on a corporation career, and she isn't really very bright. Will she be a handicap?'"

Corporation heads choosing new executives consider the wife an important part of the picture, says Hawley. But today the interest is not in whether the wife can throw a big party, but whether she can carry on an intelligent discussion.

The generation of the big business man who married a much younger second wife after he achieved success also is past, says Hawley. Today boys and girls are marrying young and working together for the husband's success.

"The young executives who are coming to the top now are the ones that married during World War II, went back to school after the war, raised families while working for a degree, and dug in to make up for their lost years of education," he says.

Hawley was born in Howard, S. C., and started setting type on the Minor County Pioneer at the age of 12. At 14 he was writing a column. Now he lives on a farm near Lancaster, Pa., travels extensively in both Europe and the Orient, and enjoys life.

P.S. He has a smart wife, too.

rector of Saint Mark's, officiated at the wedding. Preceding the ceremony, William C. Teague, organist, gave a program of traditional music, and accompanied day, March 5, in Saint Mark's Episcopal church in Shreveport.

The bride, who entered on the arm of her father, chose a street-length white wedding dress with a short veil. Her white bouquet was centered with an orchid.

Miss Roseann Marks of Ruston, the bride's roommate at Newcomb college, served as her maid of honor, and only attendant.

John B. Laws was his brother's best man. Don Thornton of Columbia was the usher.

Following the wedding, a reception was held in the private dining room of a Shreveport hotel. White stock and other bridal flowers were used in the decorations. The bride's cake centered the table, which was covered with a white ruffled organdy cloth.

Mr. and Mrs. Laws left immediately after the reception on their wedding trip to California. They will be living in Bridgeport, Calif., until Mr. Laws completes his service with the U. S. Marines.

The bride attended Newcomb college and Louisiana State university. She was graduated in January from Baylor university. Her sorority was Phi Mu. The groom attended St. Benedict's college in Kansas.

Mrs. Callen Calls Sixties Satisfying

NEW YORK (UPI) — When Frank Callen, director of Georgia's first boys' club, died in 1949, his widow was named executive director.

Now in her "satisfying sixties," Mrs. Callen reports that her first decade of widowhood had been dashed with a kind of eternal youth. She wishes other widows could be as fortunate.

The former school teacher's job is one of helping 700 Savannah boys with time on their hands. Many have backgrounds of poverty, overcrowded homes, parental indifference, family bickering and fighting.

Mrs. Callen's job — like that of her husband for 32 years — is to help the boys to short-circuit the seemingly built-in plan for failure.

Enthusiasm for the work comes naturally to Mrs. Callen. Her husband founded the club in 1917. For 21 years, he directed it — without compensation. He spent all the free time he had when his paying job, court probation officer, ended for the day.

GOT OUTSIDE HELP

Eventually, the club got enough outside support to be able to afford a paid director. Callen resigned his court job to become the Savannah Boys' club's first full-time executive director.

Irma Callen, his wife, continued as the club's number one volunteer. When she took over her late husband's job, she had a few butterflies inside. What kept her going was a philosophy she and her husband worked out a long time ago about boys who could become "spoils of society."

"In this work," she said, "we learn that there are no bad boys, just boys with bad breaks; no problem boys, just boys with problems."

Perk It Up

Basil is usually suggested as a toner-upper for tomato dishes; try it, too, in mixed green salads.

After rinsing well, soak up excess moisture with a towel or sponge, and put the shoes in an airy place to dry.

THE RECENT MARRIAGE of Miss Lynda Keil Brice to Edward Lynn Stringer is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Brice of Monroe. Mr. Stringer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Stringer of Monroe. The wedding was solemnized Saturday, March 5, in the home of the bride.

Mrs. Peters Hostess To Miro Club

The Miro Book club, a member of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, met for their regular meeting Monday at 2:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. A. L. Peters, Edgewater Gardens, with the president, Mrs. C. R. Tidwell presiding.

Delegates reported on the Fifth District Annual Convention of the Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs held recently at the Virginia Hotel in Monroe.

Mrs. J. H. McCormick reported concerning "The Day in Court." Four members attended this most informative session. Judge Harper outlined the Juvenile Court System and treatment of juvenile delinquents. Captain Whitfield escorted all the ladies for a visit to the Green Oaks Detention Home. Mrs. McCormick urged all of the members to visit this beautiful and valuable property for the care of our juveniles.

Mrs. F. L. Smith reviewed the humorous book, "Confessions of Mrs. Smith" by Elinor Smith. Episodes regarding the author's misfortunes in dressing properly for special occasions brought forth hearty laughter from the members. The reviewer said women would enjoy this book as the author is known for her writing on clothing problems of women.

A social hour was enjoyed by Mrs. Horace Fluker, Mrs. Thomas Jett, Miss Catherine Livaudais, Mrs. McCormick, Mrs. B. L. Mulhern, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. George Temple, Mrs. Tidwell, Mrs. R. L. Wood and the hostess, Mrs. Peters.

Other achievements include: city championships in basketball for the past nine years; victory in the city championship competition in both little and pony leagues for four years; victory seven years in a row in the invitational basketball tournament sponsored by the club.

The tournament includes eight high schools in southeast Georgia whose coaches are former members of the club.

For her work, Mrs. Callen was awarded the ECA bronze medal with two silver stars. The club, upon her husband's death, was named the Frank Callen Boys' Club.

Cultura Book Club Plans Style Show, Luncheon

Mrs. Wood Sers, Mrs. Bob Gatlin, and Mrs. Charles Oxford were hostesses Monday evening for the March meeting of the Cultura Book club, which met in the community room of the First National Bank of West Monroe.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. G. L. Shepard. In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Kenneth Adams called the roll. Program time was devoted to discussion of the final plans for the forthcoming luncheon and style show on Saturday, March 26, at the Paragon Club. Proceeds will be used towards the purchase of a useful piece of equipment for the Cerebral Palsy School.

Mrs. Robroy Young, Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Bill Armstrong were appointed to serve on the nomination committee for the election of new officers.

The club collect was read in unison and a delicious dessert course was served to the following members: Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Lake Oxford, Mrs. Tommy Spurlock, Mrs. Gene Williams, Mrs. Henry Camp, Mrs. Kenneth Aswell, Mrs. Thomas Mitchell, Mrs. Gene Hardin, Mrs. Ralph Reed, Mrs. Charles B. 'On The Beach' Is Unusual Picture

Stanley Kramer's "On the Beach," opening today at the Paramount Theatre through United Artists release, has been called "the biggest story of our time."

Kramer, dedicated to the belief that this is a solemnly hard truth, arranged an unprecedented premiere for the film, a story about the survivors of an atomic disaster. It had its world premiere simultaneously in major cities on seven continents.

This unprecedented multiple global showing was devised by Kramer because of the stark urgency of the picture, the quality referred to by the book critics, who in reviewing the sensational Shute novel, spoke of it as "the most important and dramatic story of this era."

An adaptation of Nevil Shute's sensational best-selling novel, "On the Beach" stars Gregory Peck, Ava Gardner, Fred Astaire and Anthony Perkins, and introduces, in her movie debut, lovely 19-year-old Donna Anderson. The strong supporting cast is headed by John Tate, Lola Brooks, Guy Doleman, John Meillon and Harp McGuire.

Stanley Kramer produced and directed "On the Beach" from a screenplay by John Paxton. Giuseppe Rotunno, the prize-winning Italian cameraman, was chief cinematographer, and the musical score was composed and conducted by Ernest Gold. The picture was filmed in its entirety on location in Australia, on sites precisely corresponding to those used in the Shute novel.

In the case of "On the Beach," the customary "This film could not have been made without the cooperation of..." was considerably more than a formality. It could not have been made without the all-out cooperation of Australian Commonwealth officials, who were unstintingly generous in their assistance to the movie troupe.

One of the most unusual — and terrifying — sequences ever filmed was an auto race in which all of the participants, doomed to a lingering death, throw caution to the winds, take impossible gambles in their lethal vehicles, and actually court disaster.

This weird suicidal speed contest in "On the Beach" contained 6 grinding, flaming smashups, and innumerable skids, spinouts, collisions and frightening near-misses — all of it executed by Hollywood's most intrepid stunt men at speeds as high as 170 miles per hour. Seven cameras were used to photograph the bloody and frenzied race scene, and before shooting was finished, three of them had been destroyed by careening cars.

Kramer, noted in Hollywood for his daring "cross-casting" — casting deliberately against type — exceeded even his own customary reach when he signed Fred Astaire for his first serious, straight acting role as Julian Osborne an atomic scientist. Astaire for the past twenty-five years the world's top dancing star, was stunned by the offer.

Little Theatre Needs Assist In Building

Monroe Little Theatre officials Friday issued a plea for public support in obtaining $40,000 toward constructing a new building in which to give performances.

Claiming Selman Field playhouse, site of current productions, is in a state of "imminent collapse" and in a "ramshackle" condition, the theatre group reported $110,000 in donations have been received from firms and members, plus a site on Lamy Lane for building.

The group said, "At first it was thought $100,000 would be enough to finance a new theatre. The problem now is that $110,000 is not sufficient for a playhouse of 250 seats with the equipment essential for the high quality productions to which Monroe audiences are accustomed."

The new theatre will be called the Strauss Playhouse. "It is unthinkable," the theatre group said, "that with $110,000 already raised, Monroe should have to settle for something inadequate or mediocre, or even worse abandon the project altogether, for that would spell the early demise of Little Theatre, when an added $40,000 would permit construction of a playhouse worthy of our city that would serve our needs for another thirty years or more."

'Toby Tyler' Is Happy, Warm Film

Walt Disney has become a circus showman to the delight of motion picture audiences, as evidenced by his latest Technicolor production, "Toby Tyler," which opens at the Jim Theatre Thursday, March 24. The film is a happy and heartwarming experience.

Based on James Otis Kaler's ever-popular tale, "Toby Tyler" is the story of a runaway boy who joins a circus, and the big top has proved to be a perfect area for Disney's magical and imaginative story telling. And Disney has gathered a center-ring cast for the picture.

Kevin Corcoran was an inspired choice for the title role. A freckle-faced urchin who has brightened such hits as "The Shaggy Dog" and "Old Yeller," Kevin is Toby Tyler from his tousled hair to the soles of his hand-me-down shoes.

Kingsized Henry Calvin portrays to perfection a hard-muscled, softhearted circus strongman, Ben Cotter, who protects young Toby. It is Calvin's first dramatic role, an about-face from his celebrated buffoonery as clumsy Sgt. Garcia in the "Zorro" teleseries.

Gene Sheldon, who also won TV fame in "Zorro" — as the deaf-mute Bernardo — is both touching and hilarious as Sam Treat, head clown and medic to ailing members of the circus menagerie.

Bob Sweeney delivers a stand-out performance as Harry Tupper, Pied Piper of the peanut

Penalty Of Death Under Surveillance

By COLETTE BLACKMOORE UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The death penalty has been retained in California, where its repeal had been considered in the case of Caryl Chessman, but is under review on a worldwide basis.

The United Nations will soon begin a two-year, exhaustive study of capital punishment with the aim of helping governments decide for themselves whether they should abolish it.

This will be the first thorough inquiry into this controversial subject ever undertaken at the international level.

When completed, it is expected to provide a fairly complete picture of where, when and how the death penalty is applied throughout the world and what its effects are on the incidence of major crime.

People everywhere have been debating for decades, if not centuries, the issue of capital punishment. Does it do more than social good or harm?

The U.N. will not attempt a definitive answer to this question. Its purpose is merely to collect as much pertinent information as its member nations care to volunteer and then let the nations draw their own conclusions for the future.

Capital punishment is such an inherently inflammable subject that there was considerable discussion within the U.N. even over whether to make an investigation of it.

The initiative was taken by Sweden which together with five other countries submitted a resolution requesting the study to the General Assembly last fall.

When the resolution was put to a vote, 22 countries abstained, outdoor settings add color and thrills to this highly enjoyable film.

The rollicking blare of a circus band keynotes the scintillating musical score. A sprightly song, "Biddle-Dee-Dee," is sung by Calvin.

"Toby Tyler" has been expertly directed by Charles Barton from an adroitly fashioned screenplay by Bill Walsh and Lillie Hayward. The feature is released by Buena Vista.

indicating that for one reason or another they were not wholeheartedly in favor.

The Soviet Union and its Communist allies were among the abstainers, their delegates suggesting that a worldwide study of capital punishment amounted to interference in a country's domestic affairs. Whether the Communist bloc members furnish the U.N. with the information it will seek, remains to be seen.

Britain also abstained. A Royal Commission drew up a postwar report of capital punishment in Britain, as a result of which the 1957 British Capital Punishment Reform Act considerably reduced the number of cases carrying the death penalty, but retained it for several types of slayings.

Britain apparently was not eager to re-open the issue so soon.

Some 30 nations have already abolished the death penalty, about seven of them since World War II. In America it is now outlawed in nine states.

The Soviet Union abolished capital punishment in 1947, then re-introduced it in 1950, and it has been retained in the new 1958 criminal code for grave political crimes like treason, espionage and sabotage.

In Italy, the death penalty was dropped in 1889, restored by Mussolini, then re-abolished in 1948. A year later it was abolished in West Germany. In Guatemala, men can be sentenced to death, but not women and children.

Brazil, Argentina, Colombia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Panama, Peru, Uruguay and Venezuela have abolished the death penalty.

But in Spain some criminals—five last year alone—are choked to death slowly by metal bands tightened about the neck. Some military executions in Spain are

Sugar Needs Of U.S. May Be In Danger

WASHINGTON (AP)—Events in Cuba have raised serious problems as to how the United States is to fill its future sugar needs.

Cuba is the largest single supplier of the vital food. Under a quota system set up under a sugar control act, that country gets a 34-per cent share of the U.S. market. When some other countries which are allotted shares fall short, Cuba falls heir to most of their deficit.

Actions of the Cuban government by firing squad.

The Arab nations continue to follow thousands of years of Koranic instruction that the punishment should fit the crime—"an eye for an eye."

In the Orient many nations have the death penalty, which is usually carried out there within hours after conviction. A single shot in the back or the back of the head, or hanging, are the usual methods.

Most of the newly emerging nations of Africa seem to be following the example of the colonial powers that controlled them for so many years. The guillotine is still used in some former French colonies, but although hangings still occur in former British colonies, there is a tendency now eventually to get rid of the supreme penalty.

ment in denouncing the United States and in entering a trade agreement with the Soviet Union increase doubts concerning the little country's intention of continuing its role as a big supplier of sugar for this country.

This situation has caused many to ask why the United States doesn't try to produce its own sugar needs, or at least a portion it now produces plus the amount not allotted Cuba.

Certainly it is physically possible to grow more sugar cane and sugar beets than are now produced in this country. These two crops are grown under federal acreage restrictions designed to hold production within limits of quotas assigned mainland cane and domestic sugar beet producing areas.

Many farmers now harassed by overproduction of wheat and other crops are clamoring for the opportunity to grow sugar beets. This clamor has become particularly strong in parts of Texas and the Columbia River basin of the Northwest.

These farmers point to surpluses of other crops and to efforts of the government to find new crops for use on land not needed for the surplus crops. Why not allow us to grow sugar beets on this land, they inquire.

Their position appears to have logic behind it. Yet, there are serious problems in the way of domestic expansion of the sugar industry.

In the first place, there would be powerful economic and political opposition to this in many parts and among many groups in the country. Much of the eastern half of the country depends upon imported sugar. A sugar marketing system has been built around such imports.

Mark likes equally well the study of civics and his newspaper business. And he likes to talk man-to-man with his father about both. Last night, Mark said: "Dad, selling newspapers is important." When his father agreed, Mark continued: "Without newspapers—free to print the truth about public affairs—people would not know enough to govern themselves. So, when I hand a newspaper to a customer, I am doing something toward protecting our democratic way of life." Mark's father was pleased—but not surprised—at the way in which his son had tied together something which he had learned in school and at home with an experience on his newspaper route. It happens regularly. His route collections and bookkeeping help Mark in math; approaching customers makes public speaking easier. What suddenly seemed quite wonderful to Mark's father was that while his newspaperboy son learns and earns, he also is performing a vital service to the community.

Woodlawn HDC Welcomes Two New Members

Mrs. Jack Douglas and Mrs. W. V. Bonnette were welcomed into the Woodlawn Home Demonstration club Friday, as 20 members met in the home of Mrs. Beard Bonnette with Mrs. Courtney Caples serving as co-hostess.

"Don't be afraid of color" stated Mrs. Audrey Dawson, Ouachita Parish Home Demonstration agent, as she presented the demonstration "Color Cues in the Home." The agent further stated that simplicity in design and distribution of color is the secret of a well decorated home.

Family Life leader, Mrs. Wallace Snowden, presented the theme for the year, "A United Effort to Strengthen Family Ties" and suggested that the family who works together, plays together, and worships together strengthen the family ties.

Mrs. H. M. Wallace, housing leader, stated that many injuries occur while reaching for stored items and encouraged accidents to be prevented by having convenient, easily accessible storage space near the point of use.

Mrs. Truman Wright, president, presided at the business session with plans under way for National Home Demonstration Week, May 1-7, with Mrs. G. E. Rutledge named chairman.

A period of recreation and fellowship was followed by delicious refreshments being served to the guests. Mrs. Dawson, Mrs. Kenny Waggoner, and members Mmes: Snowden, Wallace, Wright, Rutledge, Doyle Raborn, Erby Tisdale, Jack Douglas, W. V. Bonnette, J. E. Rutledge, John Bush, C. A. Handmacher Suit tags Recommend Sanitone Cleaning

Unfortunately, a good suit is only new the first time it's worn, but when properly dry-cleaned, it can be renewed so that the original shape, texture and freshness can be preserved.

"In fact," points out D. B. Weil, of Weil Cleaners, 508 North 4th Street, "top quality dry-cleaning will actually renew a garment and increase its durability and length of service."

This fact was dramatically demonstrated at a recent showing for fashion editors in New York City when several pairs of identical suits were shown on models. One of each pair of suits had been dry-cleaned and renewed 20 times by the Sanitone process. The other suit in each pair was brand new. Not one person at the showing could be sure which suits were brand-new and which had been renewed by the Sanitone process.

A precedent was established in the textile and garment industries when Handmacher-Vogel, Inc., manufacturers of women's fine garments, joined hands with Sanitone in a joint campaign to encourage the use of the Sanitone process in the dry-cleaning of Handmacher-made garments.

To bring this recommendation to the attention of buyers of Handmacher garments, a string tag was attached to each of 200,000 Weatherlane suits in the Handmacher 1960 spring and summer lines, recommending that that suit be renewed by dry-cleaning with the Sanitone process.

Fantastic Alarm Warns Of Bomb Attack

EDITOR'S NOTE—In the event of a nuclear attack how will the nation's high command get quick reports on which cities have been hit and perhaps destroyed? Elton C. Fay, Associated Press military affairs writer, describes a fantastic new communications system designed to flash its information in the momentary interval between a nuclear bomb burst and the crushing blow of the following blow of the following shock wave.

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON (AP) — An automatic bomb alarm system designed to flash instant information to the nation's high command on cities hit in a nuclear attack is being installed throughout the United States.

The Air Force says the new system—which will report nuclear hits rather than serve as an advance warning setup—is destruction-proof and can be triggered only by a nuclear blast.

The system will report an attack in the few seconds' interval between a nuclear bomb burst and the crushing blow of the following shock wave.

The Air Force already is beginning to install the first few "sensor" stations at locations which will total more than 100 and will be linked by wire communications to half a dozen major centers. The national system will be in operation in the next few months, the first stations in the next two or three weeks.

These centers, for the present, will be the Pentagon's joint war room of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the alternate command center buried underground near Ft. Ritchie, Md.; the Air Force command post in the Pentagon; the Strategic Air Command headquarters at Offutt Air Force Base, Omaha; headquarters of the North American Air Defense Command at Colorado Springs and the White House.

The plan for this fantastic phase of an "atomic strike recording system" was disclosed in testimony given before a House Military Appropriations subcommittee by Brig. Gen. J. B. Bestic, deputy for Air Force communications and electronics. A transcript of testi-

HOT DEBATE EXPECTED

Mississippi Solons Touch 4 Big Issues

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Mississippi Legislature touched four explosive issues the past week, leaving this week open for hot debate.

Floor action is expected on re-appointment, local option liquor, teacher pay raises and church property bills.

Re-appointment forces made two surprise attacks in the House of Representatives, but were defeated by a quick rally by the opposition. The attackers have regrouped for another charge Monday.

Rep. Russel Davis of Hinds County sought to put the House on record as declaring the present apportionment unjust and inadequate and as favoring re-apportionment. The House voted 87-40 against immediate consideration of the proposal, and the measure was sent to the Apportionment Committee.

Rep. Stone Barefield of Forrest County tried to amend a bill changing the method of electing representatives in Amite and Wilkinson counties to add a second representative to his county. His attempt was ruled out of order. Several lawmakers have been working behind the scenes to push

Final Services For J. D. Price Set For Monday

J. D. Price, Sr. 52, manager of a West Monroe supermarket, died early Saturday morning at his home following an illness of about six weeks.

Funeral services will be in the Wright-Ferguson Funeral Home of Jackson, Miss., at 2 p.m. Monday with the Rev. H. M. Roach officiating, pastor of the Swartz Baptist Church.

Interment will be in the Lakewood Memorial Park cemetery in Jackson, Miss. Survivors include his widow, Mrs. J. D. Price Sr., West Monroe; one son, James Duke Price Jr., Memphis, Tenn.; one sister, Mrs. B. E. McCullough, Greenwood, Miss.; one brother, Curtis Price, Clarksdale, Miss.; and one grandchild.

Local arrangements were under the direction of Kilpatrick Funeral Home of West Monroe.

mony was published Sunday night by the House committee. Additional details were gleaned from other sources.

The bomb alarm system gets off its word in the twinkling of an eye between the nuclear flash and the shock wave crash.

Therefore its value is almost entirely to tell the Strategic Air Command which of its bomber and missile bases are gone, which are still standing from where retaliation strikes can be launched or to which bases bombers returning from those strikes can be deployed.

Because it is nationwide in scope it can give an instant report on how much of this country is left if swift devastation plunges down from the skies.

The monitoring "sensor" gadgets will be arrayed around a base or city, with up to seven sensors in one area—as will be the case in Washington—and no less than three in any site.

Annual cost of running the network, Bestic says, will be about two million dollars per year, with the communications wire leased from the Western Union.

The Air Force decided in 1955 that some such warning system would be needed. A start on creating the system was made last May. The present fiscal year budget contained a $400,000 item to begin the project. Development work was done at the Western Union Laboratory in Watermill, Long Island, N.Y.

The alarm system is devised on two simple, basic facts: a light wave travels far faster than a shock wave; in a nuclear detonation, either the fission reaction of an atomic bomb or the fusion of a hydrogen — thermonuclear — bomb or missile warhead creates light of intensity for which there is no parallel on earth. Such light also has certain other specific peculiarities.

To start with, Air Force and Western Union experts perfected a light valve which responds to illumination of only certain intensity and prolongation. This is contained in a small metal cylinder, about 18 inches in diameter and 24 inches high. Atop the cylinder is a glass shield, which looks much like a household light.

Within the glass is the sensing device which triggers off the warning signal system in the steel cylinder. Between the glass and the sensing device is a filtering shield which permits light of only certain intensity and other characteristics to pass.

When a bomb bursts, the light valve trips off the alarm. It goes, by several circuits for each unit to the six command centers, there to register in red flashing light on a console board.

Each sensing unit operates independently. If a bomb or missile impacts on one and knocks it out instantaneously, others spaced out a distance of 10 or 12 miles survive for the several seconds or perhaps full minute it would take the shock wave to reach and crush them. In the interim, they flash the alarm that destruction has come — even though all persons in the area may be dead or disabled within seconds.

The Air Force insists that the system is "fail-safe," that only a nuclear blast can trigger it. Extensive tests, experts say, have demonstrated that even such brilliant flashes as lightning cannot set off the alarm. Presumably, this is because a lightning flash is of much shorter duration, in addition to being of less brilliancy, than that of nuclear detonation.

Why is an alarm system needed when the Distant Early Warning line to tell of approach of enemy bombers is in operation and the Ballistic Missile Early Warning System is being built in the Arctic?

Among other reasons appear to be these: A missile warning system will not be operating fully for at least another year. Meanwhile, the first word of any attack may come when warheads detonate on target. Even when MEWS is operating, there remains the strong possibility of attack by missiles launched from enemy submarines submerged at a comparatively short distance off either American coast.

Two bills designed to stimulate industry passed both houses. The Senate approved a bill to provide information on markets, resources and plant design. The House approved a bill permitting the organization of a business development corporation authorized to lend money to small businesses.

Floor action is expected soon on four bills authorizing a six-million dollar floating dry dock at Pascagoula, so Ingalls Shipbuilding Corp. can bid on nuclear submarine construction.

Members of the House and Senate education committees have proposed a quality education program to grant raises on the basis of grades scored on a national teacher test. The highest bracket would get a $500 a year raise; the second group, $350, and the third $100.

Church property bills are ready for action in both houses. They would allow two-thirds majority of a local congregation to go to chancery court and have new trustees appointed for the property if there is any hostility between the local group and anyone exercising any control over the property.

Rep. Thompson McClellan introduced three bills which would prohibit anyone from entering any building after being forbidden, from urging anyone to enter such a building, and from obstructing any sidewalk or street.

The bills, each carrying a maximum penalty of a $500 fine and six-month jail term, were designed to strengthen the state's hand in the event of racial demonstrations like those in some southern cities.

Each sensing unit operates independently. If a bomb or missile impacts on one and knocks it out instantaneously, others spaced out a distance of 10 or 12 miles survive for the several seconds or perhaps full minute it would take the shock wave to reach and crush them. In the interim, they flash the alarm that destruction has come — even though all persons in the area may be dead or disabled within seconds.

The Air Force insists that the system is "fail-safe," that only a nuclear blast can trigger it. Extensive tests, experts say, have demonstrated that even such brilliant flashes as lightning cannot set off the alarm. Presumably, this is because a lightning flash is of much shorter duration, in addition to being of less brilliancy, than that of nuclear detonation.

Why is an alarm system needed when the Distant Early Warning line to tell of approach of enemy bombers is in operation and the Ballistic Missile Early Warning System is being built in the Arctic?

Among other reasons appear to be these: A missile warning system will not be operating fully for at least another year. Meanwhile, the first word of any attack may come when warheads detonate on target. Even when MEWS is operating, there remains the strong possibility of attack by missiles launched from enemy submarines submerged at a comparatively short distance off either American coast.

Two bills designed to stimulate industry passed both houses. The Senate approved a bill to provide information on markets, resources and plant design. The House approved a bill permitting the organization of a business development corporation authorized to lend money to small businesses.

Floor action is expected soon on four bills authorizing a six-million dollar floating dry dock at Pascagoula, so Ingalls Shipbuilding Corp. can bid on nuclear submarine construction.

Members of the House and Senate education committees have proposed a quality education program to grant raises on the basis of grades scored on a national teacher test. The highest bracket would get a $500 a year raise; the second group, $350, and the third $100.

Church property bills are ready for action in both houses. They would allow two-thirds majority of a local congregation to go to chancery court and have new trustees appointed for the property if there is any hostility between the local group and anyone exercising any control over the property.

Rep. Thompson McClellan introduced three bills which would prohibit anyone from entering any building after being forbidden, from urging anyone to enter such a building, and from obstructing any sidewalk or street.

The bills, each carrying a maximum penalty of a $500 fine and six-month jail term, were designed to strengthen the state's hand in the event of racial demonstrations like those in some southern cities.

Big Battle Not Linked To Big Vote

CONCORD, N. H. (AP) — A study of returns in the past three presidential primaries in New Hampshire indicates that a rousing battle is not absolutely essential to get out a big vote.

That's confirmed by the whopping vote given Vice President Richard M. Nixon on Tuesday's primary. Nixon was unopposed as the Republican candidate and did not campaign personally in the Granite State, yet he polled 65,204 votes. That surpassed President Eisenhower's old record of 56,454 in 1956 when he also was unopposed.

In the Democratic side, Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) had only nominal opposition from Paul C. Fisher, Chicago manufacturer. Kennedy stomped the state twice and rolled up an impressive vote of 43,372.

That total eclipsed the previous Democratic high of 33,727 polled in 1952 by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) and former President Harry S. Truman.

Kennedy's 1960 total also erased the combined vote of 25,507 given to Kefauver and Adlai E. Stevenson in 1956.

Unquestionably, the bitter fight between Eisenhower and the late Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) accounted for the big Republican vote of 1952. That year the GOP partisans rolled up a total vote of 96,507 for a record which stands.

Of that total Eisenhower won 46,661, setting in motion the campaign which carried him to the White House. Taft, who tirelessly campaigned in New Hampshire, collected 35,838 that year.

Yet there was no opposition to Eisenhower in 1956, and he piled up a thumping vote of 56,464. The Democratic aspirant, Sen. Kefauver, also was unopposed then, and he got a modest total of 21,701. A total of 3,906 Democrats took the trouble to write in Stevenson's name in 1956, although there was uncertainty whether the former Illinois governor would seek a second try at the presidency.

An interesting item in the 1960 figures was the 2,196 write-in votes given Kennedy on the Republican ballot. Political analysts seem bound to compare it with the 164 write-ins given Nixon on the Democratic ballot.

Four years ago, Nixon supporters in New Hampshire gave him a resounding write-in vote of confidence. A total of 22,936 voters wrote Nixon's name on the presidential side of the GOP ballot to retain the vice presidency.

There has been no discernible trend in the total vote cast by either party in the past three primaries. The 1952 Eisenhower-Taft struggle brought out 96,507 Republicans. In 1956, with Eisenhower unopposed, the total GOP vote dropped to 65,479. This year, with Nixon the generally acknowledged candidate, 81,387 turned out in the Republican primary.

Postal Hike Plea Meets Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's plea to boost postal rates ran into barbed opposition Saturday from Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-SC), chairman of the Senate Post Office Committee. Johnston, whose committee will consider the request, said Eisenhower's "reasoning for increasing postal rates was ridiculous."

First class mail users already are "paying more than their fair share of the cost of operating the Post Office Department," Johnston said in a statement.

In a special message to Congress Friday, the President asked for a boost in postage which would raise first class mail from 4 to 5 cents and air mail letters from 7 to 8 cents.

Eisenhower said higher rates are needed to offset losses of two million dollars every working day. Johnston said first class mail users already are paying more than 25 per cent above the actual cost of handling this mail.

"Under the postmaster general's program being pushed by President Eisenhower they would have to pay more than 50 per cent above actual cost," he said.

Johnston said the administration keeps trying "to get away from the fact that the postal service is a service, just as much as the federal judiciary system, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the White House and the Commerce Department."

MR. AND MRS. RANDY LEE PRICE cut their wedding cake following their marriage in St. Joseph's church.

Church Ceremony Unites Miss Thomas, Randy Price

Miss Frances Jane Thomas became the bride of Randy Lee Price in a ceremony performed by Rev. Michael Hannon in St. Joseph's Catholic church on the morning of February 27. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude B. Thomas of Monroe, while the groom's parents are Mrs. Jessie Price of Monroe and Franklin Price of Freeport, Texas.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a wedding dress of white lace with a white flower hat. Her corsage was of white carnations. She wore white lace mitts and carried a prayer book.

The bride's attendants were Miss Mary Louise Thomas, maid of honor, who wore a dress of champagne beige; Mrs. John Malta, matron of honor, in pink; and Miss Louise Savanna, bridesmaid, in green. All the attendants wore white hats and white carnation corsages.

John Malta served Mr. Price as best man. Groomsmen were Roy David Welch, Jr., and Richard Smith of Oak Ridge. Lee Bruno, grandfather of the bride, was usher.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors. Mrs. Thomas

Garden Study Club Meets At Holiday Inn

The Garden Study Club met on Friday at the Holiday Inn with Mrs. R. B. Henry hostess.

After a short business session, presided over by Mrs. C. H. Tait, president, the meeting was turned over to the teacher, Mrs. John Lewis, who commented on arrangements brought by the members illustrating the lesson "Texture in Flower Arrangements."

Refreshments were served the following members: Mrs. G. F. Becker, Mrs. C. A. Caldwell, Mrs. H. S. Coon, Mrs. J. R. Coulter, Mrs. A. M. Guerrero, Mrs. Morris Harrison, Mrs. W. G. Haynes, Mrs. R. B. Henry, Mrs. C. T. Johnson, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. W. L. Mitchell, Mrs. J. F. Stone and Mrs. Tait.

Ferriday Wedding Unites Miss Poole, Mr. Cullman

St. Patrick's Catholic Church in Ferriday, was the scene of the wedding of Miss Nola Ann Poole daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Poole, and Airman Second Class Richard E. Cullman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Cullman, of Newellton, La. The Rev. John Kayer, pastor of the church, performed the double ring rites on Tuesday March 1, at half after nine in the morning. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Phyllis Cullman, sister of the bridegroom, served as maid of honor. Miss Jan Ledingham of Port Allen, La., was flower girl. Carol Bumpers of Newellton attended the bridegroom as best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was given in the Catholic Hall. After the reception the couple left on a wedding trip to various points in Arkansas. Upon return they shall make their home where the bridegroom is stationed with the U. S. Air Force.

Small Fry City Slicker Copies Country Cousin

By GAY PAULEY
NEW YORK (UPI)—The small fry city slicker copies her country cousin this spring.

Frankly hayseed in origin is the way one fashion authority summed up the old-fashioned and countrified look in fabrics and styling in dresses for girls.

It is expressed in denims, homespun, cotton tickings, and a whole deluge of calico prints and gingham checks like grandma wore when she was a girl. Adding to the quaint look are pinafores and aprons, oversize puff sleeves, wide bands of embroidery and lace, rickrack trim, and fichu and Bertha collars.

Designers Kate Greenaway and Joseph Love do some of the largest collars in the spring collections—some almost capes in scope with dainty lace and embroidery trim.

In suits, the influence predominantly is that of the French designer Chanel. Her clothes are for adults, but this hasn't stopped children's wear manufacturers from copying her cardigan jackets and pleated skirts. Chanel so dominates the suit collections that Women's Wear Daily, the trade publication, remarked that if the designer were "collecting royalties, she would have more gold than Louis 14th."

The Chanel influence shows also in braid trim in both suits and coats. Braid is used to outline collars and pockets, is slitted vertically on the front, or used to edge the whole face of a jacket.

Except for braid, most coats are uncluttered. Fitted coats have the princess line, sometimes with a detachable cape or with a cape effect to give width at the top. Another favorite throughout the

Horse Has Role In Musical On Broadway

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI)—Six nights and two afternoons a week, an 18-year-old girl mounts a horse named Athos and rides from a Central Park stable down Broadway to the Royale Theatre's stage door.

Upon arrival, Leslie Allen dismounts and waits in the wings while Athos goes on stage. He has a supporting role in the musical La Plume de ma Tante.

A singer sits on the animal while a song is sung. Athos, however, has more than a supporting role. He must ham it up by yawning during the song. The script calls for it.

Miss Allen said she goes into a sweat when it comes time for Athos to yawn.

"We can't be sure he'll yawn, as called for," she said.

Consulting with other horse experts, Miss Allen hit upon a scheme almost guaranteed to make Athos yawn. "We coat his teeth with a spice," she said. "We don't know why, but it makes him yawn—exactly as called for by the script writers."

When Miss Allen came to New York ten years ago, she didn't dream that a horse would figure so prominently in her daily life. "I wanted to be a ballerina," she said, "but early I looked through the situation with untinted glasses. I have a better future in the horse field than I would have on the stage. On the side, I'm going to try commercial art."

Her mother is a commercial artist and will be her teacher.

Girl Scout News

Echoes from last Sunday's Girl Scout birthday programs are still coming in. We'll pass some of them along. The most often-repeated comment was "How nice the girls look in uniform!" Indeed they did. Anyone who might doubt the value of the uniform had only to see an auditorium full of them or a large group attending church together.

The West Monroe program chairman reported that there wasn't even standing room, and college and northside neighborhoods reported well-filled auditoriums. It was pleasing to hear the comment that the singing at Highland School, led by Mrs. Billy Nelson, leader of Troop 4, was especially good.

When a program shows some of the troop activities of girls, it becomes even more valuable in interpreting Scouting to the public and to other members of the organization as well. Such was the contribution of Troop 32 to the program at Lexington School. Under the leadership of Mrs. J. E. Wood and Mrs. C. L. Christtian, the girls worked out an original ceremony on International Friendship as part of their work on the World Trefoil Badge. As part of showing ways in which girls are alike the world over, the girls in the ceremony gave the Girl Scout Promise in English, French and Spanish. The following members took part: Jane Brant, Marie Christian, Denise Duncan, Gayle Nolan, Kathy Shaver, Donna Spargo, Sue Spight, Carol Ann Sugar, Frankie Spring-Walker, Irma White, Dottie Whit-er, Diane Tomlinson, Daren Walker, Irma White, Dottie Whitfield, Benita Williams, Sherry Wood.

WELCOME RELIEF — After trying several suggested remedies to help her dashdum from gagging at mealtime, Mary Lou Garrison took the dog to a veterinarian. He solved the problem at once by loosening the collar.

Well-conducted flag ceremonies opened all three programs. Troop 40 included a patriotic verse read in unison as part of the Northside program. Troop 34, Our Lady of Fatima school, conducted theirs with precision at the college program at Sher-rour school, as did Troop 12 at Highland.

Troops 44 and 42 at Sherrouse deserve credit for the choral reading, "Her Wish Came True." Pat Medaries, a speech major at Northeast, assisted Mrs. Louis Breard, leader of Troop 44, in training the girls. Also giving an excellent choral reading were Troops 2 and 33, under the direction of Mrs. Frank Halpin, at the Lexington School program. Troop 5, Mrs. J. H. Keeling, leader, did a splendid job of ushering, we are told, marking off reserved seats for each troop.

At each of the three programs the girls presented their offerings to the Juliette Low World Friend-ship fund, established in honor of the Founder, and used to help spread Scouting. Each neighbor-hood will want to know what theirs totaled. Here they are: Northside, $47.81; College, $29.46; West Monroe, $38.49. To these will be added contributions from Newellton, Bastrop, and Farm-erville, as well as from Troops 8 and 24 at Jefferson Junior High, board members and possibly a few other individual troops.

Troop 8 had a birthday party, with cake and candies and all the trimmings, at their regular meeting Tuesday and sent in $2.61 as their contribution. The sum represented a penny for each year of age. Mrs. E. M. Varnado is leader of this troop, now in its fifth year, and is assisted by Mrs. Ellis Hunt. Troop 24, Mrs. Edmund Middleton, leader, made a contribution of $2.00, also.

We'd like to mention Troop 17, West Monroe, Mrs. J. P. Corley, leader, for their offering amounting to $16.32. In gratitude for their five years of Scouting they gave 2 cents for each inch of height, and since they are at a growing age the sum quickly mounted.

Day camp folders will be given to leaders at neighborhood meet-ings this week, Northside at St. Paul's at 9:30, College at Mem-orial Methodist at 1:15. Some adult from each troop should be present to obtain them. The camp committee wishes the folders to be in the hands of parents well in advance of sign-up day on April 9.

Give It A Lift

You can give tomato juice a lift by combining it with bottled claim juice.

Next time you are cooking pork sausage links for a week-end brunch, save the drippings and cook some apple slices in them. Sprinkle the apples with a little sugar and a dash of salt as they are browning.

Now there are even wash-and-wear shoes! Some casual suede shoes, treated with a special finish, can be kept clean by applying warm soap or detergent suds with a soft brush.

How To Lick Those Middle Age Blues

AP NEWSFEATURES

Middle-age blues got you down? Go back to work and be hap-py, advises Harry Milt, of the Na-tional Assn. for Mental Health, in a new Public Affairs pamph-let, "Middle Age — Threat or Promise?"

Discussing the problem of the wife and mother who suddenly finds herself with nothing to do in middle age, Milt points out that thousands of such women are go-ing back to jobs or careers they gave up 20 or 30 years ago, to get married. And as soon as they get busy and interested once more, those middle-age blues dis-appear. He writes:

"Thirty or 40 years ago, peo-ple were 'old' at 50. Today the average person of 50 is still young in body and spirit and is capable, biologically, of a great deal more living."

The problem of middle age hits both men and women, Milt points out. The man who reaches his goal too early or retires too soon may find life suddenly a bore if he has developed no interests out-side his business. The woman who quit her job when she got mar-ried is equally lost when her chil-dren grow up and leave home and she feels that nobody needs her any more.

The answer for both is to plunge into new interests, perhaps an entirely new career, says the author. The woman who decides to go back to work at middle age may have a battle with her hus-band, but if she sticks to her guns she can win. He cites the example of a wife who had to argue for two years before her husband finally agreed to let her take a job. When the wife finally won out, her husband admitted:

"It's the best thing that ever happened. I don't remember when I've seen her so zippy and alive. Sure the meals aren't what they used to be, and the house isn't exactly spotless. But Sybil is hap-py and loving and that's more important than anything."

The middle-aged woman need not fear the competition of young girls in the labor market, says Milt, who points out:

"The fact is that many firms and organizations actually prefer mature, middle-aged women, and for very good reasons. First, ma-turity itself is an asset in almost any business situation. Second, women with grown children are not as likely to have their work and attendance disrupted by the problems of marriage, pregnancy and family emergencies."

"No doubt you are a little rusty, and it may take you a while to pick up the new ideas and tech-niques which have developed dur-ing your absence. With the back-ground of a rich life, you may find that you not only learn as rapidly as when you were young-er, but that you actually learn more thoroughly."

With many other authorities, Milt believes that the worst thing that can happen to a person is to be left with no interests and nothing to do after years of con-centrated endeavor. The only so-lution, he says, is to get busy at something — anything that inter-ests you, from a job to a hobby. And a hobby often turns into a new career.

esses will be Mrs. Roy Brooks, Mrs. Jack Willis, Mrs. I. H. Ham-ilton, Mrs. Davis Russell and Mrs. J. H. Morgan.

Pilot club style show-luncheon "Breath of Spring, Tra-la," 12:30 p.m., Paragon club. For reservations, call Miss Hermione Driskell, FA 3-9773.

Pictured are two versions of the large cloche which is so good this year. To the left, "Clipper", a king-size hat of pale yellow baku straw trimmed with lilies of the valley and one big yellow rose. On the right, a bell bubble cloche of beige and white ribbon over black horsehair: a dramatic summer costume accent.

Variations On An Old Theme For Spring

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI) — Design-ers bare their spring collections during the New York couture group's National Press Week, open-ing Sunday.

But the high fashion story for spring is one of variations on old themes, plus a few new ones. There will be something to suit the figure — whatever the shape.

There will be nothing radical, however. In the main, skirts look like skirts. Jackets look like jackets; coats, like coats. For evening, necklines plunge.

The newest wrinkles in the spring collections concern sleeves, shoulders and waistlines. Some sleeves are literally all armhole, beginning at the waist-line and circling out around the elbow. Others are funnel-shaped from a deep armhole to a nor-mal width below the elbow.

Still others are dolman shaped with an arching seam underneath from waist to cuff. On coats and suits, rounded or tubular sleeves are sometimes set in at a new straighter and wider shoulder line.

Waistlines are lowered slightly. The downward trend contin-ues even when the waistline is centered with a normally placed belt or sash.

facturers display their wares, also watch for:

—A tendency to longer jackets in suits, although there's still plenty of latitude in choice.

—Hip-length jackets, wide at the base, designed to lie loosely over full pleated skirts.

—The coat dress as a favorite spring costume.

—Soft silk blouses with tweeds, decorative brass buttons and braid pipings, small-scale checks, and huge checks.

—Highly travel-minded collec-tions featuring fabrics keyed to easy packing and climate defi-ance.

—Ideas on-the-double: Double skirts with the tunic almost as narrow as the hemline; oriental over-skirts slashed at the sides, double sleeves, double or triple necklines.

—The full-skirted short party dress to vie with the slender eve-ning dress for honors.

—Grey looming large as a spring basic color; white for ev-erything and everywhere; pinks, blues and yellow, bright and chalky; greens and browns.

THE HOME SHIFT

Groups Plan More Plantings

By MILDRED SWIFT

The Beautification Committee and the two city governments are trying to make Monroe and West Monroe an attractive place for us to live; a home we can point to with pride; a place where we can raise our children in the kind of surroundings they deserve.

These people have done, are doing and plan to do more planting in the boulevards and neutral grounds. Would you believe there are some who will park their cars in these places? not only park on the grass making unsightly ruts, but actually run over the plants, breaking and killing beautiful shrubs and trees. Cities have spent money and individuals and garden clubs have given valuable plants. Would every individual be personally responsible for these spots that we are trying so very hard to beautify? They belong to you, the citizens. Will you please not park cars there or drive across the boulevards?

GARDENING

Do you like the little lavender thirt that is blooming now? The blooms completely cover the plant. As a ground cover it is so beautiful. Plants can be purchased in the nurseries. I would advise you to get the soil in good condition, first. When weeds and grass get in this low growing plant it is really a headache. When you pull the weeds you pull up your plants, and if bermuda gets started, it's really bad.

The azaleas start blooming right away. Now you can see where to prune. Cut those very long limbs. Take several limbs out of each plant, right where they come out of the ground, or where they join a main branch. You'll be rewarded with lots of new shoots that will grow and bear more flowers next year. If you haven't fertilized these azaleas, do so now. Use 8-8-8 or a regular azalea camellia fertilizer. If you use 8-8-8 spread one half cupful around each plant, at least a foot away from the main branches. Always be careful not to get this fertilizer on the plant. Water down unless it rains. Fertilize again in June. All this is a reminder.

Fertilize bulbs with bone meal. Don't forget to fertilize the native iris with 8-8-8. Lawns can be fed now. Use the old stand-by 8-8-8. The specialists have found there are other fertilizers that may be better, but 8-8-8 will do a mighty fine job. The clerks will help you determine the amount you need for your size lawn.

Flower seed you can plant this month are: snap dragon, gypsophila, feverfew, phlox, larkspur, African golden daisy, forget-me-not, salvia. The last of the month when the ground is warmer (this may be April) you can sow seed of zinnias, marigolds and cockscomb. If you want to get an early start on the weatherman, the seed from these last three can be sown in boxes in a protected place. Then when the weather gets warm, put out the plants and you have early blooms.

Bedding plants that can be set in the open this month are: adonis, alyssum, calendula, candytuft, carnation, coreopsis, cornflower, daisies, snapdragon, gerber daisies, lobelia, lupine, violets, petunia, phlox, Queen Anne's lace, salvia.

There's a starter solution in the seed stores. When used, according to directions, this liquid fertilizer helps plants off to a good start because it induces good root formation. You can make a starter solution by dissolving a cup of 8-8-8 in a gallon of water. However, the starter you buy is stronger, in the root forming element and that's what you need for bedding plants.

The cockscomb is an old fashioned flower that has become popular again with flower arrangers. They are long lasting and flower beautifully. Some new varieties are: maple gold, rose beauty, green gold, harlequin gold dust, new penny.

March or April are the months for dividing and resetting violets. This plant just seems to disappear unless reset every three years. Violets love plenty of humus.

ON TARGET — Jack Dermid, wildlife photographer, demonstrates (above) how he sometimes conceals himself in a blind when stalking animals to photograph. Below, a mother opossum and her young ones are caught by one of Dermid's hidden cameras.

Camera News

By REESE HART

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — Jack Dermid has been a wildlife photographer since his high school days when he tied a camera to a tree, attached a string to the camera's shutter, and snapped a picture of a brown thrush on her nest.

"I decided right then and there to become a photographer," Dermid says. "I get a lot more fun out of photographing birds and animals than hunting. It offers more of a challenge."

Dermid, 38, is managing editor and photographer of Wildlife in North Carolina, a monthly magazine published by the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission. His camera work has won national awards.

Patience is one of the main requirements of a successful wildlife photographer, Dermid says. "One time I spent nine hours in a hot corn field to get a picture of a kill deer, a member of the shore bird family," he says. "Some wildlife just don't want to be photographed. I enjoy photographing birds the most because of their beauty and individual personality. There is always an interesting activity for the camera around a bird's nest."

But getting a picture of the bird and the nest sometimes can be a trick or two. Dermid has a wooden dummy camera he finds a bird nest that looks like a good camera material, Dermid will put the dummy camera near the nest and leave it for several days so the birds will get used to it. Then he will substitute the real camera and, with the use of a remote control wire, will hide a safe distance and wait for the subject to return.

Dermid says there are four ways to get wildlife photographs. One is to stalk the wildlife with camera in hand "and hope you can get close enough to get a good picture."

"Another way is to use telephoto lens and a portable blind. A portable blind made of tow sack is good to hide behind and can be moved about easily. A third way is to make pictures with the use of remote control cable. In using this method, I put a camera near the subject. Then I wait a safe distance and watch through binoculars until the bird or animal gets near the camera. When he does, I press the button. Another way is to trap the animal, then turn it loose in its local habitat and snap the picture."

Dermid explained that animals and birds "aren't always cooperative. If I need a picture right quick of a certain animal it might be better to trap the animal and then turn it loose in its local habitat. Take a white-footed mouse, for example. You have to get close to animals that size to get a good picture. If I needed a picture of a white-footed mouse, I would trap him and then release him in his local habitat in a small box with a glass on the front. Surprisingly, animals act pretty much the same in these situations as they normally do."

GARDEN CENTER NOTES
Arrangements From Dubach

By MARY JARDINE

GLADYS M. KULCKE
The Dubach Garden Club furnished the arrangements for the Fifth District Garden Center this week.

Mrs. Burl Davis placed first with a triangle design using Pfitzer Juniper, yellow-bordered Sansevieria and butter-and-eggs. A small round black container was placed on a round yellow tray for this arrangement. Juniper was massed in a triangle design, forming the background for the butter-and-egg blossoms and buds. Good transition was used in the placement of blossoms and buds. The Sansevieria emphasized the vertical line of the triangle design. This arrangement was very pretty, placed against a light green background.

BOTTLE ARRANGEMENT
In a small green bottle-shaped vase Mrs. Charlie Colvin created a mass vertical arrangement. She used succulent plants, Hen and Chickens (Echeveria) aloes, Pedicularis and Sansevieria. The Echeveria rosettes accented the focal area. The Pedicularis was placed to one side and Aloe on the other side. Two leaves of Sansevieria formed the strong vertical line.

A long-lasting arrangement for a small table, Mrs. Bernice Fuller chose a flat free-form ceramic container in tones of green and brown for her arrangement. The needle point holder was placed at the broad end of the container. Brown sweet gum branches were used to form the lines of the asymmetrical triangle design. Branches of green Pedicularis followed these lines. The focal area was made by a mass of yellow and yellow and white daffodils. This pretty arrangement would be lovely for the living room. Beautiful daffodils were shown in the horticulture division. Mrs. Mack Henry entered Advance Guard, Carlton and Unsurpassable. They were all blue ribbon winners.

STATE FLOWER SHOW
Garden Club members all over the state are looking forward to the "outstanding event of the Spring Calendar, the State Flower Show and Convention in Shreveport on March 25, 26, and 27, 1960. The show will be staged at the Louisiana State Fairgrounds and will open on Friday, March 25 at 7 p.m. Theme is most appropriate for our fair state, "Sportsman's Paradise in Picturesque Louisiana."

Show closes Saturday evening at 9 p.m. Convention activities start Friday afternoon with a tour and tea from 3 to 5 p.m. Registration desk for the convention will be in the lobby of the Washington - Youree Hotel. The Nationally Accredited Flower Show judges will hold their annual breakfast at 8 a.m. on Sunday, March 27, Washington-Youree Hotel. Be sure to make your plans to attend this outstanding event.

Time Now To Nourish Lawn

By AUOREY DAWSON

March is an excellent time to feed your lawn. Use a complete fertilizer as 5-10-5 or 8-3-8. If you did not get your trees and shrubs fertilized in February you may use this same fertilizer. Don't forget to fertilize your camellias and azaleas. Use about 1/4 to 1/2 pound of 8-8-8 per square yard of surface area covered.

Flower seeds that may be sown this month are: petunias, pinks, snap dragons, feverfew, phlox, salvia, larkspur, and forget-me-not.

You may like to sow some of your seeds in flats indoors. This will supply plants about three weeks earlier than if you wait until danger of frost is over. Seeds such as zinnias, marigolds, nasturtium and petivinkle would do fine in the flat and would be ready to put out in your garden in early April.

GLADIOLUS
If you, Mrs. Housewife, have not planted your gladiolus corms or bulbs better get them out as soon as possible. The gladiolus does not bloom well during hot weather. It will stand light frosts and frosts without injury especially when the plants are small. Usually blooms from plantings made after March are not very satisfactory.

According to our housefurnishings specialist, Mrs. Jessie Mac Hill, the outlook for furniture this year is not a market of brand new styles. Rather a strengthening of what was there last year. Modern still accounts for about half of the sales. Early American and Colonial styles are second. Sofas are getting longer — 84 inches is common (good news for husbands who like to stretch out on them). Some sofas are 120".

Walnut is still the most used wood, but mahogany is coming back but this time with light finishes. Wood finishes, generally are about the same as last year, the mellow, light brown ones — sometimes called fruitwood colors or French walnut.

GARDEN TOUR
The 10 and 25 Year Home Demonstration Club is sponsoring a tour of the Hodges Gardens March 31st. If you have never visited this Louisiana garden it should be a must on your calendar for 1960. If you are interested in making the trip with this group on March 31st, I suggest you contact Mrs. J. G. Haynes at FA 2-2773, Mrs. C. R. Alexander, at NO 5-4988 or Mrs. George Speir at FA 3-8307.

NEW FIBER
A new fiber called Lycra will make possible lighter, softer and sheerer girdles. It is an elastomeric fiber, and it stretches and snaps back into place like rubber. This fiber was first introduced in 1958 as Fiber K for evaluation by the foundation garment industry. It has been used in swim wear and in surgical stockings. Surgical hosiery made of Lycra may be made to resemble service-weight nylons. Women who should wear surgical hose but haven't liked its heavy construction no longer will have reason to shun it.

Manufacturers reported that many years of research and expenditure of more than ten million went into efforts to bring lycra from the test tube to commercial manufacture. Modern science contributed to the old art of quilting in the introduction of Dacron polyester fiberfill in batting form for quilt filling. This batting form is available by the yard, or packaged in clear plastic bags in weights for twin or full sized quilts. This batting may be used for comforters and as a stuffing for cloth toy animals and dolls.

JUST TALKING
Most people will agree that money spent in defense of good health and life itself is indeed money well spent. But do Americans spend too much for medicine. According to the Health News Institute, Americans spend an average of $15 per person for prescription drugs during 1958. In contrast, they spent $33 per person on alcoholic beverages and $36 per person on tobacco.

THOUGHT
Reforms are like charity, must begin at home.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER
Divide Clumps Of Perennials

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

At least every three or four years, the spreading types of perennials need to be taken up and divided. The more robust kinds may need division still more often. Summer perennials should be divided right now, and the autumn flowering ones by the end of spring.

You need not divide your perennials down to tiny pieces. Tear the large clumps apart, saving the more robust looking crowns in fair sized clumps that will give "immediate effect." The smaller pieces for which you no longer have room can be set in rows in the vegetable garden or given away. Really good perennials are always wanted by somebody. The poor kinds may well be junked. There has never been enough of such good tough perennials as the common orange daylily. It is one of the most useful plants available for holding up banks and steep places. It will stop erosion and washes in sun or shade, and while it may not be able to bloom very much, it will usually hold on a long time even when it is half starved. In the future, as more and more improved daylilies are introduced, the slightly beautiful ones will find their way into mass plantings along roadsides and ditch banks to beautify the whole country.

REDHOTPOKERS
Some of the slightly tender perennials like the redhotpokers need at least to be cleaned out of their decaying leaves every year if you do not wish to divide them when they have built up big clumps. The accumulation of dead leaves sometimes rots the crowns. Leave the undecayed leaves of last year on the plants till spring to keep the plants from freezing, but keep the old soggy foliage out.

If you have never grown these plants, you have missed something very different from the common run of perennials. So many new varieties are coming into catalogues, especially from German breeders, that I am expecting a redhotpoker society to be formed. I have seen these new varieties on trial in the botanical gardens in Europe. They now run the full gamut of colors and sizes.

BLUE AGAPANTHUSES
If you want to try a handsome blue perennial, right now is the time to order some of the agapanthus. We have written about them in this space, and many gardeners have seen slides of them at my lecture over the South. Perhaps the best agapanthus for Southern gardens is Agapanthus longispathus, available from the same California nurseries whose addresses have been supplied upon request to this column. It takes the plants a year to settle down, but you may get some of the heads of blue-violet flowers this year. Treat agapanthus like bearded irises except that agapanthus likes moisture in early summer. A light mulch of pine needles will ensure the clumps from freezing in winter. They may be hardy without the mulch, but mine are too beautiful to risk till I have more clumps.

STAMP NEWS

The old and the new meet on a forthcoming United States postage stamp.

A new denomination — 1 1/4 cents — will feature a view of the oldest public building in the country.

The stamp will show the front of the Palace of Governors in Santa Fe, N. M. The new denomination will be used for bulk mailings of non-profit organizations in accordance with the new postage rates which become effective July 1, 1960.

It is interesting to note that the palace, now a museum, was constructed in 1610 and was the seat of government in New Mexico until 1901. During this time the flags of Spain, Mexico, the Confederacy, and the U.S. have flown over the structure.

The new stamp will be placed on first day sale June 17, in sheet form and in coils, at Santa Fe, N. M. Collectors may send requests for first day covers to the Postmaster, Santa Fe, N. M., prior to June 17.

Remember, it will require four of the 1 1/4 cent stamps to be applied for the first class rate so leave space available. The four stamps will have a face value of five cents. Outer envelopes should be endorsed "First Day Covers 1 1/4 Regular Stamp."

A two-color cachet of Bunratty Castle, County Clare, Ireland, will be available for stamp collectors March 17 to honor St. Patrick's Day. The covers will be mailed in Ireland with attractive Irish stamps postmarked Bunratty. This is the ninth consecutive cachet of the historical Irish castle series to be issued.

Collectors desiring covers may write to Irish Cachet Covers, 947 E. 32 St., Brooklyn 10, N. Y. The cost per cover is 45 cents.

France has issued two new stamps commemorating the centenary of the return of Savoy and Nice to France. The 30-cent stamp for Savoy shows a woman in regional costume against the background of a mountain. The 50-cent stamp for Nice depicts a woman in regional costume against the shoreline of Nice.

Also issued by France is a 20-cent plus 5 adhesive illustrating a ship laying underwater cable. The memorative for its Stamp Day.

For the first time in its history the Republic of Dahomey will issue stamps carrying the name "Republique du Dahomey." The 25-franc regular will be re-labeled and will be followed by two airmails. The new republic, previously known as Dahomey is the first autonomous member of the French community.

HE LIKES THE CHANGE
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Louis Jourdan says he is happy to be playing a dope peddling Mafia member in his next picture — "Brotherhood of Evil" — because the role will prevent his being type cast as a handsome heart-breaker.

"The young actor starting today cannot afford to become a standardized piece of film merchandise because the moviegoing public is growing smarter day by day," Jourdan explained.

And the 39-year-old Frenchman wants to go along with the younger set, forsaking parts such as "Gigi's" boulevardier.

"In Hollywood if you are going to make a western," he claims, "it's got Gary Cooper or John Wayne. If you're planning a sophisticated comedy, try to snag Cary Grant. If these stars aren't available or you can't afford them, look for somebody else — but keep to the formula."

Jourdan believes cliché characterization will become a thing of the past when the established box office stars of 20 to 25 years end their careers.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Louis Jourdan says he is happy to be playing a dope peddling Mafia member in his next picture — "Brotherhood of Evil" — because the role will prevent his being type cast as a handsome heart-breaker.

"The young actor starting today cannot afford to become a standardized piece of film merchandise because the moviegoing public is growing smarter day by day," Jourdan explained.

And the 39-year-old Frenchman wants to go along with the younger set, forsaking parts such as "Gigi's" boulevardier.

"In Hollywood if you are going to make a western," he claims, "it's got Gary Cooper or John Wayne. If you're planning a sophisticated comedy, try to snag Cary Grant. If these stars aren't available or you can't afford them, look for somebody else — but keep to the formula."

Jourdan believes cliché characterization will become a thing of the past when the established box office stars of 20 to 25 years end their careers.

Changes In Child Care Noted By US Bureau

NEW YORK (UPI)—If history repeats, many precepts in today's child care books will be out of date one day.

Children don't change, but the books certainly do. Take, for example, the oldest "Infant Care." More than 30 million copies of it have been distributed by Uncle Sam's Children's Bureau.

First editions of that book — back in 1914—viewed children as somewhat strange creatures filled with nasty impulses. Parents were advised to rock the cradle with a firm hand, lest the child's "evil" instincts get the upper hand, ruining the child for life. Contemporary versions of the book, however, picture baby as a sweet bundle of harmless joy. The experts now preach that the impulses, far from being evil things, are natural. And when baby follows his impulses, he can count on nature to keep him from becoming excessively excited.

CRYING VIEWS CHANGED
"Infant Care" also has had a change of heart about crying. In 1914, readers of the book were told that there are good cries and bad cries.

The good cries were those meaning the child really wanted something because he needed it. Say, he cried because he wanted a parent to close a safety pin sticking his tummy.

The bad cries were those "put on" by the child simply because he wanted to make noise. Parents were advised to ignore such sounds. Otherwise, they would be contributing to the development of a "bad habit."

Newer editions retain the notion that a child cries because he needs something — food, drink, changed. Newer editions drop the notion of a "bad cry."

Now the story is that a cry, another crushed piece of foil/hat, and pointy shoes of brown about one foot long for legs. Press the "hook" securely around the added piece. Turn up the shorter length for feet.

Add another crushed sheet of foil about a foot long just below the head for arms. Press the foil into hand shapes. Now, add more sheets of foil to this basic shape until a thick body is obtained. Add foil to the head until it becomes thick enough to mold like clay. Press in facial features, making sure the nose is long and pointy. Pin or glue on pointed ears cut from foil.

Dress the figure in a circle of green felt, a cone-shaped green into cones and pinned to the body.

Vicki V. Hook Youngest Water Ski Champ

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Skimming down a river on a pair of skis comes naturally to Vicki Van Hook — the youngest world's women's water ski champion.

The 15-year old honor student from Long Beach, Calif., belongs to a water-skiing family.

"Mom, dad, my two sisters and brother ski practically every week end. Bonnie, the baby in our family, learned to ski when she was 2," Vicki said during an interview while in New York to view the National Motor Boat Show.

When she isn't skiing — or studying — Vicki exercises by jumping rope on the inflated inner tube from the giant tire of a tractor.

"That's to perfect my balance," she said. "Determination and balance you need lots of if you want to be good on water skis."

"You need the determination because in the beginning there are plenty of spills. When I started eight years ago, I spent more time in the water than I did on ship."

DEFEATED FAVORITES

Little Vicki (118 pounds, 5-4) defeated both the pretournament favorite, Italy's Piera Castlevetri, and the reigning U.S. Women's titlist, Nancie Rideout, of Winter Haven, Fla., during the international competition in Milan, Italy.

The fact that there is no girls' division in the international race put Vickie in the women's class. Her competition: the best that 22 nations had to offer.

Titles come naturally to the blonde champion. This is the third straight year she has won the U.S. girls' water skiing championship.

Vicki usually skims the water at 25 to 30 miles per hour. Once, she raced 25 miles in 27 minutes without getting dunked. Her top speed, 73 miles per hour, was achieved during a race.

New Wrinkle On Larceny It Happens On Highway

Cruising on a highway outside Los Angeles some time ago, young John Dudek of Phoenix, Ariz., waited until a truck rolled close behind his light tan 1955 Cadillac. Then he suddenly slammed on his brakes and hung on as the truck plowed into the back of his car.

Dudek collected $664 for damage to the vehicle and readily signed any insurance company release in exchange for $900 for vague back injuries he claimed.

Over the next three months he staged similar "accidents" in Albuquerque, N.M., Lubbock, Tex., and Chandler, Ariz. He had his Cadillac repaired only once—after the California crash. He began bribing truck drivers to hit him and keep quiet about the precolision damage.

In this manner Dudek, who previously had never been in trouble with police, took insurance companies for $3,829.84 before investigators caught on. On Jan. 15 he was convicted at Albuquerque for conspiracy to defraud. A former Seabee and contractor, Chamber of Commerce member and churchgoer who told police he was once an altar boy, Dudek received a suspended sentence of 1- to 14-years.

The 135 insurance firms represented by the Assn. of Casualty and Surety Companies know they are hurt by such premeditated prejury. But they believe they are doing an efficient job of defending themselves against large-scale deception.

What they are not so sure about is larceny less flagrant—but motivated by the same dream of a quick buck.

"The way things are today," says J. Dewey Dorsett, general manager of the ACSC, "our cherished native traditions of honesty and fair play are being eroded away, for an accidental injury is now too often viewed as a golden opportunity to collect a windfall."

According to Richard C. Wagner, ACSC assistant general manager, auto liability premiums collected in 1958 by companies across the nation fell 400 million dollars short of claims paid and expenses.

"In only three of the 14 years since the end of World War II up to Jan. 1, 1960, were the companies able to show an underwriting profit," says Wagner.

The loss is made up in some companies by profits in other fields—such as life or fire insurance—and by income from investment of their large reserves. But the near-constant loss on auto liability sends them back time and again to state insurance commis-number of bodily injury claims per 1,000 insured cars in Brooklyn for the same period was 120, highest in the nation and remarkably close to the number of accidents.

By comparison Omaha had 131 damage claims per 1,000 insured cars—indicating a similar accident rate—but only 25 bodily injury claims per 1,000 insured cars.

On the same scale of claims to insured cars, Chicago had 118 property damage claims and 61 bodily injury claims. Miami had 97 property damage and 35 bodily injury.

Although the ratio in Brooklyn makes them look good in comparison, both Miami and Chicago also are considered highly claims-conscious areas.

How much do falsified claims on non-existent injuries and padded damage estimates cost the insurance companies?

Robert Dick, a former FBI man who is assistant manager and chief investigator for the ACSC claims bureau, says there is no way of knowing exactly.

"But as a guess, I'd say the cost of claims would be 25 per cent less if everybody were honest." Applied to the claims paid in 1957, latest year on which exact figures are available, that would mean professional and amateur insurance racketeers were making an annual haul of 419 million dollars.

Many times, perhaps most times, the amount involved is small. Admitting that his opinion is based on his contact with the seamy side of the business, Dick estimates that up to 90 per cent of all claims are padded to some degree.

Trying to halt the practice, insurance companies are spending money to remind the public that the policy holders themselves eventually have to foot the bill, through higher premiums, for this do-it-yourself payola.

Insurance men also are intensifying efforts in claims investigation and accident prevention.

There are some signs of progress. The National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters, rate scorekeeper for 150 firms, raised rates in 27 states and reduced them in 11 during 1959. The previous year it had raised rates in 37 states and cut them in only one.

Detroit's new compact cars also are changing the rate structure. Since they're less expensive to repair, 400 companies have whittled compact car premiums by 10 per cent. Safe driver plans, offering discounts as high as 20 per cent

More Gasoline
Held In Storage

By MAX B. SKEITON
HOUSTON (AP) — More gasoline is being held in storage in the United States than ever before.

Inventories rose to a record 218.9 million barrels last week. The new record is the equivalent of nearly 10 billion gallons.

Despite efforts by refiners to curtail inventories, the new mark probably will go higher before the early April start of the spring-summer heavy consumption season.

The high level of gasoline and heating oil inventories in recent weeks have caused domestic crude production to decline. Refiners have sought to relieve the surplus of products by cutting operations 3.4 per cent since the winter season peak was attained the week ending Jan. 8.

While gasoline stocks were jumping 3.13 million barrels last week, crude production declined an average of 165,490 barrels a day.

Weather caused the lone spot of encouragement included in the weekly statistical report of the American Petroleum Institute.

Inventories of home heating oils declined 7,300,000 barrels, the sharpest drop in 14 months.

Demand for heating oils was held down sharply in December and January by unusually warm weather in the western and northeastern consumer areas. Inventories declined only 33 million barrels compared to 61 million the same 1959-1960 period.

The snow storms of late February and early March brought sharp increases in demand. Heating oil storage the four weeks ending March 4 dropped 25 million barrels, compared to a year earlier 16 million.

Weather has drawn much of the blame but refiners began the winter season with inventories of both heating oils and gasoline at record levels.

HOW A BONER HELPED ME EARN $15,000

By a Wall Street Journal
Subscriber

One time on a business trip I got to the hotel late at night. The only room I could get was an expensive suite. Next morning the bellman handed me a copy of The Wall Street Journal by mistake. "Some rich guy must have had this room," I said to myself.

Well, I looked at The Journal. For the first time in my life I began to understand why some men get ahead while others stay behind. I learned about the far-reaching changes taking place in America. I found out about new inventions, new industries and new ways of doing business that are helping ambitious men earn money.

I sent for a year's subscription to The Wall Street Journal and, believe me, it has paid off. Last year my income was $12,000. This story is typical. If you think The Wall Street Journal is just for millionaires, you are WRONG! The Journal is a wonderful aid to salaried men making $7,500 to $25,000 a year. It is valuable to owners of small businesses. It can be of priceless benefit to ambitious young men who want to earn more money.

The Wall Street Journal is the complete business DAILY. Has largest staff of writers on business and finance. The only business paper served by all three big press associations. It costs $24 a year, but you can get a Trial Subscription for three months for $7. Just tear out this ad and attach check for $7 and mail. Or tell us to bill you.

Published daily right in the Southwest to bring you vital business and Washington news immediately. Address: The Wall Street Journal, 911 Young St., Dallas 2, Texas. MW 3-13

The unpredictable elements of seasonal demand always have plagued refiners. As a result the oil industry is spending considerable money in underwriting research projects oilmen hope eventually will produce more effective long range weather forecasts.

The projects are sponsored by a group of oil research executives who in 1954 formed an advisory committee on fundamental research on weather forecasting.

The new gasoline record of 218.9 million barrels in storage erased a mark of 216.9 million set the week ending March 23, 1959.

Last year was the first year since the end of the last war for inventories to fail to attain record levels at the start of the spring-summer season. Inventories got no higher than 214.5 million barrels in 1959.

Refiners began 1960 by operating 66.4 per cent of capacity while processing a record 8,395,000 barrels of crude oil daily. Last week they were operating at 81 per cent capacity while processing 1,922,000 barrels a day.

Stock Mart Takes Slight Drop Down

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market took a slight loss this week but nothing like the nose dive of the previous week.

The over-all market averages registered small declines while 679 stocks took net losses on the week compared with 600 posting net gains.

Volume dwindled to 15,930,000 shares from 16,239,695 the week before.

Prices were hit pretty badly the first two trading days but Wednesday mounted a vigorous rally. The Thursday session was mixed, with the popular averages down a little although over-all market gains outnumbered losses. The Friday session produced another pretty good rally on reduced turnover.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks this week fell 50 to 211.0.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 3.96 to 603.53.

Both the AP and the Dow Jones rail averages, meanwhile, made slight gains. This may have been a technical recovery from the drop of the previous week when the Dow Jones rail average dropped to a new low for 1960 and, according to Dow theory followers, signalled a bear market.

At the same time, rail carloadings made a slight gain over the previous week.

While Wall Street was divided on the question of whether a bear market—a major downward price trend—was actually in effect, some analysts noted improvement in technical market factors as the week neared its end.

Most active stock this week on the New York Stock Exchange was Natus Corp., up 3 1/2% at 20 1/2 on 633,700 shares. Most active on the American Stock Exchange was Western Stockholders, unchanged at 5-16 on 222,800 shares.

Corporate bonds advanced this week but U.S. government obligations turned mixed. Trading in corporates on the New York Stock Exchange was moderately active but volume in governments over-the-counter was on the light side.

Volume for the week increased to 533,065,000 par value from 532,354,000 a week ago. A year ago it was 537,888,700.

TO INCREASE OUTPUT

RICHMOND (UPI)—Reynolds Metals Co. announced it expects to bring into production about April 1 the second of three aluminum producing pollines at its new St. Lawrence reduction plant at Massena, N.Y. This will add about 33,000 tons to the plant's annual capacity, bringing output up to about 67,000 tons, or roughly two-thirds of its ultimate 100,000 ton-year capacity.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

James B. Bradley Sr. of Monroe has been named a special representative for the Franklin Life Insurance Co. He will be associated with the John Allen Agency in Monroe.

Before joining Franklin Life, Bradley operated a supermarket in Monroe.

LAFAYETTE (Special) — W. L. Douglas has been appointed district landman by Southwest Gas Producing Co., Inc. He will work from the office in the Oil Center here. He was formerly with the Atlantic Refining Co. for three years and prior to that he worked for Sobie Petroleum.

He is a graduate of Oklahoma University, Oklahoma A&M and the Oklahoma City University Law School.

Tommy Beeman, local station manager for Trans-Texas Airways, was among 40 representatives of the local service line attending a two-day sales meeting in Houston, Tex., Thursday and Friday.

PETERBOROUGH, N. H. (Special) — A registered Guernsey cow, El Mor Raider Thelma Creamcup, owned by M. L. Johnson, Monroe, has completed an official production record, according to the American Guernsey Cattle Club here.

This record was for 3,999 pounds of milk and 511 pounds of fat from the five-year-old animal. She was milked two times daily for 505 days while on test.

Jack Noble, assistant paper mill superintendent in Monroe for Olin Mathieson, outlined some of the aspects, problems and needed improvements in the manufacture of paper and paper-derived products for a group of Louisiana Tech mechanical engineering students.

His remarks were heard by about 30 aspiring engineers, members of the Tech student chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

BATON ROUGE (Special) — The 40th annual convention and building material exhibits of the Louisiana Building Material Dealers' Association will be held at the Jung Hotel in New Orleans March 22-24, according to R. Needham Bell, executive vice president.

More than 500 dealers, manufacturers and wholesale distributors of building materials and guests will attend this meeting, he declared.

Fred Rushing Jr., Mangham, has been appointed special agent for the Farm Bureau Insurance service in Richland Parish. He has received special recognition for leading the company in life insurance sales during February according to Everett Zeagler of Monroe.

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — E. M. Godat, manager of the Crossett Chemical Co., is the new president of The Wood Charcoal Briquet Producers Association. He was elected during a meeting of the association in Chicago. He has been with the Crossett company since 1944.

Continued public support of the Interstate Highway program is necessary to prevent the program from serious curtailment, according to R. H. Walton, general manager of the Louisiana Machinery Co., Inc. of Monroe. Walton pointed out that interstate construction was nearly suspended in late summer of 1959 because of a lack of funds.

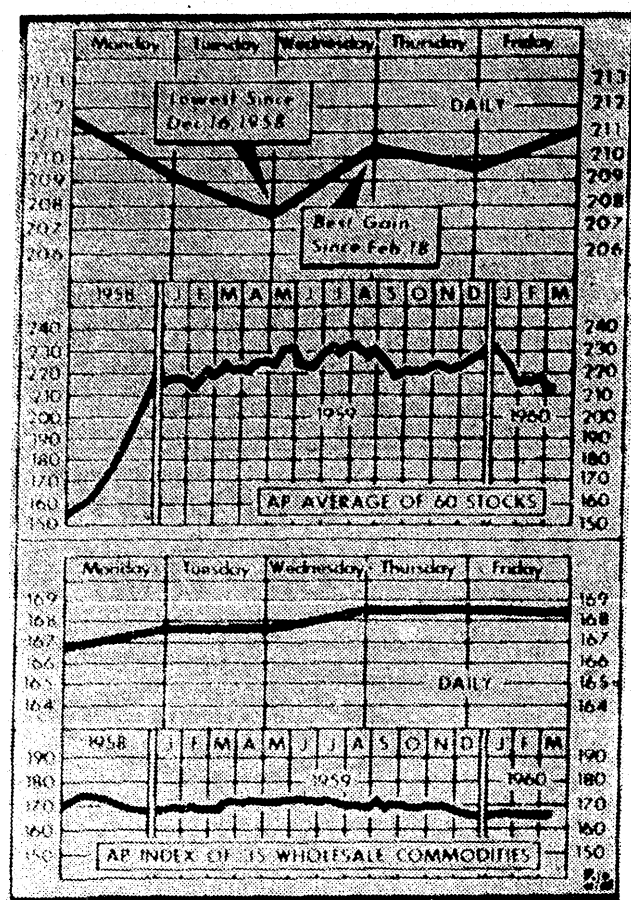

Bill (Rosy) Senn of Sterlington has been named best instructor in the Conoco Chemical Co. Senn received a trophy in honor of his achievement at the company's national convention at Lake Murray Lodge, Ardmore, Okla., last week.

Senn led the company's salesmen in total sales for the final two weeks of the sales contest which ran from Feb. 10 through March 1. Senn was also named Man of the Month and Man of the Week for Louisiana. His territory covers the entire 5th Congressional District and southeast Arkansas.

Senn is a former center fielder for area baseball teams.

Louisiana Power and Light Company has named two new assistant station superintendents at its steam-electric generating stations. They are W. E. (Bill) Jordan, former maintenance engineer at the Sterlington station, and Albert E. Henderson Jr., for engineer at the Nine-mile Point station near New Orleans.

Both are well-known in the Twin Cities area.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS average of 60 stocks declined for the second week in a row, closing at 211.0 from 211.5 a week ago. The commodity index rose to 163.3 from 166.9 in the preceding period, with livestock showing the best gain. (AP Wirephoto)

OPTIMISM, PESSIMISM

Big Tug Of War Marks Business

NEW YORK (AP) — A tug-of-war raged in the business world this week.

On one side were those dismayed by a declining stock market, lower than expected automobile sales and failure of businesses to build inventories at the anticipated rate.

On the other were those who are still confident that 1960 will be an excellent business year.

The stock market fell Tuesday to its lowest point in more than a year. A rally interrupted the seven-day decline Wednesday and the market ended the week mixed.

Stock sales in the latest week dipped to 15,930,064 shares from the previous week's 16,239,695. Bond sales were $33,065,000, par value compared with $32,334,000 the previous week.

Layoffs and short work weeks were ordered in the automobile industry as dealer supplies threatened to surpass last summer's peak of 965,000.

The industry sold 483,000 cars in February, up 15 per cent from a year ago and up 6 per cent from January.

This week's production was estimated at 131,000 cars, up from last week's 128,513 which was curtailed because of bad weather.

The steel industry maintained its weekly production at an estimated 92.9 per cent of capacity but the trade magazine Iron Age said mills will have to cut down into the 80 per cent range by May or June because orders are slowing.

Steelmaking furnaces poured 11,119,000 tons in February, a 10 per cent increase over January.

At Lake Murray Lodge, Ardmore, Okla., last week.

Senn led the company's salesmen in total sales for the final two weeks of the sales contest which ran from Feb. 10 through March 1. Senn was also named Man of the Month and Man of the Week for Louisiana. His territory covers the entire 5th Congressional District and southeast Arkansas.

Real Estate Spotlight

MEETING

The Monroe-West Monroe Board of Realtors, Inc., will hold their regular monthly meeting Tuesday at the Lotus Club.

The featured speaker will be Wayne Hucksby, district highway engineer. He will bring the realtors up to date on the progress of the Interstate 20 highway program.

SALES STAFF

Jim Hobson has joined the staff of Troy and Nichols Realty, according to an announcement by J. R. (Pritch) Pritchard, manager, Hobson, a 20-year resident of the Twin Cities, has extensive experience in the retail field. He has worked as sales and promotion manager for a major appliance line.

JOINS

Odus S. Fontenot is now with the sales department of Smith-Gwin Realty, according to J. L. Smith, president. Smith said that Fontenot's sales experience covers nine years as manager of a retail chain store in Monroe and out of the state.

FOR EFFECTS

Your entrance hall is a place where first impressions may well be lasting ones. In just a few seconds an entrance hall can speak volumes about the personality of your home and your taste in decorating.

It is wise to remember that entrance halls are passageways and should be compatible with rooms opening off the entrance hall. But they may be bolder and stronger, and perhaps more novel in character than in other rooms. Whether you are striving for a formal or an informal effect, entrance halls need plenty of imagination in color and design.

ONE OIL, THREE GAS

District Oil-Gas Activity Produces Four Completions

One oil and three gas wells were drilled in the 14-parish Monroe District of the Louisiana Department of Conservation last week. Duncan S. Cook, District Manager, also listed in his report 20 active rigs in the fields.

There were four holes declared dry and abandoned also listed in the release compiled late last week.

CALDWELL

PROSPECTS
Farm System Used By Auto Industry

DETROIT (UPI) — The auto industry has just about as many "prospects" coming up through its "farm system" as major league baseball clubs currently have in their spring training camps.

Like a lot of the rookies in the spring training camps, many of the auto industry's "prospects" may never make the big leagues while many others may be tomorrow's feature attractions.

And whether it's baseball or the auto industry, you can't tell the players without a scorecard at this stage of the game.

The most recent rookie to break into the auto industry's big time is Ford Motor Company's Comet, which replaced the Edsel in Ford's lineup.

The Comet is the first entry from the "Big Three" car making the "luxury compact" field.

These sources also say Ford is planning to use a V-4 aluminum engine in its small 96-inch wheelbase car if it decides to go ahead with current plans to introduce it.

The Ford entry also will introduce another innovation — front wheel drive — to the American market, the sources say.

One source says Chrysler's entry will be built for four-passenger and will weigh about 1,600 pounds, but will not offer anything radical like a rear engine or front wheel drive.

American Motors, which started the current revolution in car types, isn't waiting for the others to take the lead now either.

It has a new engine ready for introduction in its 1961 models or earlier and plans a major styling change on its Rambler Americans for next year. The regular Rambler is scheduled for a major styling change a year later.

The heavy influx of rookies is even forcing some of the old standbys to change to meet the competition.

Ford already has changed the styling of its standard car, Chrysler Corp. has changed over all of its lines except one to unitized construction.

Weather Noted As Factor In Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Weather became a slightly bullish factor in the grain futures market this week as most contracts moved moderately ahead for the second successive week.

A few gains ran beyond a cent a bushel but most of them were limited to major fractions in a generally slow and dull trade. The two or three heavy snowfalls over much of the Midwest again curtailed movement of grain from farms to markets and delayed work toward planting of oats and barley.

At the end of the week, dealers were talking of the possibility deep snow over some areas may cause changes in farm operation plans. They mentioned specifically that some oats acreage may be shifted to corn or soybeans unless warm weather comes soon to melt the snow and dry the soil sufficiently for planting.

Because of that possibility, May and July oats traded at new high prices for the season on three of the five days.

At the end of the week, wheat was 15-16 cents a bushel higher, March $1.99 1/4-1/2, corn $1.13 1/4-1/2, soybeans $1.13 1/4-1/2, rye unchanged to 1/4 higher, March $1.20; soybeans 1/4 higher to 1/2 lower, March $2.10 1/4-1/2.

Nineteen other cases are to be heard by the court.

Judge To Hear Motion Monday In School Case

BATON ROUGE (AP) — U.S. Dist. Judge J. Skelly Wright Monday will hear Negro motions to desegregate public schools in East Baton Rouge and St. Helena parishes and five state trade schools.

Parents of white students in the two parish school systems also have filed motions. They want to intervene in the federal suit, arguing their children would be hurt by being forced to associate with Negroes.

Traders noted that registrations for the payment in kind cotton export program for the season through March 4 were reported by the Commodity Credit Corp. at 5,885,173 bales. As the result of the large total registered so far, indications are that total exports by this country for the full season may approximate 6,250,000 bales.

Two New Wildcats Completed

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Two new wildcat oil wells have been completed in Wayne and Adams counties and production tests are underway on a third wildcat in Forrest County.

In Wayne County, Cashin-Laroco - Ashmun and Hilliard were erecting storage tanks at the Jarrett oil No. 1, sec. 27-10-5W, four miles northeast of the Diamond oil field.

The wildcat tested at 192 barrels of oil daily from a sand 3,750-5 feet. Oil gravity was 33 degrees with a Rodessa producing horizon.

Serie-Punches Oil Co. completed the Adams County wildcat Breaux No. 1, sec. 2-4N-4W. The wildcat flowed 90 barrels of oil daily from a Wilcox sand at 6,917-3 feet.

In the McCallum area of Forrest County, Jett Drilling Co. was preparing production tests at the test Carter No. 1, sec. 6-3N-12W to test commercial worth of sands below 12,000 feet. Total depth is 12,822 feet, with production casing at 12,793 feet.

Stekoll Petroleum Co. was testing a Marion County wildcat the Gex oil No. 1, sec. 25-2N-17W. The well was drilled to 12,451 feet with casing at 11,850 feet.

Two wildcat tests were drilling in Wallhalla County, and a third was getting ready.

Sun Oil Co. was below 13,800 feet in a wildcat, the McDonald No. 1, sec. 26-3N-11E, with a scheduled 14,100 foot try.

Laroco Drilling Co. was below 9,300 in the Alford oil No. 1, sec. 23-1N-10E, a 11,300 foot try, and Monterey oil was clearing location for Baco No. 1, sec. 33-4N-10E, a 10,800 foot test.

In Simpson County, Jett Drilling Co. was below 13,490 feet in a wildcat, the Gaylord Containey Corp. No. 1, sec. 11-1N-3E. Also in Simpson County, the well was below 4,300 feet in a wildcat, the Central Oil Co. No. 6-1, sec. 21-2N-6E.

Gamble and Jett were below 11,100 feet in a Hinds County wildcat the Godman No. 1, sec. 15-3N-2W, and Argo Oil Corp. was below 4,500 in the Deane oil No. 1, sec. 32-3N-2W.

Field drilling during the past week brought seven new oil wells with four recorded in the McComb field in Pike County.

At McComb, Sun Oil Co. and Willis Hughes completed the LE noir unit No. 1-A, sec. 10-3N-7E, testing 253 barrels daily from a sand at 10,964-70 feet. Sun completed the Gillis No. 2, sec. 15-3N-7E, which flowed 297 barrels daily from a sand at 10,950 feet.

L. D. Elam finished the Cook-ells No. 1, sec. 8-3N-7E, which flowed 273 barrels daily from a sand at 10,944-60 feet. Callio Co. completed the Holmes No. 4, sec. 3-3N-7E. It flowed 264 barrels per day from perforations at 10,956-74 feet.

In the Junction City field of Clarke County, Broadhead and Stack completed the Tew No. 1, sec. 30-2N-17E, which pumped 50 barrels of 17 gravity oil per day from a sand at 3,700 feet. They also finished the Tew No. 2, sec. 30-2N-17E, which pumped 30 barrels daily from a sand at 3,703 feet.

SUMMARY

Big Farm Report To Be Out Soon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Prospective Plantings for 1960"—the Agriculture Department's first big report of this year's crop season—will be out next week.

The report, due March 18, summarizes what a large number of farmers, probably around 80,000, are thinking in the way of plantings for the coming crop season.

Purpose of the report is to assist grovers generally in making such further changes in their acreage plans as may appear advisable.

The acreages actually planted in 1960 may turn out to be larger or smaller than the March intentions, by reason of weather, price changes, labor supply, financial conditions, the federal agricultural program, and the effect of the report itself upon farmers' actions.

By and large, the report is simply what is being planned and is issued early enough to allow for changes.

The report covers 16 of the major spring-planted crops. These are: corn, spring wheat, oats, barley, flaxseed, rice, sorghums, potatoes, sweet potatoes, tobacco, beans, peas, soybeans, hay, sugar beets, and peanuts.

The department summarizes what farmers say they plan to do, and then interprets those plans in relation to what has happened in the past.

The Crop Reporting Board prepares a summary table showing the results of planting intentions for the entire country and the percentage change between this year and last year. This gives a quick total picture as an important starting point.

Next come some tables of the longtime record of planted and harvested acres for most of the crops covered. These may not be of great importance to the individual farmer, but they are analyzed carefully by state statisticians for local use.

The state figures and the acres planted for different segments of the crop, like the changes shown for a given type of tobacco or a seasonal potato crop, probably will be the most useful information on which to base an individual farm decision.

A major change in a farm plan often can be costly and the department would not recommend it on the basis of an intentions-to-plant report alone. But there are certain adjustments in the year-to-year plan that can and should be made when the indications point clearly to difficulties ahead.

Apparently a great many farmers do that, because the department frequently finds that the acres planted to any given crop will be quite different from what the intentions-to-plant report indicated they were thinking about early in the season.

Henry Dawson Heads KA Order On NE Campus

Henry Dawson of Monroe will head Northeast State's chapter of Kappa Alpha Order, which this week announced newly-elected officers and pledges of the national social fraternity.

Dawson, a senior in business administration, will serve with Bonnie Farrar, vice president; William A. Turnbough, Jr., secretary; and other officers.

Farrar is a sophomore business administration student from Lillie and Turnbough is a junior from Gilbert who is majoring in general agriculture.

Other officers, including a treasurer, will be appointed to begin work immediately for a year's term.

The list of new Kappa Alpha pledges includes: William Adams of Vicksburg; Jerry Baugh of Oak Ridge; Marcel Clause of Labadieville; Frankie Donald of Rayville; Ronnie James of College Heights, Ark.; Leon Johnson of Monroe; John Laue of Alexandria; Michael Lynch of West Monroe; Jon Riikin of Wichita Falls, Texas; Gordon Roark, Joe Wheeler, Jr. and Clarence White, all of Monroe.

Truck Stalls Traffic Here For 3 Hours

Tractor on U. S. Highway 165 was stalled for off-and-on intervals from 3 p.m. to 6:15 p.m. yesterday by efforts to remove a truck which was accidentally backed into a ditch.

The truck's rear wheels were locked within a four-foot ditch, and the combined efforts of three wreckers could not budge the vehicle. It was finally removed by a heavy duty winch truck.

Charles Howard, 24 year old Negro driver from Magnolia, said he was attempting to turn around on the highway when he backed into the ditch. He was not injured in the mishap.

According to Monroe city police the accident occurred about 3 p.m., and they went to the scene immediately. The truck's cargo consisted of a number of cases of eggs.

A wrecker truck was called, but could not move the vehicle. A second and third wrecker soon arrived on the scene, and the three could not budge the truck.

A heavy duty winch truck, was finally brought to the scene, but still could not remove the ob- lection. Until assistance was provided by a transport truck which had been stranded with other highway traffic.

Following the incident, traffic on the highway proceeded as normal.

Final Rites Slated For Lanza's Widow

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Singer Mario Lanza's widow, who grieved over his death for more than five months, will be laid to rest beside him next Wednesday.

Betty Lanza was found dead in bed Friday by a housekeeper. Her death was attributed to asphyxiation. There was no sign of a suicide attempt.

A brother, Bert Hicks, blamed her death on "a broken heart."

A coroner's investigation is still to be completed.

Mrs. Lanza, once described as Hollywood's most patient wife because of her husband's emotional tantrums, had been despondent ever since he died of a heart attack last Oct. 7 in Rome.

They were married in 1945 and left four children: Colleen, 10; Elisa, 8; Damon, 6; and Mark, 4. The youngsters have been sent to live with Lanza's parents in nearby Pacific Palisades.

A rosary will be recited for Mrs. Lanza Tuesday evening at Blessed Sacrament Church. A solemn requiem High Mass is scheduled for Wednesday morning with entombment in Calvary Mausoleum in Los Angeles to follow.

ATTENTION CATTLEMEN!

As cotton goes West—cattle comes South! Whether you are a farmer, businessman, banker, doctor or lawyer, you can't beat this acreage for cattle. It's located about 10 miles south of Delhi, about 5 miles South of Highway 80 on a blacktop road in Madison Parish, South of Waverly. You'll want to build fences and use some of the 5 tenant houses to build barns and sheds and establish some pasture, but now is the time. Crops grown last year were 55 acres of cotton and the rest in soybean. This 213 acres is all in one tract, have it all, borders on Little Fork Bayou on South and Bayou Mason Road on West. The price is $68,000. Let's discuss your offer today!

BUZ SAWYER

Featuring His Pal
Rosco Sweeney
by Roy Dine

AHEM, SPEAKING OF FISH STORIES, BOYS...
GRAB YOUR EARPLUGS, MEN. HERE COMES ANOTHER WHOPPER.
I'LL BET SWEENEY IS GONNA GIVE US A RE-RUN ON HOW HE CAUGHT A PARROT FISH BY SAYING "POLLY WANT A CRACKER?"
YOU DON'T REALLY BELIEVE THOSE STORIES, DO YOU, WINDBAG?
WINDBAG, AM I?
QUICK, LET'S PUT "NELLIE" OVERBOARD AND HAVE SOME FUN!
HEY, HOW ABOUT SOME SKIN-DIVING, SWEENEY?
FINE. WHO'S FIRST?
YOU, SWEENEY! YOU'RE AN EXPERT!
WELL, DANG MY DINGIES! A MERMAID!!
A REAL, HONEST-TO-GOODNESS MERMAID!
SHE'S PRETTY TOO!
ER... HELLO, MY NAME'S ROSCO SWEENEY. I...UH...
WAIT!! DON'T SWIM AWAY! CAN'T WE GET ACQUAINTED?
SHE GOT AWAY! FELLAS, YOU WOULDN'T BELIEVE IT IN A MILLION YEARS! I SAW HER!! I TOUCHED HER!
WHO, SWEENEY?
BALONEY! YOU DARNED YAHOO'S WOULDN'T BELIEVE IT IF I TOLD YOU! I'M KEEPING MY TRAP SHUT!
TOUCHED WHO?

The PHANTOM

By Lee Falk and Wilson McCoy

WHERE'S MIKE?
ANY SIGN OF THE MASKED MAN?
MIKE GO. MASKED MAN NOT HERE.
WHERE COULD THE MASKED GUY BE? NOBODY'S SEEN HIM.
MY GUESS-HE WENT OVERBOARD-WHERE THE GROSS GOT HIM.
YOU SAW ME- YOU SAID NOTHING- YOU ARE PART OF THIS GANG-
NO GHOST WHO WALKS. THEY HIRED ME AS A GUIDE- I KNEW NOT THEY WANTED TO ROB THE SCHOOL AND TRADING POST.
GOOD. YOU CAN HELP ME. GET A BIG CHUNK OF FRESH MEAT FROM THE GALLEY.
AND TRY TO GET THAT POWER MEGAPHONE WITHOUT BEING SEEN.
WE WENT INTO THE HOLD, FATS. NO SIGN OF HIM!
TELL ALL THE BOYS TO COME ON DECK. HE PROBABLY WENT OVER THE SIDE.
HEY!! HE'S GOT MIKE!
RIVER PIRATES! SURRENDER NOW- BEFORE YOU ARE ALL DESTROYED!
